

Ellen Page's Story Proves That Transgenderism Is Demonic Possession

The destructiveness of transgenderism to our civilization cannot be overstated. Try as the left might to normalize this brand of degeneracy, the reality is that transgenderism, sodomy, and other “queer” practices have always been symptoms of a godless, morally bankrupt society on the path to collapse.

Moreover, it is paramount that the true spiritual nature of LGBT mania be understood. This phenomenon goes beyond mere mental illness; it is a question of demonic possession taking place on a mass scale.

I previously explained that transgenderism is demonic possession. This becomes ever-more apparent when observing the stories and experiences of those who have given themselves over to the trans lifestyle.

Case in point: Canadian actress Ellen Page, who now claims to be a man. Page was recently in the news again due to describing hearing a voice telling her she is transgender prior to getting in touch with her doctor and choosing to mutilate her genitals to become “male.”

Page was a popular and promising star before the sex change, appearing in popular films such as the X-Men franchise, Juno, and Christopher Nolan's Inception.

Her story is one of a gradual descent into dysphoria. In 2008, she publicly called herself a “pro-choice feminist.” In 2014, she came out as a lesbian, going on to “marry” dancer/choreographer Emma Portner in 2018, though they ended up divorcing in 2021.

Interestingly, it was in December 2020, just a month before Page filed the divorce papers, that she came out as a “trans man” on social media, specifying that her preferred pronouns are now “he” and “they.”

Page's story should be a lesson to all, instructive of the way in which modern cultural Marxism takes young people on a road of gradual destruction. From pro-choice feminist to lesbian to transgender, Page's devolution was a step-by-step process that took years.

Bounding Into Comics describes the moment in 2020, first reported by the Los Angeles Times' Amy Kaufman this week, that Page decided to schedule her sex-change procedure, an experience marked by self-harm and hearing a voice in her head:

Kaufman revealed this “crack” turned into full-blown self-harm as Page “tried to knock [herself] out. Took [her] knuckles to [her] face and pounded over and over until bruises formed.” This self-harm was reportedly done because of “all of the self-hatred [she'd] been pushing down for years — the discomfort [she] felt in [her] body, the anger toward those who'd told [her] to repress [her] identity.”

After this self harm, Page revealed to Kaufman she heard a voice that told her, “You don’t have to feel this way.”

Page explained, “It was as if something in my brain turned around. The agonizing voice saying, ‘No, you’re not,’ ‘No, you can’t’ just switched and became very gentle and loving. ‘Oh, maybe I’m trans. Why don’t I explore that?’”

Kaufman then reveals that Page scheduled a video consultation with a doctor to discuss self-mutilating herself “within weeks.” Page and the doctor reportedly scheduled the mutilation procedure for November 2020 with Page paying $12,000 to a Canadian clinic.

On December 1, 2020, Page posted to Twitter claiming that she was “trans” and was now calling herself Elliot and using the pronouns “he/they.”

There’s no doubt that Page was and is under the influence of a demonic spirit. The fact that she heard a voice in her head telling her to mutilate herself in an attempt to become a man, in total rebellion to God’s order and the way He created her, leaves no room for doubt as to the source of her feelings. After all, who was the voice? It certainly wasn’t God.

Furthermore, the fact that the voice was preceded by self-harm, by Page punching herself in the face until bruises formed, is another tell-tale sign of demonic possession. This behavior — hysterical, manic depression and self-abuse — is straight out of the Bible as typical of those influenced by devilish spirits.

In Mark 5, for example, we read:

1 And they came over unto the other side of the sea, into the country of the Gadarenes.

2 And when he was come out of the ship, immediately there met him out of the tombs a man with an unclean spirit,

3 Who had his dwelling among the tombs; and no man could bind him, no, not with chains:

4 Because that he had been often bound with fetters and chains, and the chains had been plucked asunder by him, and the fetters broken in pieces: neither could any man tame him.

5 And always, night and day, he was in the mountains, and in the tombs, crying, and cutting himself with stones.

This is the man who was possessed by Legion, so called by the demons themselves because, as they told Jesus, “we are many.”

Isn’t it uncanny that demonic spirits refer to themselves in the plural — and so do transgenders, who insist on everyone using the plural “they/them” pronouns?

Transgenders desperately want us to use their pronouns because doing so is a form of occult affirmation that invokes the demons and gives them power over the person. This is why Christians should refuse to use trans’ “preferred pronouns” — doing so empowers the demons’ influence.

Ultimately, people such as Ellen Page don’t need a sex change. They need God and the healing power of Christ.
