Quick Quotes

As Russian Submarine Fleet Grows, Cold War Rivalries Also Grow

"We're back to the great powers competition."

U.S. Chief of Naval Operations Admiral John Richardson openly worried about Russia's intentions.

Killer Who Slayed 77 Wants His Human Rights Protected

"It is important that society answers Anders Behring Breivik with the means at the disposal of the very democracy he attacked. If there is anything we can be sure of now, it is that he will most likely be locked up for life."

A Norwegian court ruled that solitary confinement without access to the Internet violated Breivik's human rights. He is incarcerated in a three-room suite with a treadmill, a refrigerator, a television/DVD player, and a Sony Play Station. Oslo journalist Harald Stanghelle defended the kid-glove treatment given the mass murderer.

High-tech Tunnel From Mexico to San Diego Discovered

"[The authorities] keep finding tunnels that keep getting bigger and longer and more sophisticated. It just seems like we haven't reduced the capacity of people to make tunnels. This is a problem we have to manage, not a problem we can actually solve."

After U.S. authorities discovered a half-mile long tunnel from Mexico to the United States built by drug smugglers, University of San Diego political science professor David Shirk expected that more would be found. The recently discovered tunnel had rails, lighting, ventilation, and an elevator leading into a house in San Diego.

Senator Scorches UN Leader About Peacekeeper's Sexual Crimes

"What is wrong with him? Is he so inept?"

Aiming his remarks at Secretary-General Ban Ki-moon, Senator Bob Corker (R-Tenn.) said that if UN peacekeepers were sent to his hometown, he would drop everything and rush home to protect his wife. His comments followed revelations about blue-helmeted troops running amok in the Central African Republic.

How to Describe Hillary Clinton

"The ultimate insider is portraying herself as an outsider because she's a woman, and the candidate who is considered steely is casting herself as cozy because she's a doting granny."

New York Times columnist Maureen Dowd may be a fan of Clinton, but even she sees past the false images the Democratic Party's leading candidate delights in parading under.

A Former Candidate, He Thinks the GOP Campaign Is a Sham

"Watching Trump wrestle with the GOP quislings is, well, like watching a professional wrestling match on TV. You have to wonder whether it should be classified as entertainment, not a competitive sport."

Previously offering himself as a candidate for the high office, Alan Keyes believes the contest for president in the GOP is a scripted exercise that will never produce the changes needed in America.

Company Founder Shares the Wealth With Employees

"I cannot think of Chobani being built without all these people."

Turkish immigrant Hamdi Ulukaya gave each of his 200 employees shares in the 10-year-old company. His unusual act could make some of them millionaires.

Former Speaker Speaks Out About Cruz

"[He's] Lucifer in the flesh. I have never worked with a more miserable son of a bh in my life."

Speaking at Stanford University, John Boehner didn't hold back in describing fellow Republican Ted Cruz. Cruz hastily responded, "If I have said 50 words in my life to John Boehner, I'd be surprised."
