Company Fires Concerned Mom Who Spoke Against Perverted Sex-ed Curriculum

Organized Grooming, Inc., pressured a concerned mother's employer to fire her because she spoke against a perverted sex-ed curriculum.

Janet Roberson, who worked for the real estate giant Compass, says the company pink-slipped her after a top "progressive" Democrat notified the company about her short speech before the school board in Benicia, California.

Roberson is "hateful," groomer ally Nathalie Christian wrote in an email to the company. Roberson's "hate" involved exposing the school board's sex-ed curriculum aimed at grooming kids to be perverts and "transgenders."

Her other crime is running a conservative website that exposes the city's relentless promotion of sexual perversion and critical race theory.

The Meeting

Roberson doesn't want that propaganda shoved down the throats of the three kids she has in the schools.

Though parents can opt kids out of the grooming curriculum, Roberson observed at the board meeting on April 20, parents "have a big concern with what is now being taught to children as young as 10 in Benicia, such as children are being asked to identify their pronouns":

And this is now part of the ten-year-old curriculum. This forces a gender discussion beyond the scope of the state requirements and complicates an already overburdened classroom environment. We are alarmed that gender identity is now being discussed in math classes.

Even arithmetic isn't safe from the groomers.

"Teaching kids that there isn't any standard or truth and that you can believe anything you want to believe is not scientifically accurate or medically correct," she continued:

For example, the notion that a girl can decide to be a boy, or a boy can decide to be a girl, is not true and should not be taught. The new curriculum teaches that individuals can decide if they're male or female, regardless of anatomy, does not explain that a boy cannot menstruate, and a girl cannot impregnate someone. This is not scientific or medically accurate.

Our 10-year-olds will now be taught that they can receive puberty blockers to prevent their body from going through changes that make them uncomfortable. All humans are uncomfortable during adolescence. To teach vulnerable children that a lifetime of dependence on medical care is a viable option is completely unacceptable and evil.

As well, 12-year-olds will learn about oral and anal sex, which she said violates the law.

When parents asked questions, they were told the "curriculum removes the idea of male and female ... to be more inclusive."

Claiming that one's "gender" is a "choice" is nonsense, she said. "People are not gender fluid and to teach our children this is not OK. We're appalled that the school district has adopted this curriculum."

Letters Sent

Roberson's sober commentary turned one area man pink with rage. In a letter to the editor to the Vallejo Times-Herald in nearby Vallejo, he complained that Roberson favors "eugenics," and fretted about her website, BeniciaFreedom.org. He called Roberson and other concerned parents Nazis.

"One hopes that these spiritual sons and daughters of Hitler are but a small-minded and small-numbered minority within the city of Benicia," he wrote.

Christian, who isn't one, used that missive and other material in her note to Compass.

Roberson uses "incendiary language" to "further her agenda, which I describe as anti-equity, anti-trans, anti-Black, and anti-choice," Christian wrote. And "it seems unfair to me that Compass, whose [Diversity, Equity, and Inclusion] policies I have reviewed at length, would be associated with such a hateful person."

Treasurer for the "Progressive Democrats of Benicia" — "Progressive Democrats" being code for communists — Christian closed her defamatory note with more deranged rhetoric:

The public deserves to know how Compass can reign [sic] in someone's internalized hate for transgender kids and equity-seeking Black Americans (and especially Black children) so Compass clients can have a fair and decent experience when buying and selling property. I shudder.

Compass surrendered to the groomer mob and fired Roberson.

When Libs of TikTok posted to X about it, even Elon Musk responded. "Compass, did you really fire this person for this reason?" he wrote.

Compass, which said Roberson was an independent contractor, confirmed to Fox News that “the decision to disassociate her license was made at the request of her team leader in late April 2023.”

Roberson’s story went viral when Jonathan Zachreson publicized it on X.

“This well-mannered mom spoke at the @BeniciaUSD board meeting, expressing concern the new sex-ed curriculum was teaching 10 year-olds they could choose their own gender,” he wrote. “Within days, a group formally affiliated with @TheDemocrats contacted her work, demanded and successfully got her fired.”

“They called me a hateful bigot, a Nazi, a daughter of Hitler, and repeatedly identified me as a Compass real estate agent, although I never mentioned I was a real estate agent or that I worked for Compass,” Roberson explained in a video about her ordeal.

For challenging the groomers and their curriculum, “the bullies in Benicia decided I should be fired. And you know what, Compass, a powerful national company who could have stood up for me and my American right to voice my opinion as a mom at a school board meeting, caved to the bullies’ demands.”
