Pro-abortion Outfit Claims Credit for Terrorist Attack on Pro-Life Group

Police are investigating a supposed pro-abortion terrorist or terrorist outfit that claimed credit for firebombing and attempting to burn down a pro-life group's headquarters in Madison, Wisconsin.

Early on May 8, Wisconsin Family Action employees found their offices damaged by fire, along with dud Molotov Cocktails and pro-abortion graffiti on the outside of the building.

Yesterday, a freelance writer received a message from the group Jane's Revenge, which took responsibility for the attempted bombing and promised a nationwide terror campaign if pro-life organizations don't close their doors.

The attempted bombing followed last week's leak of an expected decision from the U.S. Supreme Court that will overturn Roe v. Wade, the decision that struck down abortion laws in all 50 states in 1973.

A journalist reports receiving a statement from a group that claimed credit for the attack at an anti-abortion clinic and warned of more, if its demands are not met.

Firebomb, Arson

The terrorists attacked with two Molotov cocktails, police said, but neither exploded. That plan having failed, the pro-abortion extremists, or extremist, tried to burn down the building.

"A passerby first reported seeing flames at the WFA building, in the 2800 block of Industrial Lane, around 6 a.m.," NBC15 in Madison reported:

When the Madison Fire Department and officers arrived, they noted a ground-level window had been broken. Firefighters were able to extinguish the fire within five minutes.

Two Molotov cocktails were found at the scene and investigators are working to determine what type of liquid was used in the devices.

Outside, the terrorist(s) left a warning: "If abortions aren't safe, you aren't either."

The Madison Police Department is aware of a group claiming responsibility for the arson at Wisconsin Family Action. We are working with our federal partners to determine the veracity of that claim.

Jane's Revenge, which riffs of the pro-abortion Jane Collective of the 1970s, published a mad rant titled "First Communique" that claimed credit for the potentially fatal attack. Free-lancer Robert Evans tweeted it yesterday.

"This is not a declaration of war," it begins. "War has been upon us for decades. A war which we did not want, and did not provoke."

Actually, they did provoke it, but that aside, the manifesto threatened "military" retaliation. "Too long have we been attacked for asking for basic medical care. Too long have we been shot, bombed, and forced into childbirth without consent," it continued:

This was only a warning. We demand the disbanding of all anti-choice establishments, fake clinics, and violent anti-choice groups within the next thirty days. This is not a mere "difference of opinion" as some have framed it. We are literally fighting for our lives. We will not sit still while we are killed and forced into servitude. We have run thin on patience and mercy for those who seek to strip us of what little autonomy we have left. As you continue to bomb clinics and assassinate doctors with impunity, so too shall we adopt increasingly extreme tactics to maintain freedom over our own bodies.

We are forced to adopt the minimum military requirement for a political struggle. Again, this was only a warning. Next time the infrastructure of the enslavers will not survive. Medical imperialism will not face a passive enemy. Wisconsin is the first flashpoint, but we are all over the US, and we will issue no further warnings.

And we will not stop, we will not back down, nor will we hesitate to strike until the inalienable right to manage our own health is returned to us.

We are not one group, but many. We are in your city. We are in every city. Your repression only strengthens our accomplice-ship and resolve.

The statement was sent to me through an anonymous intermediary I trust. It is hosted on a Tor site (link to follow). The statement is titled "first communique" and opens with the words, "This is not a declaration of war". <https://t.co/5ZhcDHIA7A>

Whether the group exists, or whether the fire is work of a pro-life hoaxer, is unknown.

Homes Targeted

The expected end of Roe, which will not outlaw abortion but simply permit states to regulate it, has also inspired pro-abortion fanatics to march on the homes of SCOTUS Associate Justices Samuel Alito and Brett Kavanaugh. Alito wrote the decision; Kavanaugh, most assume, will join it.

The marchers have made it to what appears to be Justice Kavanaugh's house.
