Globalists Mobilize “Woke” Soccer to Attack Hungary for Heroic Stance Against EU’s LGBTQ Onslaught on Children, Parents, Family

The relentless assault on Hungary’s pro-Christian nationalism has gone nuclear. European Union politicians, together with leftist media organizations and globalist corporations, have mobilized “woke” sports teams to join in condemning Hungary for defending its Christian heritage and the rights of children, parents, and families against forced LGBTQ indoctrination. The Germany-Hungary match of the Euro 2020* soccer tournament on June 23 in Munich provided the latest excuse for an anti-Hungary eruption.

In the lead-up to the game, the Munich city government called for the Allianz Arena, where the match was played, to be lit up in rainbow colors to protest Hungary’s new legislation that bans dissemination in schools of propaganda for homosexuality and sex change. International “human rights” groups denounced the Hungarian law. UN Secretary General Antonio Guterres called it “totally unacceptable.” Seventeen EU leaders, including Germany’s Angela Merkel, France’s Emmanuel Macron and Italy’s Mario Draghi, signed a letter blasting the law as “a flagrant form of discrimination” that “deserves to be condemned,” and vowing to fight discrimination against LGBTQ people. On Thursday, June 25, the day after the match, EU leaders ganged up on Hungarian Prime Minister Viktor Orban during an EU summit in Brussels. According to participants, Orban was subjected to non-stop blistering harangues during the day-long session that were characterized as “strident,” “unprecedented,” and “extraordinary.”

“Orban was virtually isolated as most of his 26 counterparts rounded on him in what one EU official described as an ‘in-depth and at times even emotional debate,’” The International Business Times (IBT) reported.

The most strident, according to IBT was Dutch Prime Minister Mark Rutte, who told journalists, “for me, Hungary has no place in the EU anymore.” So much for tolerance, diversity, and inclusivity; if you don’t embrace our “diversity” — and every latest permutation and invention we come up with — you’re out, banished, evil! Inside the summit, Rutte reportedly told Orban, “You have passed the line. This time it is too much.”

Belgian Prime Minister Alexander De Croo joined the slugfest, reportedly telling Orban, “Being homosexual is not a choice. Being homophobic is a choice. We cannot accept a legislation that is legitimising such a behaviour.” Luxembourg’s Prime Minister Xavier Bettel, the only openly homosexual leader at the summit, told the Hungarian prime minister, “You’ve crossed a red line.”

Ireland’s Taoiseach (prime minister) Micheál Martin said there has to be “strong moral pressure from the rest of Europe on what has transpired” in Hungary. “In addition to that,” Martin said, “every avenue has to be explored in terms of the legal framework in Europe to pursue this issue. Moral pressure does matter but also asserting European values matters on an issue so fundamental as this.”

Authoritarian, fascist, racist, right-wing extremist, Islamophobic, homophobic, white supremacist, Nazi — these are some of the more common epithets regularly thrown at Orban and Hungary by the Eurocrats and the press. Of course, Joe Biden went even further, during an ABC Town Hall in 2020, referring to Poland and Hungary as “totalitarian” governments, a label he and the media don’t have the honesty or integrity to apply even to a truly totalitarian regimes such as Communist China.

European Commission President Ursula von der Leyen called the Hungarian law “a shame” and said that she would challenge it before the European Court of Justice. Orban was described as “characteristically defiant” at the summit, claiming that the media and EU leaders have misrepresented the legislation.

“This is not against homosexuality,” Orban noted. “It’s about the right of the kids and the parents,” he said. “It’s about how a child learns about sexuality... and decisions about that are exclusively the business of parents,” he said.

But the “tolerance” mafia insist that LGBTQ adults not only have the right to engage in whatever perverse behavior they wish to engage in with each other, but also have the right to propagandize, groom, and recruit other people’s children as well. Refusal to acquiesce to these demands is evidence of “homophobia” and anti-gay “hatred.”

Amazingly, considering all the political pressure brought to bear, the European football governing body UEFA turned down the Munich City Council request to bathe the Allianz Arena with rainbow lighting. In a statement, the organization denounced “homophobia” as “a stain on our societies.” “However,” it noted, “UEFA, through its statutes, is a politically and religiously neutral organization. Given the political context of this specific request — a message aiming at a decision taken by the Hungarian national parliament — UEFA must decline this request.”

UEFA proposed instead for Munich to light up the stadium either on June 28, to commemorate Christopher Street Liberation Day or between July 3 and July 9, which is Christopher Street Week in Munich, celebrating the first Gay Pride Parade in New York City in 1970.

