

Written by Staff on March 19, 2018

Published in the March 19, 2018 issue of the New American magazine. Vol. 34, No. 06

Letters to the Editor

Unlikable Liberals

I believe that liberals can't be Americans, especially after viewing the State of the Union address a few weeks ago. They were so toxic and disrespectful, to the point of embarrassment. They seem to hate anything good about America, and they could have easily been mistaken for foreign enemies.

It has become clear that they are the party of hypocrisy, dissent, ethnic conflict, race baiting, violent riots, immorality, and treason. Liberalism has become a disease.

Liberals would have you believe that they are the compassionate, benevolent guardians of the poor. In reality, they are the exploiters of the poor, using them for votes and as steppingstones to power so that they can divide and conquer. They operate on hate.

They don't embrace America; they apologize for it. They even have whites apologize for being white. Most liberals can't even define their own purpose, except to destroy Trump.

Liberals want mass, unvetted illegal immigration. This is the fastest way to bring America down. They vote against their own prosperity and think America itself is the problem. When liberals lose, America wins!

Kim Olson

Janesville, Wisconsin

Words Mean Things

As a teenager I attended a Catholic boarding school in California. I actually became a student there in 1954 when I was 11 years old, in the sixth grade. The school was run by a religious order that had originated in Italy. In fact, many of the priests I had for teachers had lived under Benito Mussolini before they came to the United States to teach. They were very impressed with the Founders of our country.

On many occasions my instructors would compare the American Revolution with the French Revolution. They, of course, told us about the inalienable rights that our Founders wrote about in our Declaration of Independence. It was explained to us that our Founders talked about the pursuit of happiness, instead of the attainment of happiness, because as Christians they understood that we would not attain true happiness in our lifetime. Many of the French felt that if they could get away from the divine right of kings and let the people be in charge everything would be just fine. They were convinced that vox populi est vox Dei: That is, the voice of the people is the voice of God. To the French there was something sacred about democracy, about the same way present-day progressives think. Our Founders did not fall for this line of thinking because of the disastrous history of pure democracies over the years.

Dr. W. David Herbert, Esq.

Billings, Montana

Written by Staff on March 19, 2018

Published in the March 19, 2018 issue of the New American magazine. Vol. 34, No. 06

Breaking the Mold

In your February 5 issue of The New American (Quick Quotes), you quoted billionaire and major Democrat donor Tom Steyer as saying, “I am willing to do whatever it takes to save our country. A year ago, no one knew what a Donald Trump presidency would look like, or how he would behave. We now know that the Oval Office cannot shape a man who does not believe in constitutional democracy.”

Since Steyer’s fortune apparently has not taught him anything about the American people or America’s type of government or the U.S. Constitution, he should be enlightened. First, we did not elect Trump president to be shaped by the Oval Office; we elected him to shape that office. Second, what is this “constitutional democracy” to which he refers? The president’s oath was not to any such imagined monstrosity. His oath was “to preserve, protect, and defend the U.S. Constitution,” and the U.S. Constitution does not contain the word “democracy.” It does say in Article IV, Section 4, “The United States shall guarantee to every State in this Union a Republican Form of Government, and shall protect each of them against Invasion.” Since he took his oath of office, that is what Trump has tried to do, despite imbeciles such as Steyer getting in his way.

Frank B. Turberville, Jr.

Milton, North Carolina

Written by Staff on March 19, 2018

Published in the March 19, 2018 issue of the New American magazine. Vol. 34, No. 06

Subscribe to the New American

Get exclusive digital access to the most informative, non-partisan truthful news source for patriotic Americans!

Discover a refreshing blend of time-honored values, principles and insightful perspectives within the pages of "The New American" magazine. Delve into a world where tradition is the foundation, and exploration knows no bounds.

From politics and finance to foreign affairs, environment, culture, and technology, we bring you an unparalleled array of topics that matter most.

Subscribe

What's Included?

- 24 Issues Per Year
- Optional Print Edition
- Digital Edition Access
- Exclusive Subscriber Content
- Audio provided for all articles
- Unlimited access to past issues
- Coming Soon! Ad FREE
- 60-Day money back guarantee!
- Cancel anytime.