Chasten Buttigieg on Video Grooming Kids With Pledge to Rainbow Flag

Chasten Buttigieg, the “husband” of U.S. Transportation Secretary Pete Buttigieg, is a child groomer.

Video from 2019 that surfaced in multiple reports this week depicts the effeminate man mocking the Pledge of Allegiance to the U.S. flag by having kids pledge to the rainbow flag.

Chasten Buttigieg, whose real surname is Giezman, appeared at the event on behalf Iowa Safe Schools, a pro-homosexual and “transgender” outfit that seeks to cement in children the false belief that they’re disordered desires and beliefs are “normal.”

LGBTQ Pledge

The pledge video is a frightening picture of the homosexual movement’s success in grooming kids.

“I pledge my heart, to the rainbow, of the Not So Typical gay camp, one camp, full of pride, indivisible, with affirmation and equal rights for all,” Chasten says with the kids repeating after him.

It was recorded, the Post Millennial reported, at the Iowa Safe Schools Annual Governor’s Conference on LGBTQ Youth.

The kids cheered when the pledge ended. Buttigieg — again, real surname Giezman — waved a rainbow flag, the banner under which homosexual activists and other sex deviants march.

He appeared at the event while the man he lives with, Pete Buttigieg, was running for president.

“At the camp, Buttigieg gave a short interview about being on the campaign trail with husband Buttigieg, who was running to be the Democrat nominee for president that year,” PM reported.

“Being out on the trail gives me the opportunity to do things like this,” Chasten Buttigieg said. “Like, puts the wind in my sails.”

PM reported that Buttigieg, a middle school teacher, “made a sexual joke.”

The pledge video is so radical, and Buttigieg’s performance so disturbing, that even the Log Cabin Republicans, a GOP subsidiary for homosexuals, denounced it: “Whatever this is, we don’t want it. Hands off, @Chasten.”

The homosexual teacher also delivered a 13-minute speech to groom kids at Iowa Safe Schools’ “LGBTQ Virtual Graduation on June 26, 2020.” One of the speakers was a “queerdictorian.”

“As I’m sure some of you can imagine or maybe you even had seen or read, I myself field criticism from all over, including from extremely far-right conservative figures like Rush Limbaugh, who love to question whether the country was ready or not to see a presidential candidate kiss his husband on stage,” he said:

And the answer, of course, is yes, the country is ready because Pete won Iowa. But that’s besides the point. Don’t let distractions and the nastygrams of the homophobes or the transphobes get in your way. They are just roadblocks . Go around them.

Unsafe Schools

As bad as Buttigieg’s access to kids may be, that of Iowa Safe Schools is more dangerous.

“Much of the Twitter feed for Iowa Safe Schools is about the T, and not the LGB, of the acronym,” PM reported. The grooming outfit pushes a dangerous curriculum to brainwash kids into thinking they are either homosexuals, “transgender,” or “nonbinary.”

“The curriculum kit brings a variety of books to schools, including those aimed at kindergarteners, to let them know that their minds may be disassociated from their bodies, such as Jacob’s New Dress,” PM reported:

There are shirts for sale as well on the Iowa Safe Schools site, with the motto “you can pee next to me,” “2 4 6 8 how do you know your kid is straight?” and “guys, gals & non-binary pals.”

The table of contents for The Schoolwide Pride Guide: High School Edition, has chapters on “The Genderbread Person,” “Understanding Privilege,” and the history of Pride. It instructs teachers on how they can go about “Facilitating Complex Conversations and Civil Discourse,” how to form queer books clubs and what books to include, as well as how teachers can start GSAs, or “gay straight alliance” clubs.

Whether Pete Buttigieg, who presumably wears the pants in the family, will stop his “husband’s” nationwide grooming campaign, at least to end the negative publicity, remains to be seen.

Sadly, the “Buttigiegs” were permitted to adopt two infants to complete the charade they can be “fathers” and have a “family.”
