FDA Employee: Blow Dart Unvaxxed with COVID Shots

An employee with the Food and Drug Administration (FDA) was caught on camera advocating forced vaccination for minorities and “low-IQ” Americans, and a Nazi-style register of the unvaccinated.

On Thursday, Project Veritas released a second part of its exposé on potential problems with the experimental gene therapeutics, aka “COVID vaccines,” and the methods the government employs to inoculate as many people as possible.

On the video, FDA economist Taylor Lee tells an undercover reporter that the federal government could use a covert approach in getting the population vaccinated against its will — after all, it is only for the “common good” of “returning back to normal.”

Blow dart the unvaxxed

Blacks

The first part of Lee’s plan includes blow-darting African Americans with the vaccine to increase a vaccination rate in this vaccine-stubborn cohort.

Lee explains that since the beginning of the vaccine trials, there was a major problem in even recruiting black volunteers. That is explained by the group’s deep mistrust of experimental medicine. Lee recalls an instance of the government exploiting blacks in their medical experiments, possibly referring to the so-called Tuskegee study (originally called “Tuskegee Study of Untreated Syphilis in the Negro Male”), when 600 black men who had syphilis were not given treatment so that the doctors could study what happened to their bodies as a result of the disease for over 40 years. Back then, the participants’ informed consent was not collected.

There were other instances of medically unethical treatment of blacks that led to them developing an extremely cautious attitude when it comes to the government pushing experimental drugs on them.

As of September 22, 26.6% of black people were fully vaccinated, and 30.4% received one dose, being the least vaccinated racial group in America.

While Lee admitted that the hesitancy may be understandable, “at the same time — blow-dart,” he said, shaking his head confidently and adding: “That’s where we’re going.”

Whites

So that the feds are not accused of racism, Lee said “We’ll go for the whites first.” Lee entertained an idea of hiring Amazonians to put their blow-dart skills to use and “get it done,” and implied that getting such people to America would not be a challenge.

Lee insisted that blow-darting people with Johnson and Johnson shots would be a great solution and a “perfect answer,” because the population would be covered with “something.” Since the shot, unlike Pfizer and Moderna, does not use mRNA technology, it would not “counteract with anything” and presumably, would not harm the recipient.

“So just shoot everyone!” Lee said.

People with low IQ

White uneducated people with low intelligence quotient “like those in Alabama” must get a shot. “Apparently you need an IQ test. And if you fall below a certain level of IQ, you’re getting a shot.” It remained unclear whether Lee propagated for the population control among “stupid” Americans while allowing the “smart” ones to forgo the jab, or whether he assumed that all the “smart” ones were already inoculated.

Drones to the rescue

The reporter wondered if the government had a technology, maybe some sort of miniature blow darts, to execute such a plan. Lee explained that the drones could dart people with the jabs. “Easy!” he said.

“The funding is there,” Lee assured the reporter, as he continued: “It’s terrible. But at this point, ... I don’t care about your bodily autonomy, because it’s not just your bodily autonomy that you’re putting in jeopardy.”

Go door-to-door and stab everyone

Lee further stated that the government had a necessary “infrastructure” to go door-to-door to compile a registry of unvaccinated Americans. He also implied that they may be blow-darted on the spot.

“Census goes door-to-door if you don’t answer, so we have the infrastructure to do it,” he said. Even though it would cost a “ton of money,” at that point, Lee believes, there needs to be “a registry of people who aren’t vaccinated.”

“I know it sounds like [Nazi] Germany, Lee said, but if the feds start simply distributing jabs to the public — “handing out vaccines,” like Lee put it — he said that he would go door-to-door and “just stab everyone.”

Cost of human life and politics

Lee explained that the top FDA officials think in political and economic terms when it comes to the decision-making. He said that as long as the government makes more money on vaccinating people than losing money due to people dying because of the vaccines, it would be economically reasonable to proceed with vaccinations.

While Lee stated that most entry- and mid-level employees at the FDA do their work as scientists, the top level of the regulatory agency consists of political appointees, “usually scientific advisors,” whose careers depend on “other people staying in power.” Therefore, they are actively engaged in politics, which for them is far more important than science.
