

“Love Trumps Hate!” (And if you disagree, WE’LL KILL YOU!)

“Love trumps hate! Love trumps hate!” So chanted the belligerent anti-Trump throngs, as they linked arms to illegally block American citizens — men, women, young people, and children, including military servicemen in uniform — from attending the inauguration of President Donald John Trump. “Love trumps hate!” they screamed, as one of the anti-Trump “protesters” reached through the crowd with a lighter to set a young pro-Trump girl’s hair on fire. “Love trumps hate!” the #J20 protesters in Washington, D.C., shouted, as fellow #J20 protesters were running amok with hammers, rocks, and other weapons, smashing cars and windows, terrorizing inauguration-goers, and setting a limousine on fire, which sent smoke clouds (along with some anxiety and panic) along the inaugural parade route.

Ironically, the destroyed limo was owned by a Muslim immigrant, Muhammad Ashraf, who was not a Trump supporter. And his driver, who was in the limo when it was attacked and suffered injuries that required hospital attention, is a Hispanic employee, Luis Villaroel. Of course, one of the other anti-Trump mantras alternating with “Love trumps hate!” is “No hate, no fear, immigrants are welcome here!” But if some immigrants get in the way of the righteous Marxist-Leninist Trump haters, well, that’s acceptable collateral damage, for as Lenin reputedly quipped, “You can’t make an omelet without breaking a few eggs.”

During this past election cycle we have witnessed an unprecedented outpouring of hateful, malicious, intolerant, and even murderous rhetoric from anti-Trump celebrities, prominent individuals, and public figures. The following are but a tiny fraction of the hateful acts by the “Love trumps hate!” folks:

- Pop/porn diva Madonna told the global audience to the Women’s March on Washington, “Welcome to the revolution of love,” before saying she’s “thought a lot about blowing up the [Trump] White House,” and then blasting opponents with F-bomb vulgarity.
- Ted Kornblum, founder and CEO of Magnatone company, posted on January 30 on his personal Facebook page: “Rest easy people, it’ll take only 100 days till Trump gets a bullet in the head!”
- Matt Harrigan, CEO of tech company PacketSled, posted a series of Facebook threats after the election, including: “I’m going to kill the president. Elect.”; “Bring it secret service”; “Nope, getting a sniper rifle and perching myself where it counts. Find a bedroom in the whitehouse that suits you [expletive]. I’ll find you.”; “In no uncertain terms, [expletive] you America.”
- Don King, a senior banker with international megabank BNP Paribas Tweeted: “Rape Melania then decapitate the [expletive]. Cmon ISIS where you at when we need you.” (The “Rape Melania” theme appeared around the country on posters carried by anti-Trump protesters.)
- Monisha Rajesh, a London-based writer for the establishment-left Guardian of Great Britain, Tweeted: “It’s about time for a presidential assassination.”
- Hussam Ayloush, spokesman for the Council on American Islamic Relations (CAIR), issued a Tweet calling for the overthrow of the U.S. government following the announcement that Trump had been elected.
- Ethan Fedida, director of social media at the California-based news website Ozy.com and a writer for the liberal-left pro-Obama/pro-Clinton Huffington Post, Tweeted: “Looking on the bright side: the stress of the presidency should help kill @realDonaldTrump faster.”

- Joss Whedon, director of the Avengers movies and donor of $1 million to a pro-Hillary Clinton SuperPAC, Tweeted this coup-sounding comment after Trump had been legally elected: “This is simple: Trump cannot CANNOT be allowed a term in office. It’s not about 2018. It’s about RIGHT NOW.”

Have any of the people uttering these threats or inflammatory, vulgar remarks been held to account? Have Hillary Clinton, Barack Obama, Charles Schumer, Elizabeth Warren, and Nancy Pelosi denounced the incendiary rhetoric and violent demonstrations? To the contrary, in their speeches they have helped further incite the extremists. Have the moralists of the lamestream media named and shamed the advocates of assassination and violence? Hah! The mavens of Big Media have instead covered for them and have continued to stoke the anti-Trump atmosphere that guarantees a continuation of the vicious “Love trumps hate!” hypocrisy.

Or perhaps “Love is hate!” would be a better catch-phrase, echoing the Orwellian slogans “War is peace,” “Freedom is slavery,” and “Ignorance is strength.”

It’s up to us — you, me, and all Americans who are truth lovers — to name and shame those who are sowing discord and promoting violence, and to expose those who are aiding, abetting, and encouraging them.
