

Cashless Society: Deep State Tool of Control | Behind the Deep State

The Deep State is hyping COVID19 hysteria and an alleged “coin shortage” to promote a cashless society with no cash, warns Behind the Deep State host Alex Newman. But in reality, the establishment has been promoting an end to cash for many years, long before coronavirus and the supposed currency shortage. After burning down the economy with lockdown and shutdown policies, now the elites are peddling universal basic income too. The groups promoting this include the Ford Foundation, USAID, the United Nations, many governments around the world, the credit card companies, the mega-banks, and others. If and when it becomes a reality, financial privacy will be lost and nobody will be able to buy or sell without submitting to the dictates of the system. Christians believe this has implications from a prophecy perspective.
