

Trump's First 100 Days

Prior to entering the White House, Donald Trump pledged an energetic "100-day action plan to Make America Great Again." How much will he be able to accomplish, and how will his accomplishments compare to his promises? To shed light on these questions, we survey President Trump's executive orders and other actions as president in the following chronology, updated daily.

Day 100 (Sat., April 29)

- Harrisburg, Pa., speech: On the 100th day of his presidency, Trump spoke at a rally in Harrisburg, Pennsylvania, instead of attending the White House Correspondents' Association dinner in Washington on the same day. He told the crowd, "I could not possibly be more thrilled than to be more than 100 miles away from Washington swamp ... with much, much better people." And he used the occasion to summarize his administration's actions during the first 100 days.
- Executive orders on trade: President Trump signed two executive orders on trade. One order directs his administration to review existing trade agreements to identify violations and abuses of those agreements, and the other order establishes an Office and Trade and Manufacturing within the White House. At the signing of these orders, which took place at Ames Companies, Inc., in Harrisburg, Pa., Trump said that the mission of the new trade office "will be to defend American workers and companies from those who would steal our jobs and threaten our manufacturing base."

Day 99 (Fri., April 28)

- NRA speech: President Trump addressed the National Rifle Association in Atlanta today, the first sitting president to do so since Ronald Reagan. "We have news that you've been waiting for for a long time," Trump said. "The eight-year assault on your Second Amendment freedoms has come to a crashing end. You have a true friend and champion in the White House. No longer will federal agencies be coming after law-abiding gun owners."
- Offshore drilling: President Trump signed an executive order on offshore energy development. The order states: "It shall be the policy of the United States to encourage energy exploration and production, including on the Outer Continental Shelf, in order to maintain the Nation's position as a global energy leader and foster energy security and resilience for the benefit of the American people, while ensuring that any such activity is safe and environmentally responsible." The order directs the secretary of Commerce to review "all designations and expansions of National Marine Sanctuaries, and of all designations and expansions of Marine National Monuments under the Antiquities Act ... designated or expanded within the 10-year period prior to the date of this order." In remarks at the signing, Trump said that "this executive order starts the process of opening offshore areas to job-creating energy exploration." He added that it "reverses the previous administration's Arctic leasing ban" and directs Secretary [of the Interior Ryan Zinke "to allow responsible development of offshore areas that will bring revenue to our Treasury and jobs to our workers."

- National Charter Schools Week: President Trump proclaimed April 30 through May 6, 2017 as National Charter Schools Week. In his proclamation, he stated, “I commend our Nation’s successful public charter schools, teachers, and administrators, and I call on States and communities to empower parents and families by supporting high-quality charter schools as an important school choice option.”

- Small Business Week: President Trump proclaimed April 30 through May 6, 2017 as Small Business Week. “At the beginning of my Administration, I met with small business owners who continue to struggle under too many burdensome regulations,” Trump said in his proclamation. “I have already signed legislation disapproving many excessive and unreasonable regulations and issued several Executive Orders to address other overreaching rules. These actions will free our Nation’s entrepreneurs to spend more time creating jobs and less time navigating the Federal bureaucracy.” He added that “my Administration is also working to ensure our Nation’s trade deals establish favorable conditions for small businesses to export their goods and services,” and that “our Nation also deserves a tax system that works for — not against — small business owners.”

Day 98 (Thurs., April 27)

- U.S.-Argentina relations: President Trump hosted Argentine President Mauricio Marci at the White House today. A joint statement from the two leaders said they discussed “ways to deepen the close partnership between the United States and Argentina.”

- Whistleblower protection: President Trump signed an executive order on “Improving Accountability and Whistleblower Protection at the Department of Veterans Affairs.” Trump’s order directs “the Secretary of Veterans Affairs ... to establish within the VA an Office of Accountability and Whistleblower Protection and to appoint a Special Assistant to serve as Executive Director of the Office.”

- Aluminum industry: President Trump issued a presidential memorandum stating that the secretary of Commerce has begun an investigation to determine the effects of aluminum imports on national security. “Both the United States and global markets for aluminum products are distorted by large volumes of excess capacity,” the memorandum says, “much of which results from foreign government subsidies and other unfair practices.” In a separate statement, the White House noted that “in 2016, aluminum imports into the United States increased by 18 percent while American production fell by 47 percent.”

Day 97 (Wed., April 26)

- Trump orders review of federal land grabs: In the wake of an administration that seized control of record amounts of land and water, President Trump issued an executive order that he said would “end” such “abuses” of federal law and “return control to the people.” The order requires the secretary of the Interior, Ryan Zinke, to review all federal monument designations of more than 100,000 acres made under the 1906 Antiquities Act since 1996. That year, President Bill Clinton created the Grand Staircase-Escalante National Monument; covering nearly 1.9 million acres of southern Utah, it is the largest monument designated to date. President Barack Obama commandeered another 1.3 million acres of the Beehive State in late December to create the Bears Ears National Monument over the objections of state lawmakers and Utah’s congressional delegation. Obama went on a real-estate seizure spree during his eight years in office, grabbing more than 553 million acres of land and water under various federal laws. According to Trump’s remarks at the signing of his executive order, Obama used the Antiquities Act to set aside “over 265 million acres,” which the president noted is “larger than the entire state of Texas.” Obama invoked the act 29 times, about one-fifth of all the times it has been used, usually to reward supporters and push his agenda of combating alleged climate change by putting land off-limits to mining, logging, and energy exploration.

