The Crumbling Covid Narrative Means Freedom Is the Cure

Being a student of the history of government abuses tends to come with the territory as a member of The John Birch Society. Many times, prospects come to be members when they encounter government abuse and seek solutions, finding our organization.

Standing shoulder-to-shoulder with The John Birch Society, The New American has been a key partner in delivering the truth to Americans and beyond. When Covid hit, the world went into panic mode thanks largely to the propaganda machine that governments and tyrants of all stripes employed to set themselves up as the go-to experts to make it easier to strip away fundamental God-given rights.

The New American demonstrated leadership in delivering the truth by casting a wary eye and giving voice to many experts who had concerns over the recommended protocol, including the late Dr. Vladimir Zelenko, Dr. Shiva Ayyadurai, and many others.

The New American paved the way for common sense with such issues as Freedom Is the Cure, Forced Vaccines and Digital IDs, Dissenting From the Panic Attack, The War on Hydroxychloroquine, and Lockdown Madness, all of which were published in 2020! The New American was just getting started, as much more followed in 2021 and 2022.

In the Freedom Is the Cure Special Report, a rather salient article by senior editor William F. Jasper exposed why Covid was being hyped. The headline read, "Coronavirus as Gateway to 'Global Health Governance,'" and the article covered some of the propaganda's players, including the Council on Foreign Relations and the Bill & Melinda Gates Foundation. The article rightly concluded that these players were "fomenting and using the current coronavirus panic to build the 'global governance' world-government scheme that the CFR and its globalist allies have been pushing for the past century."

Now, nearly three years into Covid-19, the official narrative continues to unravel on a regular basis. Drs. Robert and Jill Malone track this at their Substack account, including the controversy around what is a Covid death, the deaths caused by following WHO/CDC protocol, the risks of the Covid shots, the developing aftermath of the shots, the promoting of unlicensed vaccines, the Pfizer admission of not testing for transmission, and the list goes on and on.

Let's throw out a truth pill that's going to be hard to swallow and taste horrible: The abuses of government only go as far as We The People allow. Elected officials are a direct reflection of those who put them into office. In 1876, Congressman James Garfield echoed this when he said, "Now more than ever before, the people are responsible for the character of their Congress. If that body be ignorant, reckless and corrupt, it is because the people tolerate ignorance, recklessness and corruption. If it be intelligent, brave and pure, it is because the people demand these high qualities to represent them.”

Ouch! The “pandemic” has helped to demonstrate this very concept. Where the electorate knew of the constitutional tools to overcome tyranny, the local effects of unconstitutional lockdowns and mask and “vaccine” mandates were largely mitigated. Government abuses happen because many Americans just do not know the limitations of the various levels of government that are supposed to serve them. The late Congressman Pete Stark (D-Calif.) uttered a phrase that illustrates the very mess America is in. At a town hall meeting in July 2010, he said, “The federal government ... can do most anything in this country.” Unfortunately, without We The People holding elected officials accountable, and since other checks and balances are not working as the Founding Fathers intended, Congressman Stark is indeed correct. But an active and knowledgeable We The People can prove him wrong.

Our system of government is not broken; it is simply not being utilized properly. Limitations on government power are not being obeyed. We The People had better learn our respective role in government, because you can bet that the next “pandemic” won’t be far away, and that future crises will lead to more government abuses, as well as global governance.
