Cops Arrest Teacher Who Vaxxed Kid Without Parental Consent. Jab Caught On Video

It's not enough that Branch Cavidian school personnel are vaccinating kids with the China Virus elixir without parental consent.

Now, it's happening at home — and unqualified amateurs are doing the jabs.

Cops in Long Island, New York, have arrested a biology teacher who inoculated a 17-year-old in her home without permission from the victim's parents.

Vaccinating young kids goes directly against the advice of mRNA vax pioneer Robert E. Malone, who has warned that the risk of post-vax heart and other serious side effects is greater than the risk of harm by the virus.

“Reassigned”

The latest attack on parental rights occurred on or about New Year's Eve, NBC4 in New York reported.

The teacher who police allege injected the boy is Laura Russo, 54, who works in the Herricks Public Schools.

“The individual in question is a district employee who has been removed from the classroom and reassigned pending the outcome of the investigation,” the schools told the station:

Authorities allege Russo had a vial of an approved COVID-19 vaccine in her home, though police didn't say where she got it. According to officials, her son had a friend over and the friend asked for the vaccine because his mother allegedly didn't want to have him inoculated against COVID at this point. The teenager told his mother when he got home that he had gotten the vaccine. She notified the police.

In a video obtained exclusively by News 4, the woman appears to give the teenager a dose of Johnson & Johnson, a vaccine only approved for Americans 18 years and older. Investigators want to know how Russo may have obtained the shot.

That vaccine has been linked to blood clots, and the vaccines in general have been linked to myocarditis and serious heart conditions in the young.

A doctor explained why what Russo did was wrong.

“Besides being illegal, it’s just not a smart thing to do. An authorized, licensed professional should be providing vaccines to know how to give them properly to make sure if there’s a complication that can be dealt with immediately and very efficiently,” Aaron Glatt told the station.

But Russo “is not a medical professional, nor is her husband,” the station reported, citing officials.

Her husband must wonder what Russo was thinking when she decided to vaccinate someone, while others must wonder why a teacher caught on tape and arrested for inoculating a kid was “reassigned” and not fired.

Russo is due in court this month.

Don’t Vax Kids

This isn’t the first case of public-school officials taking matters into their own hands where the jab is concerned.

In December, a mother in Los Angeles alleged that a woman at the Barack Obama Global Prep Academy school in South Los Angeles, presumably a nurse, vaccinated her son after bribing him with pizza, then told him not to tell anyone.

“The lady that gave him the shot and signed the paper was the one who told my son ‘please do not say anything, I don’t want to get into trouble,’” the woman alleged.

The mother didn’t want her son vaccinated because he suffers from allergies.

In October, a mom in New Orleans hired an attorney to file a lawsuit because her son was vaccinated at his high school in a hospital mobile vax unit. The boy signed the vax permission himself, and officials, apparently, didn’t validate it. School and hospital officials have admitted the error.

Recently booted from Twitter for posting research about the harm vaccines are causing, Dr. Malone has specifically advised parents not to vaccinate kids:

The leftist social media giant suspended Malone yesterday, almost certainly because he outspokenly opposes vaccinating children and young adults. In most cases, they have nothing to fear from the Asiatic pathogen. <https://t.co/Ev7XlOR1Dr>

“This is not normal,” Malone wrote in a now-deleted tweet about serious side effects from the vaccines, including myocarditis:

These damages are irreversible. Including death. ASK YOURSELF — do you want to take the risk of causing your child to have heart damage after taking a vaccine to prevent a disease that poses minimal risks?

Some 183 athletes have died after receiving the vaccine. Viral video shows young, healthy athletes dropping to the ground with chest pain.