- Tax-reform proposal: The Trump administration released today a one-page tax-reform proposal that advocates reducing the number of tax brackets from seven to three (10 percent, 25 percent, and 35 percent), doubling the standard deduction, repealing the Alternative Minimum Tax, repealing the death tax, repealing the 3.8 percent ObamaCare tax, and lowering the business tax rate to 15 percent. For more information, click here.
- Federal overreach in education: President Trump signed an executive order that is ostensibly aimed at curtailing unlawful federal meddling in K-12 education across America. But it may not actually accomplish that much, depending on how top education officials implement it. “Previous administrations have wrongfully forced states and schools to comply with federal whims and dictate what our kids are taught,” Trump declared. “But we know that local communities do it best and know it best.” According to the order itself, the goal is “to restore the proper division of power under the Constitution between the Federal Government and the States and to further the goals of, and to ensure strict compliance with, statutes that prohibit Federal interference with State and local control over education.” Whether that will happen, though, remains to be seen.
- NAFTA: President Trump talked by phone today with Mexican President Peña Nieto and Canadian Prime Minister Justin Trudeau. According to a White House “readout” of what was discussed, “President Trump agreed not to terminate NAFTA at this time and the leaders agreed to proceed swiftly, according to their required internal procedures, to enable the renegotiation of the NAFTA deal to the benefit of all three countries.”

- Sanctuary cities ruling: After a federal judge blocked President Trump’s executive order to strip federal grants from sanctuary cities that do not enforce federal immigration laws, the White House released a statement strongly critical of the judge’s action. “Today, the rule of law suffered another blow, as an unelected judge unilaterally rewrote immigration policy for our Nation,” the statement said. “Federal law explicitly states that ‘a Federal, State or Local government entity or official may not prohibit, or in any way restrict, any government entity or official from sending to, or receiving from, the Immigration and Naturalization Service information regarding the citizenship or immigration status, lawful or unlawful, of any individual.’ 8 U.S.C. 1373(a). That means, according to Congress, a city that prohibits its officials from providing information to federal immigration authorities — a sanctuary city — is violating the law. Sanctuary cities, like San Francisco, block their jails from turning over criminal aliens to Federal authorities for deportation. These cities are engaged in the dangerous and unlawful nullification of Federal law in an attempt to erase our borders.” The White House statement continued: “Once again, a single district judge — this time in San Francisco — has ignored Federal immigration law to set a new immigration policy for the entire country. This decision occurred in the same sanctuary city that released the 5-time deported illegal immigrant who gunned down innocent Kate Steinle in her father’s arms. San Francisco, and cities like it, are putting the well-being of criminal aliens before the safety of our citizens, and those city officials who authored these policies have the blood of dead Americans on their hands.” The statement also said that the administration “will pursue all legal remedies to the sanctuary city threat.”

- Holocaust Memorial Museum National Days of Remembrance: President Trump condemned anti-Semitism and expressed his support for Israel in his remarks at the United States Holocaust Memorial Museum National Days of Remembrance: “We will confront anti-Semitism (Applause.) We will stamp out prejudice. We will condemn hatred. We will bear witness. And we will act. As President of the United States, I will always stand with the Jewish people — and I will always stand with our great friend and partner, the State of Israel.” He also said that “today, we remember the 6 million Jewish men, women and children whose lives and dreams were stolen from this Earth” during the holocaust.
- Task Force on Agriculture and Rural Prosperity: President Trump signed an executive order “Promoting Agriculture and Rural Prosperity in America.” The order creates an “Interagency Task Force on Agriculture and Rural Prosperity” that “shall identify legislative, regulatory, and policy changes to promote in rural America agriculture, economic development, job growth, infrastructure improvements, technological innovation, energy security, and quality of life.”

Day 95 (Mon., April 24)

- Meeting with UN Security Council diplomats: Despite regularly ridiculing the United Nations and repeatedly proposing a scaled-back U.S. role in it, President Donald Trump struck a different tone Monday, calling for empowering the controversial UN dictators club to somehow “solve” the threat North Korea allegedly poses not just to South Korea but to the United States. Speaking at a meeting of UN Security Council diplomats at the White House, Trump demanded that the UN be ready to impose new sanctions if Communist Chinese-backed North Korean dictator Kim Jong Un does not cooperate. Ironically, the dictatorship in Beijing — North Korea’s strongest ally — holds a veto-wielding seat on the UN Security Council. Trump’s comments after the meeting suggested that the White House believes the UN should be given teeth to rein in North Korea in case it decides to test another nuclear bomb. “The status quo in North Korea is also unacceptable,” Trump was quoted as telling the UN Security Council ambassadors representing the 15 governments and dictatorships — some close allies of the regime in North Korea — at the April 24 White house meeting. “The Council must be prepared to impose additional and stronger sanctions on North Korean nuclear and ballistic missile programs.”
- Manned trip to Mars: During a video call with NASA astronauts aboard the International Space Station, President Trump asked, “Tell me, Mars — what do you see a timing for actually sending humans to Mars? Is there a schedule? And when would you see that happening?” After astronaut Peggy Whitson responded by saying that “it will be approximately in the 2030s,” Trump said: “Well, we want to try and do it during my first term or, at worst, during my second term. So we’ll have to speed that up a little bit, okay?”
- U.S.-China relations: The White House released a statement today saying that, in a phone conversation yesterday between Chinese President Xi Jinping and President Trump, “The two leaders reaffirmed the urgency of the threat posed by North Korea’s missile and nuclear programs, and committed to strengthen coordination in achieving the denuclearization of the Korean Peninsula.”