Munich Mayor Dieter Reiter said the UEFA's refusal to illuminate the stadium was "shameful" but the city "won't let ourselves be discouraged from sending a clear signal to Hungary and the world." The city government, joined by LGBTQ militants, festooned Munich with rainbow flags, and mobs of rainbow-clad activists flooded Munich and the Allianz Arena vicinity. Hungarian fans were hooted and heckled on the one hand, or offered rainbow flags on the other. As the kickoff for the Germany-Hungary match was about to take place, a protestor waving a rainbow flag invaded the field and had to be tackled by security personnel. In light of the explosive intolerance of the LGBTQ mob and the anti-Hungary agitation, Prime Minister Orban chose not to attend the game, even though he is a big football fan and wanted to cheer his countrymen on.

Globalist Gang-up: Trilateralists, CFR, ECFR, WEF, EU

The Allianz Arena has been rainbow-lit in the past to show support for LGBTQ causes. Allianz SE, the Munich-based insurance giant, bought the naming rights to the stadium and is a major force pushing "progressive" social-political causes in Munich, in Bavaria, in Germany, in the EU, and globally. Allianz SE is the world's largest insurance company. It is also the world's largest financial services company, including among its assets Allianz Global Investors, Allianz Real Estate, PIMCO, and a controlling interest in Commerzbank, Germany's second-largest bank. Allianz CEO Oliver Bate is a member of the elite Trilateral Commission. So is Claudia Parzani, Chairman of Milan-based subsidiary Allianz S.p.A. So is Ludovic Subran, head of macroeconomic research for Allianz in Paris.

Before Coming to Allianz in 2008, Oliver Bate spent two decades with Wall St. insider firm McKinsey & Company — another player heavily represented in David Rockefeller's Trilateral Commission, as well as on the rosters of Trilateral sister organizations, such as the Council on Foreign Relations (CFR), European Council on Foreign Relations (ECFR), Chatham House, and the World Economic Forum (WEF).

Allianz is a major player at WEF events and has made a big deal of virtue signaling on all the woke corporate pet projects: The Global Reset, sustainable development, climate change, LGBTQ+ rights, "inclusive capitalism," transparency, human rights, open borders/migration rights, etc. Of course, as with the rest of the corporate globalist bullies, Allianz is a complete fraud. While these massive corporations and their paid pols scream outrage over Hungary and Poland exercising their national sovereignty, protecting their borders, and defending children from sexual predators, seducers, and propagandists, they say not a word about the genuinely totalitarian (and murderous) regime in Beijing. Or, if they drop an occasional critical word about some over-the-top offence by Xi and the Chinese Communist Party, it is just that - a word - with zero substantive follow-up action. In fact, its even worse than that, since the Wall Street plutocrats actually reward China's brutality, while punishing Poland and Hungary, which are paradises in comparison.

Like Goldman Sachs, JPMorgan Chase, BlackRock, Blackstone, Carlyle Group, McKinsey & Company and other gold-plated, government-favored, crony-capitalist outfits, Allianz has been "all in" on China for years. It has opened offices in Beijing, Guangdong, Shanghai, and Shenzhen. Allianz was one of the 100+ corporate titans that ponied up financial and technical support for the World Economic Forum's partnership with the CCP for its Annual Meeting of the New Champions 2018 in Tianjin, China. Allianz has set up partnerships and business relations with China's giant state-owned enterprises, such as CITIC Group, and lesser known companies, such as China Sinda, Shenzhen Huijing Tongda, JD.com, and Shanghai Snow Light Capital.

countries like Hungary (population 9.7 million) and Poland (population 38.5 million) for alleged “sins” against politically correct dogma, while snuggling up to genocidal Communist China (population 1.4+ billion), which holds millions of political prisoners, holds millions more in slave labor camps, persecutes all religious believers, devastates the world with viruses, harvests organs from dissidents, subjects all Chinese to Orwellian surveillance, monitors and censors all media and communications, steals inventions and technology, engages in large-scale espionage, infiltration, and propaganda, pursues global domination, and in dozens of other ways offends humanity and threatens world peace and freedom.

Thankfully, (and amazingly) Hungary and Poland show no signs of backing down. They are taking courageous stands against incredible odds. They deserve our whole-hearted and full-throated support.

Note: Due to COVID restrictions, Euro 2020 was canceled, so the “2020” designation has been rolled over to 2021. The same is true for the Olympics, which, although taking place in 2021, are being called the Tokyo 2020 Games.*
