Impeachment Exposes Guilt of the Accusers

“When one person makes an accusation, check to be sure he himself is not the guilty one. Sometimes it is those whose case is weak who make the most clamour.”

— Piers Anthony, British-American science-fiction -author

So it is that the first round of the House impeachment proceedings against President Donald Trump has concluded with the accusers being exposed as the perpetrators of the very crimes they are accusing the president of committing. What’s more, the entire contrived impeachment affair has exposed the incredibly brazen Deep State coup effort and all its agents — current and former federal officials, intelligence operatives, members of Congress, and media shills — to millions of Americans who have watched it unfold live on television and the Internet. Meanwhile, as to the charges that President Trump and members of his administration engaged in some nefarious campaign of collusion, bribery, extortion, and pressure against the government of Ukraine, not a scintilla of evidence was produced to counter the statements of Trump and Ukrainian President Volodymyr Zelensky, both of whom have flatly denied that Trump pressured, threatened, or bribed Zelensky during their now-famous July 25 telephone call.

However, anyone can go online and watch Joe Biden joyfully boasting to an audience at the Council on Foreign Relations (with CFR President Richard Haass sitting beside him) about how he, as Obama’s vice president, threatened to withhold $1 billion from Ukraine if it didn’t fire prosecutor Viktor Shokin, who was investigating the Biden family’s dealings with the corrupt Ukrainian company Burisma.

On the other hand, after repeatedly promising a “smoking gun,” Trump’s Democratic accusers produced a string of dud witnesses who offered second- and third-hand hearsay about the president’s alleged bribery-extortion. The substance of their collective testimonies was that Trump ignored the advice of the “experts” at the State Department and the National Security Council, cutting them out of his policy decisions, and was (horrors!) fashioning his own policies, which they, the “experts,” claimed is risking our national security.

Not surprisingly, the Deep State-aligned media almost uniformly treated the anti-Trump witnesses with the greatest deference and found their testimony “severely damaging” to the president. They were especially wowed by the “authoritative” testimony of former Trump advisor on Russia and national security Fiona Hill. Why the fawning respect for Hill? Well, for one thing, she defiantly reinforced the testimony of previous witnesses and praised their competence and expertise.

How dare the president dismiss this “respected” diplomat! And how dare he rebuff the advice of career experts! That is the take by the media mob, which seems unanimously to agree with former Clinton Labor Secretary Robert Reich, who opined in a column: “On one side are dedicated public servants seeking to protect America. On the other side are Trump and his thugs, seeking to protect Trump.”

Witness Alexander Vindman stated he became alarmed that Trump’s Ukraine policies were “inconsistent with the consensus views of the interagency.” Which is another way of saying that Trump was at deep odds with the Deep State, the “permanent government” of globalist policy elites who occupy “the Swamp.” The Washington Post chose to see Vindman as a heroic figure who was “deeply troubled by what he interpreted as an attempt by the president to subvert U.S. foreign policy.” Yes, according to the Post, it is “the consensus views” of their ruling class, not our constitutionally elected president, that determine our nation’s foreign policy.

This brings us back to Fiona Hill, who epitomizes the Deep State apparatchik that is at the heart of what is a very real, actual war being fought within our federal government. Not only is Hill a high-level member of the Council on Foreign Relations, the central brain trust of the globalist establishment, but she is also a longtime staffer, expert, and/or official at the coterie of CFR sister organizations, such as the Brookings Institution, the Atlantic Council, the Carnegie Endowment, the Eurasia Foundation, the Belfer Center at Harvard, and George Soros’ Open Society Foundation, all of which have been gunning for Trump and relentlessly attacking him at every turn. President Trump reportedly suspected — and with good reason — that Hill, her staff, and her former NSC boss H.R. McMaster (CFR) couldn’t be trusted and were the source of illegal leaks and harmful obstruction of his policies.

Impeachment Phase 2 will not produce any more than Phase 1 (or the abortive Mueller-Russia “investigation), but the Deep Staters hope it will cause “death by a thousand cuts” — for both President Trump and our Republic.