Days 93 & 94 (Sat., April 22 & Sun. April 23)

- Earth Day: On Earth Day, April 22, President Trump said in a statement released by the White House: “Our Nation is blessed with abundant natural resources and awe-inspiring beauty. Americans are rightly grateful for these God-given gifts and have an obligation to safeguard them for future generations. My Administration is committed to keeping our air and water clean, to preserving our forests, lakes, and open spaces, and to protecting endangered species.” He added: “Economic growth enhances environmental protection. We can and must protect our environment without harming America’s working families. That is why my Administration is reducing unnecessary burdens on American workers and American companies, while being mindful that our actions must also protect the environment.”

Day 92 (Fri., April 21)

- Memorandum for Secretary of the Treasury: President Trump signed a Presidential Memorandum for Treasury Secretary Steven Mnuchin “to conduct a thorough review” of the Financial Stability Oversight Council (FSOC) practices under the Dodd-Frank Act. Essentially, if the FSOC determines that a “nonbank financial company” is “too big to fail” and is having financial difficulties, such an entity can be subject to strict government oversight and regulation, ostensibly to ensure it doesn’t fail. President Trump wants to ease some of these regulations, and is ordering a review of Dodd-Frank to determine if such regulations are truly necessary and are being conducted in a transparent fashion. As the memorandum notes, “These determinations and designations have serious implications for affected entities, the industries in which they operate, and the economy at large. Therefore, it is important to ensure that these processes for making determinations and designations promote market discipline and reduce systemic risk. It is equally important to ensure that, once notified by FSOC that it is under review, any entity under consideration for a determination or designation decision is afforded due, fair, and appropriately transparent process.”

- Reducing regulatory and tax burden: President Trump signed an executive order instructing Treasury Secretary Steven Mnuchin to review “all significant tax regulations issued by the Department of the Treasury on or after January 1, 2016” and report to the president within 60 days on any regulations that impose an undue financial burden on United States taxpayers, add undue complexity to the Federal tax laws, or exceed the statutory authority of the IRS. Within 150 days, Secretary Mnuchin is to recommend specific actions to mitigate any burdens imposed by such regulations.

- Memorandum for Secretary of Commerce: President Trump signed a Presidential Memorandum for Secretary of Commerce Wilbur Ross to conduct an investigation, under Section 232 of the Trade Expansion Act of 1962, regarding the effects of steel imports on the national security of the United States and submit a report within 270 days. Section 1 of the memorandum notes: “Core industries such as steel (including specialty steel unique to defense applications), aluminum, vehicles, aircraft, shipbuilding, and semiconductors are critical elements of our manufacturing and defense industrial bases, which we must defend against unfair trade practices and other abuses. In the case of steel, both the United States and global markets for steel products are distorted by large volumes of excess capacity — much of which results from foreign government subsidies and other unfair practices. The United States has placed more than 150 antidumping and countervailing duty orders on steel products, but they have not substantially alleviated the negative effects that unfairly traded imports have had on the United States steel industry. Repeated efforts by the United States to encourage other countries to reduce and address the underlying causes of excess capacity in the steel market have had little meaningful effect. The artificially low prices caused by excess capacity and unfairly traded imports suppress profits in the American steel industry, which discourages long-term investment in the industry and hinders efforts by American steel producers to research and develop new and better grades of steel. If the present situation continues, it may place the American steel industry at risk by undermining the ability of American steel producers to continue investment and research and development, and by reducing or eliminating the jobs needed to maintain a pool of skilled workers essential for the continued development of advanced steel manufacturing.” President Trump remarked, “Today, I’m directing the Department of Commerce to immediately prioritize the investigation ... into foreign steel arriving into our markets, and to submit a report on the effects of these foreign steel products on the national security of the United States. It’s not just the pricing, it’s not just employment, it also has to do with the national security of our country, which people never talk about. I talked about it.”

Day 90 (Wed., April 19)

- Veterans Choice Program Extension and Improvement Act: President Trump signed S. 544, the Veterans Choice Program Extension and Improvement Act, into law, which eliminates the termination date of the Veterans Choice Program, modifies reimbursement and cost-recovery procedures for care provided under the Program, and authorizes the sharing of certain veterans’ medical records with medical service providers outside the Department of Veterans Affairs. During remarks at the signing of S. 544 into law, Trump said, “The veterans have poured out their sweat and blood and tears for this country for so long, and it’s time that they’re recognized, and it’s time that we now take care of them, and take care of them properly. That’s why I’m pleased today to sign into law the Veterans Choice Program Improvement Act. So this is called the Choice Program Improvement Act. It speaks for itself. This bill will extend and improve the Veterans Choice Program so that more veterans can see the doctor of their choice — you got it? The doctor of their choice — and don’t have to wait and travel long distances for VA care. Some people have to travel five hours, eight hours, and they’ll have to do it on a weekly basis, and even worse than that. It’s not going to happen anymore.”

- Smithsonian Institution: President Trump signed S.J.Res. 30, S.J.Res. 35, and S.J.Res. 36 into law. S.J.Res. 30 reappoints Steve Case as a citizen regent of the Board of Regents of the Smithsonian Institution, S.J.Res. 35 appoints Michael Govan as a citizen regent of the Board of Regents of the Smithsonian Institution, and S.J.Res. 36 appoints Roger W. Ferguson as a citizen regent of the Board of Regents of the Smithsonian Institution.

- “Buy American, Hire American” executive order: President Trump signed the “Buy American, Hire American” executive order after speaking at the Snap-On Tools plant in Kenosha, Wisconsin. While speaking to Snap-On employees, Trump said, “For too long, we’ve watched as our factories have been closed and our jobs have been sent to other faraway lands.... But this election, the American people voted to end the theft of American prosperity. They voted to bring back their jobs — and to bring back their dreams into our country. That’s why I’m here today. In just a few moments, I will be signing a Buy American and Hire American executive order.... With this action, we are sending a powerful signal to the world: We’re going to defend our workers, protect our jobs, and finally put America first.” Trump continued, “First, we will fully monitor, uphold and enforce our Buy American laws — which we haven’t done. Buy American laws require that when the federal government buys, builds or funds a project, domestic goods and products should be used.... With this order, I am directing every single agency in our government to strictly uphold our Buy American laws, to minimize the use of waivers, and to maximize Made in America content in all federal projects.... Secondly, we are going to enforce the Hire American rules that are designed to protect jobs and wages of workers in the United States. We believe jobs must be offered to American workers first.”

