Biden Releases “Migrants” With China Virus Along Border. Carriers Board Buses for Heartland, Eastern Seaboard

The Biden administration has released more than 100 illegal aliens who carry the potentially fatal China Virus into the population without regard to how many Americans might get sick and/or die.

That bad news comes on top of last month’s report that the administration began importing more than 20,000 “migrants” who want asylum in the United States.

And in the two weeks before March 1, Biden irresponsibly freed 350 possibly-diseased illegals into Yuma, Arizona.

Hondurans With the WuFlu

Biden began waging germ warfare on Americans on January 20 with a blitz of executive orders rescinding his predecessor’s policies and that opened the borders to the relentless, marching army of Central Americans.

Biden certainly knows thousands might carry the virus. Nonetheless, he has ordered them released, virus regardless, NBC reported on Tuesday. That means Biden is releasing illegals into the heartland without regard to whom they might infect with a potentially deadly contagion. The total so far is at least 108.

Meanwhile, Americans who don’t cooperate with masking and lockdowns, Biden said on Monday, are thinking like “Neanderthals.”

That would not, apparently, include his own immigration officials.

“Miriam Izaguirre, a 35-year-old asylum-seeker from Honduras, crossed the Rio Grande at dawn Monday with her young son and turned herself in to the authorities,” NBC reported.

But, of course, she was released, and at the Brownsville bus station, tested positive for the Chinese Virus, NBC reported. She was not however, quarantined, as public authorities have demanded of Americans:

“Right now we were tested for Covid and they separated about eight of us because we were positive,” she told Noticias Telemundo Investiga. “We are waiting right now.” She was waiting to catch a bus to Houston.

Other migrant families who also said they had tested positive were waiting to go to other destinations: North Carolina, Maryland and New Jersey.

And why is that? Because the border city in Texas “does not have the authority to retain these migrants who plan to travel to dozens of cities throughout the country,” NBC reported. All the city can do is “recommend” the illegals quarantine and head for “migrant” shelters.

The migrants, though, selfishly ignore that advice and travel deeper into the American heartland, NBC reported:

Several of the asylum-seekers who tested positive told Noticias Telemundo Investiga they were planning to leave Brownsville for their destinations; one of them bought a bus ticket for the journey.

Eva Orellana, 29, who is from Honduras and who tested positive, said she was going to take the bus to North Carolina with her 3-year-old daughter. “On the way, we were wearing a mask all the time, gel, washing our hands,” she said. “Really, I don’t feel anything.”

Those who tested positive and spoke to Telemundo did not have any document indicating their Covid-19 test results; they said they were simply told by the station workers after taking the test.

How many of the 25,000 “migrants” Biden began importing in February carry the Asiatic pathogen might never be known. On Tuesday, Axios reported that Biden plans to import more than 117,000 “child migrants” alone.

Yuma Flood

Meanwhile, Yuma, Arizona, is again the scene of an illegal-alien invasion, the Washington Examiner reported.

The Trump administration dumped almost 6,000 illegals there in 2019, and now Biden is resuming the illegal policy, and on top of the dumping, won’t tell the town whether it intends to test the “migrants” for the virus.

“The Border Patrol released 350 migrants onto the streets of a small Arizona border city over the past two weeks, according to a city official, who anticipates that thousands more people could be released by early spring,” the Examiner reported. City officials are worried because the small municipality does not have the resources to handle the deluge:

Yuma Mayor Douglas Nicholls told the Washington Examiner in an interview that the city lacks the resources, manpower, and money to help the hundreds of people who, because Border Patrol lacks space and transportation, cannot be held or taken to Phoenix, where Immigration and Customs Enforcement would normally detain families. Instead, the federal government is releasing families directly into his community, putting the town of 96,000 residents in a predicament.

Nicholls is worried because he expects the number of people being released to spike, as was the case two years ago. Amid the 2019 humanitarian crisis, the city declared a state of emergency as more than 5,700 migrants were released by Border Patrol, overwhelming the city’s shelters, hospitals, and transportation networks. The city had 300 beds available in shelters and could not keep up with the number of people released into the community each day. The difference now is that the U.S. is still in a pandemic, making holding people more difficult. On top of that, the Biden administration has not revealed if it will test migrants before releasing people from custody, risking the community's health.

Who will be held responsible if the town's elderly American residents are killed in an avoidable contagion is unknown.

Biden might well blame "Neanderthals."
