“Be Happy! That’s An Order!”

“We shall have world government, whether or not we like it. The question is only whether world government will be achieved by consent or by conquest.”

— James P. Warburg, February 17, 1950, testimony before the U.S. Senate Committee on Foreign Relations

Earlier this year (February 11-13), an extraordinary event took place in Dubai, United Arab Emirates (UAE). Curiously, it went almost completely unreported by the so-called mainstream media. I am referring to the gathering of some 4,000 global notables that officially and unblushingly met under the banner of the “World Government Summit.” The official “partner” institutions, organizations, and corporations that helped the UAE government sponsor the event included the United Nations, UNESCO, the IMF, the World Bank, the World Economic Forum, and such media organizations as CNN, Sky News, Harvard Business Review, and Popular Science. Among the rich and famous attendees at the event were celebrity billionaires Richard Branson (founder of the Virgin Group) and Elon Musk (Space-X, Tesla Motors); IMF Managing Director Christine Lagarde; Professor Jeffrey Sachs, senior UN advisor and director of the George Soros-funded Earth Institute at Columbia University; and thousands more of similar ilk.

One of the more ludicrous (and at the same time frightening) projects to come out of the World Government Summit (WGS) this year is the World Happiness Council. Sound Orwellian? It should. Imagine a knock on the door and this chilling greeting: “We’re from the World Government’s World Happiness Council; we’re here to help make you happy.”

The new 12-member council, to be headed by Professor Jeffrey Sachs (a member of the world government-promoting Council on Foreign Relations, CFR), will convene twice a year, once at the annual World Government Summit, and again at the UN in New York, the Dubai-based Khaleej Times reported on March 20. Among the VIPs joining Professor Sachs on the council is UNESCO’s director-general, Irina Bokova, the longtime Communist Party operative for Bulgaria’s murderous and notoriously corrupt regime. Surely she can teach us all a great deal about “happiness,” yes? A world of bliss awaits us!

Instead of liberty and all that individualistic, confusing, chaotic “pursuit of happiness” stuff, we can rejoice in the knowledge that we will be spoon-fed happiness by global experts in this emerging field.

Except for articles on the World Government Summit by The New American’s Alex Newman, there has been virtually no media coverage of this event. So even while the organized globalists are becoming more brazen in unveiling their world government schemes to a select audience, they are still keeping their true agenda largely hidden — for the time being — from the general world audience. However, when they calculate that they have built a sufficient propaganda network and a large enough support base, you can be sure they will unleash a series of blitzkriegs openly advocating world government “solutions” to a myriad of “crises.”

From the 1920s through the early 1960s, public advocacy for world government by the elites was all the rage. The quote at the top of this article by James Warburg is a typical example. A Wall Street banker and top advisor in FDR’s Brain Trust, Warburg was a longtime member of the CFR, as was his father, Paul Warburg, regarded as the “father of the Federal Reserve System.”

One of the more remarkable and undisguised calls for world government is a 1962 report for the U.S. State Department entitled A World Effectively Controlled by the United Nations by Lincoln P. Bloomfield (CFR). In the report's opening summary, Dr. Bloomfield states: "A world effectively controlled by the United Nations is one in which 'world government' would come about through the establishment of supranational institutions, characterized by mandatory universal membership."

Under this proposal, Bloomfield wrote, the UN (or some other "supranational organization") would be given the "preponderance of political power," including the "ability to employ physical force ... thereby codifying a radical rearrangement of power in the world."

According to this CFR globalist, the speedy path to global merger and world government "relies on a grave crisis or war to bring about a sudden transformation in national attitudes sufficient for the purpose." Bloomfield explained that "the order we examine may be brought into existence as a result of a series of sudden, nasty, and traumatic shocks." Are you feeling traumatized by the relentless series of sudden, nasty, and traumatic shocks to our economic, political, social, moral, and spiritual foundations?

Due to public pushback, the one-worlders went into stealth and denial mode during the 1970s, '80s, and '90s. Guess what? The world government globalists are getting set to go public again — very soon, and in a big way.