- Trump speaks with U.K. Prime Minister Theresa May: President Trump received a telephone call from U.K. Prime Minister Theresa May regarding her plans to call a special election in June. President Trump wished the British people the best of luck in their electoral process.

Day 88 (Mon., April 17)

- Background Briefing on “Buy American, Hire American” executive order: A senior administration official gave a background briefing on an executive order to be signed by President Trump on Tuesday, April 18 in Kenosha, Wisconsin, entitled Buy American, Hire American.

Days 86 & 87 (Sat., April 15 & Sun., April 16)

- Easter Egg Roll: On Easter Sunday, President Trump and First Lady Melania Trump participated in the 139th annual White House Easter Egg Roll.

- Remarks to troops: On April 16, Easter Sunday, Vice President Mike Pence visited U.S. troops stationed in South Korea at the U.S. Army Garrison Yongsan in Seoul, South Korea.

Day 85 (Fri., April 14)

- White House visitor logs: The White House announced today that it will not voluntarily disclose White House visitor logs because of national security concerns. “Given the grave national security risks and privacy concerns of the hundreds of thousands of visitors annually, the White House Office will disclose Secret Service logs as outlined under the Freedom of Information Act, a position the Obama White House successfully defended in federal court,” said White House communications director Mike Dubke.

Day 84 (Thurs., April 13)

- Congressional Review Act legislation: President Trump signed House Joint Resolution 43, “bringing the total number of Congressional Review Act legislation pieces that he has signed now to 13,” Press Secretary Sean Spicer noted in his press briefing today. Spicer said that H.J. Res. 43 “overturns a regulation that was put in place by the previous administration on their way out the door that would have taken away the right of states to set their own policies and priorities for Title 10 family-planning programs.”

- Afghanistan: The U.S. military dropped its largest nonnuclear bomb on an ISIS target in Afghanistan, the first time this weapon was used in combat. The weapon, which is nicknamed “the mother of all bombs” and is officially known as a GBU-43/B Massive Ordnance Air Blast Bomb (MOAB), contains 11 tons of explosives. In his press briefing today, Press Secretary Sean Spicer said that the weapon was used against “a system of tunnels and caves that ISIS fighters used to move around freely, making it easier for them to target U.S. military advisors and Afghan forces in the area.” He added: “The United States takes the fight against ISIS very seriously.”

Day 83 (Wed., April 12)

- “Comprehensive Plan for the Federal Government” / End of the hiring freeze: The Office of Management and Budget issued today a “Comprehensive Plan for the Federal Government and Reducing the Federal Civilian Workforce” to (in the words of a White House statement) “chart the course for a restrained, effective, and accountable Government to better serve the American people.” The White House statement said that federal agencies “will immediately act to streamline the Government,” will “develop a plan to maximize the performance of Government workers by the end of June,” and will “submit an Agency Reform Plan in 180 days to modernize and streamline their operations.” Also, the freeze on the hiring of federal civilian employees that President Trump ordered on January 23 ends today with the release of this plan. “That does not mean that the agencies will be free to hire willy-nilly,” OMB Director Mick Mulvaney said in a press briefing Tuesday about what would be happening today. “What we’re doing ... is replacing the across-the-board hiring freeze ... with a smarter plan, a more strategic plan, a more surgical plan.”

- NATO: President Trump held a joint news conference with NATO Secretary General Jens Stoltenberg at the White House today. In his remarks, Trump acknowledged “the great work being done by our Secretary of State, Rex Tillerson, to strengthen the NATO Alliance” and said that NATO “has been the bulwark of international peace and security” since its creation in 1949. He also pointed out that since NATO’s creation, the “member states have more than doubled, increasing from 12 to 28” — 29 with Montenegro’s entry into the military alliance. He did not mention, however, that this expansion of NATO over the years means that the number of member nations the United States is obligated to defend under the NATO treaty has also more than doubled.

- NATO: President Trump signed the U.S. instrument of ratification for Montenegro to become the newest member of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO), following the U.S. Senate’s March 28 vote in favor of ratification. The White House statement announcing the president’s action said that the NATO military alliance “has been central to ensuring peace and security on the European continent,” and that the United States “looks forward to formally welcoming the country [Montenegro] as the twenty-ninth member of the NATO Alliance.” Under the 1949 North Atlantic Treaty establishing NATO, member nations “agree that an armed attack against one or more of them ... shall be considered an attack against them all.” This agreement, requiring the United States to go to war if any member of NATO is attacked, undermines the provision in the U.S. Constitution that delegates to Congress the power to declare war. Montenegro was one of the so-called republics composing communist Yugoslavia during the Soviet era. But now Montenegro will be one of 28 countries the United States is obligated to defend under NATO.

- Meeting with CEOs: President Trump held a meeting with a group of CEOs at the White House, telling them that “at the top of our agenda is the creation of great high-paying jobs for American workers.” He added, “We’ve made a lot of process.... We’ve created over 600,000 jobs already in a very short period of time.” Regarding NAFTA and the exodus of jobs to other countries, he said, “For too long, we’ve punished production in America and rewarded companies for leaving our country. And we’re going to reverse that.... NAFTA is a disaster. It’s been a disaster from the day it was devised. And we’re going to have some very pleasant surprises for you on NAFTA, that I can tell you.”

