More Baggage for Hillary: Her Advisor Ordered to Reveal E-mails

Last week a federal judge ordered Hillary Clinton's long-time friend and closest associate, Huma Abedin (shown), to attest, under penalty of perjury, that she has turned over all of her e-mails to the Justice Department. The order also applied to another Clinton aide, Cheryl Mills, who also was using a private e-mail account to do State Department business, just like her boss. But the focus is on Abedin, who has caught flak from many quarters over the years for her and her family's close ties to the Muslim Brotherhood, a Muslim revolutionary organization.

In addition to the judge's order, Senator Chuck Grassley, (R-Iowa), chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee, has been investigating Abedin's employment "arrangement" at the State Department, whereby Abedin also worked for the Clinton Foundation and Teneo, a consulting firm run by a friend of Bill Clinton, Douglas Band.

Grassley's committee has found evidence that Abedin committed theft and fraud by collecting some $33,000 under her unusual "arrangement." Abedin appears to be guilty of a conflict of interest: Abedin responded to a request by Band to encourage President Obama to appoint one Judith Rodin to a White House position. Rodin was not only a client of Teneo, but was also president of the Rockefeller Foundation, which just happened to have contributed millions to the Clinton Foundation. As Grassley noted:

Ms. Abedin allegedly forwarded this email from her official email to her nongovernment email address [which was] located on Secretary Clinton's nongovernment server.

This is but one of several troubling allegations of Ms. Abedin being solicited for, and delivering favors for, preferred individuals.

There are so many pieces and parts to this puzzle that one scarcely knows where to begin. Although Huma was born in Kalamazoo, Michigan, at age two her family moved to Jeddah, Saudi Arabia, so that her father, Zyed Abedin, could go to work for the Institute of Muslim Minority Affairs (IMMA), a Saudi-based think tank. Zyed was recruited by the founder of IMMA, Abdullah Omar Naseef, a major Muslim Brotherhood figure who would, over the years, develop close ties to Osama bin Laden and al-Qaeda.

When Huma returned to the United States to attend George Washington University, she was picked at age 20 to be the "first woman" to then-First Lady Hillary Clinton. Huma has worked for Clinton ever since, in one position or another.

Huma Abedin's connections with Clinton seem suspicious, especially given the revelations brought forth by Walid Shoebat, a former PLO (Palestinian Liberation Organization) terrorist who converted to Christianity and now works to expose the machinations of Islamist groups such as the Muslim Brotherhood, and individuals such as Huma's father.

In August 2012, Shoebat uncovered a manifesto that had been commissioned by the late Saudi King, Fahd bin Abdul Aziz, entitled "The Efforts of the Servant of the Two Holy Places to Support the Muslim Minorities." One of the chapters in that manifesto was written by Zyed. In it he revealed that the manifesto was part of an overall plan to infiltrate and subvert non-Muslim lands and transform them into pro-Muslim societies. The plan was simple:

Recruit individual Muslims who live in non-Muslim lands and work to assimilate them into important positions of trust and influence,

Encourage them to spread Sharia Law in western countries, especially the United States,

Eventually, with the proliferation of Muslims in their host nations, the tilt toward Sharia Law would hit "critical mass", leading to

The host nations joining the world-wide Muslim "commonwealth."

The Muslim Brotherhood is deemed a terrorist organization by Bahrain, Egypt, Russia, Syria, Saudi Arabia, and United Arab Emirates.

Huma's mother, Saleha, has also been busy promoting the Muslim infiltration through her membership in the Muslim Brotherhood's female division, called the "Muslim Sisterhood," while heading up the International Islamic Committee for Woman and Child (HCWC). HCWC is part of the International Islamic Council for Dawa and Relief (IICDR) which has been banned in Israel for supporting Hamas.

On a side note, but important in understanding the baggage that Hillary continues to drag around behind her, on July 10, 2010, Huma Abedin married then-Congressman Anthony Weiner, the creep that "sexted" pictures of his privates to women over the Internet. The wedding vows were overseen by former President Bill Clinton.

This outraged followers of Muhammad as Muslim women are forbidden to marry "infidels," especially Jews. Dr. Anwar Shoeb, the leading authority at the College of Sharia and Islamic Studies in Kuwait, formally declared Huma's marriage to Weiner as "null and void," calling their living arrangements following the wedding a "form" of adultery.

Whether Huma Abedin is guilty of adultery, or theft, or fraud, or of influencing her boss in sensitive foreign relations gambits, or of breaking rules and regulations of the State Department, or of infiltrating the highest levels of the American government to promote Sharia Law, one thing is certain: She is one more piece of baggage that Hillary Clinton must deal with in her attempts to appear trustworthy enough to American voters to become the nation's chief executive in 2017.
