Ep. 88 Is Speaker of the House Mike Johnson being blackmailed to do the bidding of the left? It certainly seems that way. His colleague, Marjorie Taylor Greene, explains pic.twitter.com/r60v1XQusY

Greene told Carlson that others have also expressed concerns to her regarding Johnson, stating, “Mike Johnson has made a complete departure of who he is and what he stands for, and to the point where people are literally asking ‘is he blackmailed? What is wrong with him?’ — because hes completely disconnected with what we want.”

Carlson asked, “Do you think he is being blackmailed?” Greene responded, “I have no idea, I can’t comprehend, Tucker, what radically changes a man.”

Greene pointed out Johnson’s reversal on foreign aid to Ukraine, and stated that 70 percent of U.S. citizens do not support funding Ukraine’s war with Russia: “Now with the sixty billion dollars going to a war in Ukraine that Americans — seventy percent of Americans do not support it. That’s the most recent polling. Seventy percent of Americans, and the majority of our majority of Republicans do not support funding Ukraine. People want to see a peace deal in Ukraine, not murdering more Ukrainians and more Russians, this needs to end.”

The New American Senior Editor Veronika Kyrylenko recently interviewed Greene at her congressional office in Washington, D.C. The two discussed Speaker Johnson, the war in Ukraine, former President Donald Trump, and other topics. The full interview is available on video at TheNewAmerican.com.
