The press release also included a biography of Lutnick, noting the impact of the September 11, 2001, terror attacks that killed 658 Cantor Fitzgerald employees, and highlighting his resilience in rebuilding the company, honoring the victims, and supporting their families:

He was an inspiration to the World - The embodiment of resilience in the face of unspeakable tragedy.

Howard and the Cantor Fitzgerald Relief Fund donated $180 Million Dollars to his 9/11 families. He remains deeply committed to philanthropic endeavors, donating more than $100 Million Dollars to victims of terrorism, natural disasters, and other emergencies around the world.

Regarding trade policy, Lutnick is a proponent of broad tariffs. He has remarked on the strength of the U.S. economy in 1900, pointing to the lack of a federal income tax and the existence of high tariffs at the time.

Perhaps more controversially, in October he defended Robert F. Kennedy, Jr.'s claim that vaccines contribute to autism in children.
