

Assistant Chief of Police VS Deep State

Millersville, Tennessee Assistant Chief of Police Shawn Taylor discusses with The New American his investigation of child sex trafficking and its ties with elected government officials. Assistant Police Chief Taylor responds to the attacks against him by local news media.

Taylor also reveals that arrests are coming which may shock people. “The simple fact is that the child sex trafficking, here in the United States, is prolific. It goes into our political realm,” Taylor explained. “The money from child sex trafficking-narcotics trafficking is ending up in political coffers, which means that we have some people in office that don’t need to be in office because they are taking money from illicit acts and things of that nature and they’re covering up for these evil people. And that’s just not acceptable.’

Assistant Police Chief Taylor also reveals that based on the tips received and leads from previous arrests that about a hundred more arrests are coming. “The data that we have, that’s coming in, and the data we’re going to be receiving is going to lead to, I would probably say, an estimate there’s probably going to be well over a hundred arrests.”

Taylor confirms that names of political figures and organizations have been identified in the facilitation of child sex trafficking, but cannot reveal who they are at present in order to not jeopardize the ongoing investigation. One of the challenges of the investigation, according to him, is staying within their local municipal jurisdiction. As a result, he explained that the Millersville Police Department will seek court warrants and subpoenas if probable cause is found. He also confirmed that the MPD is in contact with other law enforcement agencies outside of Tennessee and with the attorneys general of other states. “We are actively working toward having law enforcement officials in other states come together and basically build a multi-state taskforce to be able to intercept some of these child traffickers [and] some of these pedophiles.”

If anyone has any credible tips or information that may help to further this investigation, Taylor encourages people to reach out to Veterans for Child Rescue, an organization the MPD is working together with in this investigation.
