Stop the “Hate” Hoax Profiteers

Some questions prompted by the recent presidential election campaign — and the ongoing campaign of “hating hate”: How many “hate crime” claims must be exposed as hoaxes before the media stop reporting every claim immediately as fact? Do the media organizations that breathlessly, uncritically report every “hate crime” ever provide even a fraction of the same coverage to correcting their misinformation after the hate hoaxers confess to perpetrating the deeds themselves, or after they are publicly exposed and arrested for filing false police reports? Is the United States of America really a boiling, roiling cauldron of right-wing hate, as the left-wing hate profiteers — the Southern Poverty Law Center (SPLC), Anti-Defamation League (ADL), Human Rights Campaign (HRC), and Media Matters for America (MMfA) — would have us believe? Why, after decades of promoting “hate crime” fabrications, do these organizations enjoy even a shred of credibility with the so-called mainstream media? Who profits — politically and economically — by promoting this ugly and false vision of America?

After reading the small sampling below of the many stories that prompt these questions, the answers should be obvious:

On April 21, 2017, police arrested Azhar Hussain, a professor at Indiana State University, for fabricating anti-Muslim e-mail messages and a claimed physical attack on himself. An extensive investigation by the university and the Indiana State Police determined that the professor had perpetrated the e-mail offenses and invented the attack. He has been charged with felony obstruction of justice and misdemeanor harassment.

On March 23, 2017, members of the cybercrime unit of the Israel Police arrested Michael Ron David Kadar in Ashkelon, Israel. Kadar, a 19-year-old Jewish resident of Israel with both American and Israeli citizenship, has been charged with making hundreds (some reports say thousands) of telephone threats directed at Jews, synagogues, and other Jewish institutions worldwide, including hundreds within the United States.

On March 20, 2017, police in Schenectady, New York, arrested Andrew King for falsely filing a hate-crime report. The previous month, King had appeared on local and national news broadcasts, claiming that someone had painted a swastika on his house. A police investigation found that King had painted the swastika himself, and he has been charged with falsely reporting an incident.

On March 3, 2017, disgraced liberal journalist Juan Thompson was arrested in connection with eight bomb threats made against Jewish community centers across the country. The 31-year-old black man formerly worked as a reporter for online news venues The Intercept and Raw Story.

On December 13, 2016, New York City college student Yasmin Seweid was arrested for filing a false police report. She claimed three men who are Trump supporters attacked her on the subway and attempted to pull off her hijab while calling her a terrorist. The 18-year-old Seweid, a Muslim, later admitted she had made up the story.

Then there is Justin Lamar Coleman, who identified himself as “a very racist white man,” a KKK member, and a Trump supporter, in threatening letters to black leaders in Knoxville, Tennessee. Turns out Coleman is black. And there’s Taylor Volk, a female student at Chicago’s North Park University who self-identifies as bisexual. She claimed to be the victim of homophobic Trump supporters who posted hateful insults on her door.

The list goes on and on. There have been literally hundreds of hate-crime hoaxes that have been uncritically, sensationally promoted by the “prestige press,” as can be easily verified by an Internet “hate crime” search. In fact there are entire websites — such as hatecrimehoaxes.com and fakehatecrimes.org — dedicated to aggregating stories that expose the fake “hate crime epidemic.”

This MSM mendacity is nothing new; legendary researcher Laird Wilcox documented hundreds of similar cases more than two decades ago in his authoritative book Crying Wolf: Hate Crime Hoaxes in America. The current “fake hate” tsunami by the “Fake News” media is merely a continuation of the vicious decades-long attacks aimed at smearing, silencing, marginalizing, and criminalizing conservatives, patriots, Christians, heterosexual white males, and all others who oppose the subversive agenda announced in 2008 by candidate Barack Obama of “fundamentally transforming the United States of America.”

Obviously, it would help that agenda if a majority of Americans adopted Hillary Clinton’s view that those of us opposing that radical transformation are “a basket of deplorables ... racist, sexist, homophobic, xenophobic, Islamaphobic — you name it.” Which is why the New York Times, the Washington Post, CNN, ABC, NBC, PBS, NPR, and the rest of the Fake News cabal continue to furiously fan the Fake Hate flames.