- New immigration enforcement policies: U.S. Attorney General Jeff Sessions outlined the Trump administration’s new, toughened immigration law-enforcement policy while he visited the U.S.-Mexico border area near Nogales, Arizona, today. Sessions emphasized that under President Trump’s leadership and through his executive orders, “we will secure this border and bring the full weight of both the immigration courts and federal criminal enforcement to combat this attack on our national security and sovereignty.” He said that in cases “where an alien has unlawfully entered the country, which is a misdemeanor, that alien will now be charged with a felony if they unlawfully enter or attempt to enter a second time and certain aggravating circumstances are present.”

Day 81 (Mon., April 10)

• Gorsuch sworn in: Neil Gorsuch was sworn in today to serve as an associate justice on the Supreme Court. At the swearing-in ceremony, President Trump stated: “Americans are blessed to have in Neil Gorsuch a man who will, likewise, be a devoted servant of the law. Over the past two months, the American people have gotten to know, respect and truly admire our newest member of the United States Supreme Court. In Justice Gorsuch, they see a man of great and unquestioned integrity. They see a man of unmatched qualifications. And most of all, and most importantly, they see a man who is deeply faithful to the Constitution of the United States. He will decide cases based not on his personal preferences, but based on a fair and objective reading of the law.” In a statement today, Vice President Mike Pence, who presided in the Senate when Gorsuch’s nomination was confirmed Friday, said, “The American people elected President Trump in significant part because of his vow to ... nominate someone to the Supreme Court who would keep faith with our Constitution and uphold the God-given liberties enshrined there... President Trump has kept one of his most significant promises he made to the American people: to put a justice on the Supreme Court who will keep faith with our Constitution and uphold the God-given liberties enshrined there.”

Days 79 & 80 (Sat., April 8 & Sun., April 9)

• Officially informing Congress of the missile attack against Syria: President Trump sent a letter, dated April 8, to the speaker of the House and the resident pro tempore of the Senate officially informing them of the military action he undertook against Syria on Thursday. The letter also provided the rationale for his action, which was done without congressional debate or authorization. “At approximately 8:40 p.m. Eastern Daylight Time on April 6, 2017, at my direction, United States military forces in the Mediterranean Sea, operating beyond the territorial sea of any state, struck the Shayrat military airfield in Syria, the letter began. “United States intelligence indicates that Syrian military forces operating from this airfield were responsible for the chemical weapons attack on Syrian civilians in southern Idlib Province, Syria, that occurred on April 4. I directed this action in order to degrade the Syrian military’s ability to conduct further chemical weapons attacks and to dissuade the Syrian regime from using or proliferating chemical weapons, thereby promoting the stability of the region and averting a worsening of the region’s current humanitarian catastrophe.” The president also said in his letter, “I acted in the vital national security and foreign policy interests of the United States, pursuant to my constitutional authority to conduct foreign relations and as Commander in Chief and Chief Executive. The United States will take additional action, as necessary and appropriate, to further its important national interests.” Thus far the administration has not offered evidence showing that al-Assad’s Syrian’s regime was responsible for the chemical weapons attack, as the administration is claiming. At this time, there is no proof available showing who was behind the chemical weapons attack, but there are sound reasons to believe the it may have been a false flag intended for getting the United States into a war against Syria. It is also not clear how the attack, as deplorable as it is, justified the United States attacking a country that did not attack us and served the “vital national security” interests of the United States. Beyond that, under the U.S. Constitution, the power to declare war is a congressional power, not a presidential power.

Day 78 (Fri., April 7)

- Gorsuch confirmation: After the Senate voted today to confirm Neil Gorsuch to the Supreme Court, President Trump said in a statement: “It is a great honor to announce the historic confirmation of Judge Neil M. Gorsuch as Associate Justice to the Supreme Court of the United States. Judge Gorsuch’s confirmation process was one of the most transparent and accessible in history, and his judicial temperament, exceptional intellect, unparalleled integrity, and record of independence makes him the perfect choice to serve on the Nation’s highest court. As a deep believer in the rule of law, Judge Gorsuch will serve the American people with distinction as he continues to faithfully and vigorously defend our Constitution.”
- U.S.- China relations: After meeting with Chinese President Xi Jinping at Mar-a-Lago in Palm Beach, Florida, President Trump said, with Xi alongside, “The relationship developed by President Xi and myself I think is outstanding. We look forward to being together many times in the future. And I believe lots of very potentially bad problems will be going away.” The same day, Press Secretary Sean Spicer said in a statement: “President Trump and President Xi agreed to work in concert to expand areas of cooperation while managing differences based on mutual respect.” Regarding differences, the press secretary said: “President Trump noted the challenges caused by Chinese government intervention in its economy and raised serious concerns about the impact of China’s industrial, agricultural, technology, and cyber policies on United States jobs and exports. The President underscored the need for China to take concrete steps to level the playing field for American workers, stressing repeatedly the need for reciprocal market access.” And regarding North Korea: “The two sides noted the urgency of the threat of North Korea’s weapons programs, reaffirmed their commitment to a denuclearized Korean peninsula, and committed to fully implement UN Security Council resolutions.” The press secretary’s statement also said that “President Trump welcomed President Xi’s invitation to visit China for a state visit at a future date.”
- Council of Economic Advisors: President Trump announced his intent to nominate Kevin Allen Hassett to be chairman of the Council of Economic Advisors. For more information about Hassett, whose résumé includes stints at the Federal Reserve with experience advising Presidents George W. Bush and Bill Clinton, click here.

