“Trans Woman,” Self-Described “Vampire,” Convicted in Sex Assault, Charged With First-degree Murder

A Wisconsin court has convicted a “trans woman” for sexually assaulting a mentally disabled girl in Waukesha, Wisconsin, in 2021. But this case involves the undead.

One Adam Hetke, Reduux reported, is a serial sex offender whose “trans” identity is that of a vampire called Sabrina.

The conviction is just the latest in a series of violent crimes by “trans women,” meaning men who cross-dress and pretend they are the opposite sex. And career criminal Hetke strangled someone to death, cops allege.

The Crime

Hetke’s latest outrage was particularly vile.

In July 2021, authorities charged him with “first-degree sexual assault by threatening the use of a dangerous weapon and second-degree sexual assault of a mentally ill victim,” the “trans”-tracking website observed.

Hetke met the 16-year-old at a filling station:

According to the complaint, Hetke terrified the girl, telling her he was a “vampire” who would harm her if she did not comply with his demands. He then followed her to her nearby home and sexually assaulted her. During the assault, Hetke kept a knife nearby and threatened to use it to harm her before the girl jumped out of a bedroom window and fled for help.

When he was arrested, he was wearing a one-piece swimsuit under his clothes and was holding a knife.

The two-count conviction came on April 11 after the court decided that the man-lady-vampire could not claim insanity, even if his claim to be one of Dracula’s daughters does make him sound as nutty as a jar of Planters.

Hetke is one of the many dangerous criminals that American justice released into society after a sex crime.

“Hetke is a registered sex offender in the state of Wisconsin, dating back to a 2007 conviction for second degree sexual assault,” Reduux continued. In that case, he attacked a woman while he was staying at a “residential facility.” He landed an eight-year prison sentence, four years on extended supervision, and a life-spot on the state sex-offender registry.

As everyone expected, after Waukesha cops warned the public that Hetke was a “high risk” to commit another such crime, the malignant spirit struck again.

Despite wearing a GPS tracker, Hetke sexually assaulted a second woman in 2019. He was again released in 2020, the website continued. Another “police bulletin again noted that Hetke was homeless and would be subjected to GPS monitoring, but also indicated that Hetke had begun identifying as a ‘woman.’”

That Hetke might murder someone was hardly wild conjecture. And sure enough, “following his second release from prison, Hetke was allegedly involved in a homicide in Milwaukee, for which he has yet to stand trial,” Reduux reported:

According to the complaint in that case, Hetke reportedly strangled a man to death using a power cord in April of 2021, though he apparently blamed the murder on a “demon.” He told Milwaukee police that the victim was “possessed by a demon” and began stabbing himself in the chest with tongs.

Hetke said he was only trying to exorcise the demon from the victim, but that the demon caused the victim to wrap a cord around his own neck and pull the ends. But a witness in that case has testified that Hetke admitted to murdering the man because he “disrespected” him, and that Hetke told the witness he was an incarnation of Satan.

That charge, court records show, is first-degree intentional homicide.

The upshot is that, after his second release from prison, Hetke not only sexually assaulted a third victim, but also allegedly murdered someone.

News reports through the last year suggest that “trans women” are prone to sex and violent crime. As The New American reported early this month, also citing Reduux, Jason Lee Willie, who goes by Alexia, pleaded guilty to threatening crimes on social media.

Willie threatened a mass shooting, that he would rape Christian girls, and that he would bomb black churches in the name of “transgender rights.”

In late March, Reduux divulged that in 2022, a “trans woman” inmate in Washington state raped a female prisoner after officials imprudently granted his wish to be incarcerated in a women’s facility.

Also in March, cops in Canada arrested a “trans woman” on child-porn charges, and in July last year, federal authorities charged a former New Hampshire legislator, “Stacie Marie” Laughton, on child-porn and exploitation charges.
