Debate Moderator Defended Antifa, Works for Outlet That Hired Denver Killer

So much for fair and objective.

The moderator of a critical race U.S. Senate race in Colorado is employed by the news outlet that hired a supposed “security guard” who murdered a Trump supporter at a rally in Denver on Saturday. Moreover, the moderator, Kyle Clark of 9News, appears to have a record of defending the terrorist group Antifa.

Clark currently hosts a daily news show for the Colorado-based 9News, which recently saw a producer from the investigative unit taken into custody before being released.

As the National Pulse revealed, Clark follows his local Antifa chapter, Colorado Springs Anti-Fascists, on Twitter. Clark has repeatedly insisted in public that fears about Antifa are overblown, asserting in 2018 that the violent group “has been turned into one of the biggest bogeymen in politics.”

There's not a negative connotation with the term Antifa? Now you're being unserious. Antifa has been turned into one of the biggest bogeymen in politics these days.

On another occasion, Clark said that the “far left,” which he equates with “constitutional conservatives” on the Right, are separate from Antifa.

I don't think constitutional conservatives=white nationalists. And I don't think far lefties=Antifa.

The debate is scheduled for October 13. Currently, Democrat challenger John Hickenlooper, the state’s former governor and a brief candidate in the 2020 presidential primaries, appears to have a lead in the polls over incumbent Republican Senator Cory Gardner.

The culprit in the weekend murder, 30-year-old Matthew Dolloff, is a Pinkerton security agent but was not licensed to do security work in the city. He shot and killed 49-year-old Lee Keltner, who had been participating in a pro-police “Patriot Rally” in Denver, Colorado, on Saturday.

Given the circumstances, it’s likely Gardner won’t be getting a fair shake in the debate. But Democrats getting preferential treatment over Republicans in political debates isn’t news. Viewers saw the same happen in the first presidential debate between President Trump and Joe Biden, during which moderator Chris Wallace’s pro-Biden stance at one point prompted the president to note that he was actually debating two people at once — his opponent and the moderator.

It doesn't help that the entity organizing the debates, the Commission on Presidential Debates, is stacked with anti-Trumpers. As TNA previously reported, Antonia Hernandez, who sits on the commission's board of directors, is affiliated with the Berggruen Institute, which has ties to the Chinese Communist Party and to the Transition Integrity Project (TIP), the group that calls for "street fights" to secure a Biden win in the 2020 election.

Additionally, Hernandez served on the Berggruen Institute on Governance Think Long Committee for California alongside founder Nicolas Berggruen; the two worked together with the Youth Policy Institute and participated in panels about "rebooting California's government."

The Berggruen Institute's vice president of programs is Nils Gilman, co-founder of the Transition Integrity Project (TIP). Gilman has openly called for the execution of a former Trump administration official.

TIP claims to be a bipartisan group, yet it is staffed by leftists and NeverTrump Republicans. Its overarching aim is to ensure President Trump doesn't "prematurely" declare himself the winner on election night. To that end, the organization is calling for mass street uprisings after the election.

Thus, from the media to the debate organizers, the establishment voices charged with shaping public opinion about the election are not only favoring Joe Biden, but actively fomenting or at least excusing political violence against supporters of the president. This places the country in a precarious situation in which violence is becoming increasingly likely to break out amid what will no doubt be a contested election, no matter who the winner ultimately is.

Since constitutionalists, patriots, and conservatives cannot trust the mainstream media and traditional gatekeepers to be on the side of truth (the establishment media are still trying to sell the public on the notion that Antifa is not an organization, but an idea), it's more important now than ever before for concerned Americans to obtain the truth through non-establishment channels such as The New American magazine. The war for America's future is, firstly, an information war that must be fought through education.

And when even the social-media channels such as Facebook have vowed to assist in censoring voices declaring a Trump victory on election night, patriots must be prepared to have the deck stacked against them and fight as the underdog in the conflict set to erupt on November 3.