Day 77 (Thurs., April 6)

- U.S. launches military strikes against Syria: Citing a chemical attack blamed on Syrian dictator Bashar al Assad that increasingly appears to be a “false flag,” President Trump ordered military strikes that commenced today against government targets in Syria. According to media reports, Trump launched more than 50 missiles at Assad’s forces in Syria, backpedaling on repeated vows to stay out and seek congressional approval for war made during his presidential campaign. Because Congress has not declared war on Syria, multiple legal experts and lawmakers have noted that the newly started war is illegal and unconstitutional. Former Trump supporters across America and worldwide were horrified by the news, suggesting the president had either been misled or even co-opted by the “deep state.” Despite Trump’s repeated calls for the United States to stay out of Syria over the years, regime change now appears to be the goal.

Day 76 (Wed., April 5)

- Congressional Review Act: White House Press Secretary Sean Spicer held a press briefing to explain the Congressional Review Act, which was signed into law in 1996. This act “allows a limited window for us to actually pull back previous regulations,” Spicer said. “So it allows Congress, the House and the Senate, to look at those regulations and to eliminate those, that they pass by a simple majority.” He went on to say that the window will be “closing at the end of April.” He noted that the Obama administration “authored more than 600 major regulations according to the Federal Register, with an estimated cost to the economy of about $740 billion.” He said that prior to the Trump administration the Congressional Review Act had been used once, by President George W. Bush in 2001, to pull back regulations, and that the Trump administration “has already signed 11, and there are two more pending for us to sign.”

- Apprehensions along southern border: Press Secretary Sean Spicer issued a statement today regarding the “dramatic drop” in apprehensions of illegal aliens along the United States’ southern border with Mexico. A drop or rise in apprehensions is viewed as an indicator of a drop or rise in the total number of illegal aliens attempting to cross the border into the United States, based on the assumption that a certain percentage of those attempting to cross the border will be caught. “By achieving real results on illegal immigration, once again, President Trump is keeping his promises to the American people,” the statement said. “In March 2017, 16,600 individuals were apprehended or deemed inadmissible. This is a 35% decrease from February 2017, and a 61% decrease from January 2017, when President Trump took office. The decline represents a 64% decrease from the same month last year.”

- U.S.-Japan relations: President Trump spoke today with Japanese Prime Minister Shinzo Abe. According to a White House statement, the two leaders discussed “regional matters of concern, particularly North Korea’s launch of a ballistic missile yesterday.” The statement added: “The President emphasized that the United States stands with its allies Japan and South Korea in the face of the serious threat that North Korea continues to pose. The President also made clear that the United States will continue to strengthen its ability to deter and defend itself and its allies with the full range of its military capabilities.” Many decades after the Korean War, the United States still maintains tens of thousands of troops in South Korea. Their presence insures that the United States would become engulfed in another Korean war should the North invade the South. But instead of maintaining our military presence there, another option would be to bring the soldiers home, while making clear to South Korea and other countries in the region (including Japan) that they need to accept responsibility for their own defense.

- U.S.-Jordan relations: In a joint press conference with King Abdullah II in the Rose Garden, President Trump said that “in King Abdullah, America is blessed with a thoughtful and determined partner.” Regarding Syrian refugees in Jordan, Trump said: “We also acknowledge the vital role that Jordan has played in hosting refugees from the conflict in Syria. We have just announced that the United States will contribute additional funds to Jordan for humanitarian assistance. This aid will help countries like Jordan host refugees until it is safe for them to return home. The refugees want to return home. I know that from so many other instances. They want to return back to their home. And that’s a goal of any responsible refugee policy.”

Day 75 (Tues., April 4)

- Syria: President Trump made the following statement today regarding a chemical attack in Syria that reportedly killed dozens: “Today’s chemical attack in Syria against innocent people, including women and children, is reprehensible and cannot be ignored by the civilized world. These heinous actions by the Bashar al-Assad regime are a consequence of the past administration’s weakness and irresolution. President Obama said in 2012 that he would establish a “red line” against the use of chemical weapons and then did nothing. The United States stands with our allies across the globe to condemn this intolerable attack.”

Day 74 (Mon., April 3)

- Surveillance of Trump team: President Trump tweeted early Monday morning: “Such amazing reporting on unmasking and the crooked scheme against us by @foxandfriends. ‘Spied on before nomination.’ The real story.” Later in the morning, he tweeted: “.@FoxNews from multiple sources: ‘There was electronic surveillance of Trump, and people close to Trump. This is unprecedented.’ @FBI.” Recent evidence coming to light is vindicating Trump’s earlier claims that his campaign (and later, transition) team was being surveilled.

- Nullifying various federal regulations: President Trump signed into law three bills — House Joint Resolution 69, House Joint Resolution 83, and Senate Joint Resolution 34 — that nullify various federal regulations. As described by a White House statement: “H.J.Res. 69 ... nullifies the Department of the Interior’s Fish and Wildlife Service’s final rule relating to non-subsistence takings of wildlife on National Wildlife Refuges in Alaska”; “H.J.Res. 83 ... nullifies the Department of Labor’s rule titled Clarification of Employer’s Continuing Obligation to Make and Maintain an Accurate Record of Each Recordable Injury and Illness”; and “S.J.Res. 34 ... nullifies the Federal Communications Commission’s rule on privacy of customers of broadband and other telecommunications services.”

- U.S.-Egypt relations: President Trump met with Egyptian President Al Sisi at the White House today. According to a White House statement, “President Trump reaffirmed our deep and abiding commitment to Egypt’s security, stability, and prosperity, and pledged continued support to Egypt’s ongoing fight against terrorism and Egypt’s historic economic reform program.” Regarding the latter, the statement approvingly noted that “Egypt’s ambitious homegrown economic reform plan” is “backed by a $12 billion agreement with the International Monetary Fund.”

