Articles of Impeachment of Biden Filed by Republicans on Tuesday

Several members of the House of Representatives filed articles of impeachment on Tuesday declaring that Joe Biden's conduct "warrants impeachment and trial, removal from office, and disqualification to hold and enjoy any office of honor, trust, or profit under the United States."

Those House members feel that there are plenty of reasons why the current occupant of the Oval Office should be impeached, including:

- The lack of border enforcement that has let millions of illegals, including many criminals, into the U.S.;
- The handling of the coronavirus pandemic;
- The dreadfully mismanaged and damaging withdrawal of U.S. troops from Afghanistan;
- The unilateral and illegal cancellation of student loan debts;
- The eviction moratorium prohibiting property owners from evicting renters who violate their leases by not paying rent; and
- The "Hunter Biden issue" that the mainstream media continue to ignore.

Said Rep. Bob Good (R-Va.):

I have consistently said President Biden should be impeached for intentionally opening our border and making Americans less safe.

Congress has a duty to hold the President accountable for this and any other failures of his Constitutional responsibilities, so a new Republican majority must be prepared to aggressively conduct oversight on day one.

Previous articles of impeachment, including one filed by conservative firebrand Rep. Marjorie Taylor Greene (R-Ga.) the day after Biden was sworn into office, addressed most of these.

Rep. Andy Biggs (R-Ariz.) thinks Biden isn't the only legitimate target for impeachment:

Mayorkas and Garland have purposefully made our country less safe, politicized their departments, and violated the rule of law. In some instances, they have instructed their subordinates to disobey our laws. That is unacceptable.

Next January I expect the House to pursue my impeachment articles against Mayorkas as well as Congresswoman Marjorie Taylor Greene's impeachment articles that I co-sponsored against Attorney General Merrick Garland.

Steve Bannon, Donald Trump's former advisor, expressed his confidence in January 2022 that Republicans would impeach Biden once they took control of the House starting next January:

You have stood down ICE and you've stood down Border Patrol, and guess what? That's the impeachment hearing I want to hear!

You're going to sit there for day after day and week after week and we're going to bring the witnesses. We're going to bring the witnesses of what you did to this country and what you did on the southern border....

This November is about one thing: it's about impeaching Joe Biden to stop this madness and to stop this illegitimate regime from destroying our nation.

Under the Constitution, only the House can consider impeachment charges, and the Senate has the power to try any impeachments passed by the House. Article I, Section 3, Clauses 6-7 make it clear that

No person shall be convicted without the concurrence of two-thirds of the [Senate] Members present ... and shall not extend further than to removal from office.

The pending "red wave" expected in November won't be sufficient to give Republicans anywhere close to that two-thirds vote required to remove Biden. But if the House does make impeaching the present occupant a priority, it will further enlighten an already-awakening body politic as to the gross violations the present administration has committed and permitted, and set the stage for the presidential election in 2024.
