Make America “Weak” Again?

According to the website of the investment firm Blackstone, President Trump’s Strategic and Policy Forum members “will be called upon to meet with the President frequently to share their specific experience and knowledge as the President implements his plan to bring back jobs and Make America Great Again.” What Blackstone failed to mention, however, is that the person named by the president to be the chairman of this forum is a member of a diabolical secret society, the activities of which, according to author Antony Sutton, “are directed towards changing our society, changing the world, to bring about a New World Order.”

The name of the forum’s chairman is Stephen Allen Schwarzman, and the infamous, super-secret club to which he belongs is called The Order of Skull & Bones. In his book America’s Secret Establishment: An Introduction to the Order of Skull & Bones, Sutton writes that the “New World Order” that the Skull & Bones members are trying to bring about “will be a planned order with heavily restricted individual freedom, without Constitutional protection, without national boundaries or cultural distinction.” What’s even more alarming is that Schwarzman, who joined The Order of Skull & Bones in 1969, is not the first member of that evil society to be selected by the president. The new U.S. secretary of the treasury is a member as well.

It’s possible that the president has never even heard of Skull & Bones and is completely unaware of the treason in his midst, but it’s unlikely. It’s much more probable, in light of his numerous other eyebrow-raising nominations, that he knows exactly what he’s doing. As former Secretary of Defense James Forrestal once said: “Consistency has never been a mark of stupidity.”

George Soros’ War on Trump

Traitors within: In 42 B.C. Cicero exposed the dangers of the liberal establishment of our day. He said: “A nation can survive its fools, and even the ambitious. But it cannot survive treason from within. An enemy at the gates is less formidable, for he is known and he carries his banners openly. But the traitor moves among those within the gate freely, his sly whispers rustling through all the alleys, heard in the very halls of government itself. For the traitor appears not traitor, he speaks in the accents familiar to his victims, and he wears their face and their garments, and he appeals to the baseness that lies deep in the hearts of all men. He rots the soul of a nation, he works secretly and unknown in the night to undermine the pillars of a city, he infects the body politic so that it can no longer resist. A murderer is less to be feared.”

I think the most powerful enemies within our nation are the international bankers. They control our monetary system, and they caused the financial crash of 1929. I think they will try to make Trump and his patriotic followers look bad in the eyes of the naïve.

Who's to Blame?

This may seem harsh to some readers. However, shouldn't the so-called Dreamers, those illegal immigrants brought here by their parents when very young, be blaming their parents for putting them in the untenable position of having to move back to their home countries despite being unfamiliar with the culture and, often, the language? Why should they or their parents expect the United States to cave in to their plight? It was their parents who set them up to be in this position. We cannot take in the entire world. Our country is compassionate, but why should we be forced into this position where we all of a sudden are the bad guys because their parents broke the law?