Day 73 (Sun., April 2)

- Golfing with Rand Paul: After days of pillorying the Freedom Caucus, composed of the most conservative members of the House, for opposing the House Republican leadership’s plan to replace ObamaCare, President Trump took a different approach with Senator Rand Paul today by playing golf with him while also discussing ObamaCare. Like members of the House Freedom Caucus, Paul opposed the House Republican leadership plan, calling it ObamaCare 2.0. After the golf outing with Trump, Paul told reporters he is “very optimistic” that party leaders are “getting closer” on a compromise.

Day 72 (Sat., April 1)

- Russia probe / surveillance of Trump: President Trump sent out a couple early-morning tweets regarding the media focus on the Russia probe. In one tweet he said: “When will Sleepy Eyes Chuck Todd and @NBCNews start talking about the Obama SURVEILLANCE SCANDAL and stop with the Fake Trump/Russia story?" And in another: "It is the same Fake News Media that said there is 'no path to victory for Trump' that is now pushing the phony Russia story. A total scam!" Later in the morning, Trump sent out a two-part tweet that said: "Wow, @FoxNews just reporting big news. Source: 'Official behind unmasking is high up. Known Intel official is responsible. Some unmasked not associated with Russia. Trump team spied on before he was nominated.' If this is true, does not get much bigger. Would be sad for U.S."

Written by Charles Scaliger on May 22, 2017

Day 71 (Fri., March 31)

- Michael Flynn: Regarding former national security advisor Michael Flynn's offer to testify in the Russia probe in exchange for immunity, President Trump tweeted today: "Mike Flynn should ask for immunity in that this is a witch hunt (excuse for big election loss), by media & Dems, of historic proportion!"

Day 70 (Thurs., March 30)

- War Declared: Freedom Caucus: President Trump effectively declared war on the House Freedom Caucus, tweeting: "The Freedom Caucus will hurt the entire Republican agenda if they don't get on the team, & fast. We must fight them, & Dems, in 2018!" The Freedom Caucus would not support the American Health Care Act (AHCA), the ObamaCare replacement bill backed by the House Republican leadership and Trump that was withdrawn last Friday because there was insufficient support to get it passed. In a tweet last Sunday Trump blamed the Freedom Caucus for the debacle: "Democrats are smiling in D.C. that the Freedom Caucus, with the help of Club For Growth and Heritage, have saved Planned Parenthood & Ocare!" But Freedom Caucus members, who oppose ObamaCare, also opposed Republican leadership's alternative because they viewed it as ObamaCare Lite or ObamaCare 2.0. Representative Mo Brooks, a member of the Freedom Caucus, noted in a press release last Friday that the AHCA did not repeal ObamaCare but instead "include[d] the very ObamaCare policies that jack up health care costs beyond the reach of so many struggling American families." Brooks declared the bill "the largest Republican welfare plan in the history of the Republican Party," saying it was "horribly expensive" and would have turned "tens of millions of Americans into welfare dependents." Brooks also introduced a bill to repeal ObamaCare and is hoping to get it to the House floor for a vote via a discharge petition.

Day 69 (Wed., March 29)

President's Commission on Combating Drug Addiction and the Opioid Crisis: President Trump signed an executive order establishing the President's Commission on Combating Drug Addiction and the Opioid Crisis. The order states that "it shall be the policy of the executive branch to combat the scourge of drug abuse, addiction, and overdose (drug addiction), including opioid abuse, addiction, and overdose (opioid crisis)." The commission's mission, the order says, "shall be to study the scope and effectiveness of the Federal response to drug addiction and the opioid crisis ... and to make recommendations to the President for improving that response."

Day 68 (Tues., March 28)

- Taking a chainsaw to Obama's "climate" schemes: President Obama failed in his mission to make his "global-warming" schemes "Trump proof." Fulfilling some of his key campaign promises to voters, President Trump moved today to dismantle huge swaths of the unconstitutional "climate" regime imposed on Americans by his predecessor. Among other important targets in Trump's latest executive order is Obama's "Clean Power Plan" decree, which sought to regulate emissions of carbon dioxide, also known to scientists as the "gas of life." The measure signed by Trump also takes aim at multiple other schemes adopted by Obama that restricted energy production or killed jobs under the guise of stopping alleged man-made global warming. In his sweeping executive order, Trump ordered all federal agencies to begin reviewing regulations that unnecessarily burden energy production. The same order also overturned a wide range of decrees issued by Obama on "climate," CO2 emissions, energy production, and related schemes. In addition, Trump rescinded Obama's "Climate Action Plan" and his "Climate Action Plan Strategy," both of which were used to wage war on the American people, the U.S. economy, and the energy sector in particular. In fact, so extreme were Obama and his agenda that he actually bragged on television about how his scheming would "necessarily" cause electricity prices "to skyrocket." For more information, click here.

