Colin Gunn on Public Education (Video)

Colin Gunn, director of the film IndoctriNation, shares his thoughts on how to improve the public education system, which affects the majority of America's youths today. Gunn points out the failures of public education and the fact that from a biblical standpoint, the state does not have the authority to educate children, only parents do. He also discusses his documentary IndoctriNation, which he says can be used as a grassroots tool to inform people on the problems with public education in this country.
