The New American Goes Live — Daily!

The New American magazine has always sought to deliver relevant news about issues of concern to Americans — from a traditional constitutionalist perspective — to the widest possible audience. In recent years we’ve had new and better opportunities to achieve that goal, while also encountering greater roadblocks and challenges. On one hand, technologies such as the internet, email, and smartphones have opened up innovative avenues to new and larger audiences. On the other hand, in the wake of Covid, an aggressive public-private partnership seeking to suppress and censor information has blossomed, blunting the effectiveness and limiting the reach of anyone dissenting from the approved statist agenda.

Consequently, Americans are hungrier than ever for an alternative to the captive media, and The New American’s distinctive brand of constitutionalist and Americanist news and analysis is uniquely suited to meeting this need. I am excited, therefore, to announce in this issue that as of February 1 The New American is partnering with the World View Weekend (WVW) Broadcast Network to launch The New American TV With Rebecca Terrell.

This new show features up to four segments per episode. The opening segment features host Rebecca Terrell, a senior editor for The New American, providing a summary of the most important news of the day. For the second segment, Rebecca brings in an expert on a key topic to delve deeper into the issues. Following that segment, legislative experts including Christian Gomez, Peter Rykowski, and Ben Faulkner from The John Birch Society — this magazine’s parent organization — present a summary of key legislative news from both Congress and the states. Finally, each show ends with an informative segment offering insights into steps concerned Americans can take to move our nation back from the precipice of tyranny and toward a restoration of our constitutional Republic.

In recent months our media efforts — including hard-hitting interviews from Veronika Kyrylenko, energetic commentaries from Ben Armstrong, thoughtful analyses from both Alex Newman and Daniel Natal, and timely reporting on Second Amendment issues by Zoe Warren — have seen explosive growth. We’re thrilled to be launching The New American TV as the next step in our media program, and expect it will contribute substantially toward supercharging that growth by providing unredacted, uncensored, and unfiltered news and analysis to a country growing weary of censorship and media manipulation.

If you are looking for the best constitutionalist, conservative, and Americanist alternative to the mainstream print media, you know you can turn to the pages of The New American magazine. If you are looking for that same alternative to the mainstream broadcast media, please join us at 3:00 p.m. Eastern (2:00 p.m. Central) Monday through Friday for The New American TV With Rebecca Terrell. When you do, we think you will be informed and inspired and ready to work for the restoration of our Republic so that, in the end, “freedom shall not perish.”
