

Pa. House Committee Approves Articles of Impeachment Against Soros-backed Philadelphia DA Larry Krasner

When the Old Testament prophet Hosea warned that those who "have sown the wind shall reap the whirlwind," he could have been speaking of Philadelphia voters. In 2017, intoxicated by promises of Larry Krasner, the Soros-funded candidate for the city's district attorney, to revamp the city's law-enforcement policies, the heavily Democratic city's voters bought the lie.

They reelected him by even more overwhelming numbers in 2021.

His policies have resulted in a jaw-dropping increase in every category of violent crime, and caused the Pennsylvania House Judiciary Committee to approve two articles of impeachment against him on Tuesday.

Krasner's "progressive" policies, aided and abetted by a supportive far-Left mayor, included ending criminal charges against those caught possessing marijuana, ending cash bail for criminals charged with "minor" crimes, and demanding lenient sentences for certain crimes.

In addition, the progressive reordering of justice in Philadelphia included reviewing past cases and sentences in order to seek re-sentencing to lesser punishment, or even release from prison.

Rep. Martina White, a Philadelphia Republican and prime sponsor of the two articles of impeachment, told a press conference following the committee's vote on Tuesday:

I suspect that we will have bipartisan support for this effort as we have thus far. The investigation and holding Larry Krasner in contempt was bipartisan.

Tomorrow, I believe this will also be bipartisan because the people of Philadelphia deserve better than what they receive out of the district attorney's office.

He has not been doing his job well enough for us, endangering the lives of citizens that he's supposed to serve and protect by prosecuting criminals and making sure that they're convicted guilty, should the evidence be there.

But that's not what's happening right now. The district attorney is basically withdrawing cases at an unprecedented level.

The investigation to which she referred — the Second Interim Report by the Select Committee on Restoring Law and Order — opened with this:

The Select Committee begins this Second Interim Report by summarizing the statistics with respect to the increase in the number of homicide victims—between January 1, 2021, and

New American

Written by Bob Adelmann on November 16, 2022

October 16, 2022, 992 people have died as a result of a homicide in Philadelphia.

This is a stark increase to the 557 deaths resulting from homicides in 2015 to 2016 combined. [Emphasis in original.]

The report attributed the increase — Hosea's "whirlwind" — directly to the policies of the district attorney and his office:

It is no secret that the DAO [district attorney's office] and DA Krasner's progressive policies are the focus of criticism with respect to the increasing crime rate, the handling of criminal cases, and the abject failure to respond, in any meaningful way, to the current crisis....

Between 2017 and September of 2022, 81% of non-fatal shootings and 61.5% of fatal shootings did not result in arrests of the shooters.

However, most troubling to the Select Committee, is what happens after arrests are made—the DAO's prosecution, or lack thereof. The DAO categorizes violent offenses as homicides, nonfatal shootings, rape, robberies, aggravated assault, and other forms of assault.

To date in 2022, 65% of all violent offenses have been withdrawn by the DAO or dismissed by the courts, resulting in no prosecution for those crimes. [Emphasis in original.]

Criminals are emboldened by the new policies, says the report:

The Select Committee has learned that while a prosecutor's discretion to enforce criminal laws is broad, the most powerful impact of that discretion is a prosecutor's decision not to prosecute a case.

The Select Committee shares Philadelphia Police [Commissioner] Danielle Outlaw's outrage that arrests in Philadelphia are not leading to criminals being removed from the streets.

No doubt, Philadelphia criminals are emboldened by the knowledge that (a) the likelihood that they will be arrested is slim, and (b) once caught, the likelihood that they will be prosecuted and incarcerated is minimal. [Emphasis in original.]

Pennsylvania's state constitution says that Krasner can be impeached and removed from office if convicted "for any misbehavior in office." Assuming the full House approves the committee's vote, Krasner's future as DA moves to the Republican-controlled Senate for trial.
