Our Readers Respond

Pro-life Battle Continues

Rebecca Terrell's article "Will Pro-life Laws Really Kill Women?" in the September 26 issue was well-written and most interesting. The fact that she included excerpts from an interview with Dr. Christina Francis, who is CEO-elect of the American Association of Pro-Life Obstetricians and Gynecologists, was of particular interest to this Hoosier. Miss Terrell writes, "Francis practices in Indiana, where state law now protects unborn life from conception through birth."

While the Indiana Senate passed a bill in July protecting unborn life at conception (with inexcusable exceptions for rape, incest, and fetal abnormality), the House added an amendment with a loophole protecting from legal liability hospital doctors who perform abortions "upon request of a pregnant woman." The law went into effect on September 15. For details, I refer the reader to Veronika Kyrylenko's online article at TheNewAmerican.com: "Indiana's New Abortion Law: Pro-life on Surface Only."

That loophole is a grave failing. However, the strength of the law is that it cancels state licenses for abortion clinics such as Planned Parenthood, where most abortions are committed. That is the confirmed reason that Owen County Judge Kelsey Hanlon issued a September 22 injunction against the new law, after Planned Parenthood and other abortion providers challenged it in court. James Murphy relates this development in his recent TNA online article, "Indiana Judge Blocks New Abortion Restrictions." For now, the Hoosier state is back to business as usual, with Roe-era laws already on the books that only protect unborn life after "viability."

Obviously, we Indiana pro-lifers still have a fight on our hands in defending the unborn. Our state provides a lesson for the United States that while we celebrate the overturning of Roe v. Wade, we must realize that the battle has not ended; it has merely changed theaters. Constant vigilance is required to uphold the right to life.

The Coming Judgment

For many years, the forces of darkness were taking over America and we saw things turned upside down. Things that were wrong came to be promoted as being right. Truth came to be treated as though it were a lie, and lies were promoted as though they were the truth. It got to the point where the ungodly were trying to force Christians to sin and it started a spiritual war.

We saw the rise of the homosexual lifestyle, and then along came homosexual marriage. Christians see participation in homosexual marriages as being sin. That is why a baker may refuse to bake a cake for a homosexual wedding. That is why pastors may refuse to do homosexual weddings. They choose to not sin because they are Christians committed to God and there are consequences for sin.

We saw the rise of abortion, and it was promoted as a right. Roe v. Wade has been overturned, but the issue isn't really settled yet.

We saw the rise of the transgender lifestyle. They are trying to replace God's system of gender with Satan's system of gender. I read about a baker getting in trouble for refusing to make a transgender cake. I read about a professor getting in trouble for refusing to use transgender language. These things will not go on forever without God's judgment coming. There aren't only the courts on Earth; there is also the court in heaven. Issues have made their way to heaven, and you can expect God's judgment to come. There is a lot of judgment coming in the end times. In the end, God's judgment will settle the issues, and no one will be able to stand against Him. America is so far gone that it will take the supernatural hand of God to save her. In that case, expect some surprises.
