Not Evil Just Wrong: The Oct. 18 Premier

At 8 p.m. on Sunday, October 18, more than 1,400 groups will be hosting the movie Not Evil Just Wrong, a documentary about the real cost of global warming hysteria.

A list of public premiers can be found at <http://www.noteviljustwrong.com/your-premiere/public-premieres>. It is billed to be “part of a World Record for the largest ever simultaneous film premier.” Packets containing the DVD, tee-shirts, invitational post cards, a movie poster, and even a strip of red carpet for the front porch have been sent to hosts to help make this a gala and interesting way to educate those who haven’t given much thought to the global warming controversy and Cap and Trade legislation proposed to solve this non-problem.

Why would married couple Phelim McAleer and Ann McElhinney want to make a film on this subject? There are already a number of excellent documentaries on the subject including Christopher Monckton’s Apocalypse No!, UK’s WAG TV production of The Great Global Warming Swindle, Sovereignty International’s Global Warming or Global Governance, and the relatively technical Carbon Dioxide and the ‘Climate Crisis’ by Ph.D. father and son Sherwood and Craig Ipso. Why another global warming documentary?

First, the timing is critical. H.R. 2454, generally known as “Cap and Trade,” has been passed by the House of Representatives, and companion bills are lurking in the Senate. Given the speed of passage of large, complex bills in this legislative session, one cannot predict when they will be suddenly brought to the floor. It is important to educate Americans about this subject so their protests can come now instead of after the country has been saddled with this enormous transfer of power from private parties to an omnipotent government.

After having had the opportunity to review the film prior to its October 18 release, I would like to touch on several areas without ruining the “plot” for viewers:

- It is aimed at the people who are the producers of America’s wealth and their families. Few today have any conception of what is facing them if energy comes under government control. This is a wake up call for us.
- While feigning support of the disadvantaged, the environmental movement is shown clearly by a specific policy example to have an agenda that is frankly against the advancement of the human race — as bizarre as that may seem. You will find it difficult not to agree.
- Finally, the underpinnings of the case for global hysteria are shown to be either non-existent or criminally fraudulent. You may have wondered about “the hockey stick,” which supposedly shows the Earth heating up in recent years. Wonder no more.

There is only one thing that bothers me about the movie: its title. After seeing Al Gore caught in lie after lie, one wonders if the “not evil” part is correct.