Day 67 (Mon., March 27)

- Nullifying various federal regulations: President Trump signed into law four measures nullifying various federal regulations. As described by the White House, the measures are: "H.J.Res. 37, which nullifies the Department of Defense, the General Services Administration, and the National Aeronautics and Space Administration's Federal Acquisition Regulation: Fair Pay and Safe Workplaces"; "H.J.Res. 44, which nullifies the Department of the Interior's Bureau of Land Management's final rule relating to resource management planning"; "H.J.Res. 57, which nullifies the Department of Education's rule relating to State accountability requirements under the Every Student Succeeds Act"; and "H.J.Res. 58, which nullifies the Department of Education's rule relating to assessing the quality of teacher preparation programs."
- White House Office of American Innovation: President Donald J. Trump announced a new White House Office of American Innovation (OAI) that will, according to a White House statement, "make recommendations to the President on policies and plans that improve Government operations and services, improve the quality of life for Americans now and in the future, and spur job creation." "As a former leader in the private sector, I am proud to officially announce the White House Office of American Innovation, which will develop innovative solutions to many problems our country faces," Trump said. Of course, American innovation historically has entailed government getting out of the way so that the private sector can come up with innovative solutions. Central planning, with government as one of the planners, is a contrary approach.
- FCC rules: President Trump signed a controversial bill overturning FCC rules that would have prevented Internet Service Providers (ISPs) from mining and selling users' data. Democrats argued that the FCC rules would protect privacy by requiring ISPs to have users' consent before harvesting and selling their browsing histories and other personal data. Republicans — who passed the bill in both the Senate and the House — argued that the rules would tip the scales in favor of websites (such as Facebook and Google, which make millions in profits each year selling that same data). Since those websites are regulated for the most part by the Federal Trade Commission (FTC) and not the FCC, the rules would not affect them. In truth the FCC has exactly zero business existing, much less regulating the Internet. The rules were designed to bolster so-called net neutrality. While the new law — passed by Republicans and signed by Trump — is a rubber stamp to the ISPs collection of users' private data (and is therefore an anti-privacy law), the truth is privacy didn't have a dog in this fight.

Days 65 & 66 (Sat., March 25 & Sun., March 26)

- ObamaCare: President Trump sent out a couple tweets over the weekend about the withdrawal of the House Republican ObamaCare replacement bill on Friday. On Saturday, Trump tweeted: “ObamaCare will explode and we will all get together and piece together a great healthcare plan for THE PEOPLE. Do not worry!” And on Sunday, he blasted the House Freedom Caucus for its failure to get behind the bill: “Democrats are smiling in D.C. that the Freedom Caucus, with the help of Club For Growth and Heritage, have saved Planned Parenthood & Ocare!” In truth, members of the House Freedom Caucus are pro-life and anti-ObamaCare, but they viewed the Trump-backed ObamaCare replacement bill as ObamaCare Lite.

Day 64 (Fri., March 24)

- Keystone XL Pipeline: President Trump announced from the Oval Office today the official approval of the presidential permit for the Keystone KL Pipeline today. “It’s a great day for American jobs and a historic moment for North American and energy independence,” the president said. “This announcement is part of a new era of American energy policy that will lower costs for American families — and very significantly — reduce our dependence on foreign oil, and create thousands of jobs right here in America.”

- House ObamaCare replacement bill withdrawn: After the House Republican ObamaCare replacement bill was withdrawn because it lacked the votes to pass, President Trump stated that “we were very close, and it was a very tight margin,” but “we had no Democrat support.” However, the Trump administration’s and GOP House leadership’s failure to win sufficient support for their replacement bill also had to do to with the fact that many conservative Republican congressmen, particularly in the House Freedom Caucus, viewed the Republican alternative as ObamaCare Lite.

- Travel ban: Judge Anthony Trenga of the U.S. District Court for the Eastern District of Virginia upheld President Trump’s revised March 6 executive order that banned foreign nationals from six countries identified as being state sponsors of terrorism or havens for terrorists. Although Trenga’s ruling contradicted those made by federal judges in Hawaii and Maryland earlier this month, Trump’s order remains suspended. In a reaction to the judge’s ruling, White House Press Secretary Sean Spicer said during a press briefing: “We’re pleased with this ruling, which found the plaintiffs have no likelihood of success on the merits of their claims. As the court correctly notes in its opinion, the President’s order falls well within his legal authority to protect the nation’s security. We’re confident the President’s fully lawful and necessary action will ultimately be allowed to move forward through the rest of the ... court system.” For more information, click here.

Day 63 (Thurs., March 23)

- Repealing and replacing ObamaCare: President Trump met today with more than 30 members of the House Freedom Caucus to discuss repealing and replacing ObamaCare. “Members of the House Freedom Caucus thanked the President for engaging with them throughout the negotiations,” according to a White House statement. “The President thanked the group for their willingness to work closely with the White House and their colleagues in Congress to craft the strongest possible bill. The group agreed that their ultimate goal is to implement a system that will drive down costs and increase access to healthcare for millions of Americans. This meeting was a positive step toward that goal.”

Day 62 (Wed., March 22)

- American Health Care Act of 2017: The White House released a “statement of administration policy” today in support of H.R. 1628, the American Health Care Act of 2017, the ObamaCare replacement bill that the administration had been promoting since it was introduced. “The AHCA makes significant and important changes as part of a three step process to repeal and replace the ACA [Affordable Care Act, also known as ObamaCare],” the new White House statement said.
- EU-U.S. relations: Vice President Mike Pence meet today with EU High Representative and Vice President Federica Mogherini. “The Vice President reaffirmed the United States’ partnership with the European Union,” the White House reported. “The leaders underscored their commitment to work together to address transnational threats and discussed issues of mutual concern including Syria, Iraq, Libya, Iran, and North Korea.”
- White House to make financial disclosures public: The White House announced today that, “fulfilling the President’s commitment to ensure an ethical and transparent government, on March 31, 2017, the White House will be making the U.S. Office of Government Ethics Form 278 financial disclosure reports filed by high-level officials in the White House Office available to the public.” The statement continued: “Additionally, in the future, members of the public will be able to make requests through an online portal and receive access to the public financial disclosure reports of officials who have filed their form at least 30 days prior to the date of the request.”

- NASA: President Trump signed the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) Transition Authorization Act of 2017 (S. 442). The act establishes a budget of $19.5 billion for NASA for the current fiscal year, which ends September 30. As described by a White House statement, the act “authorizes the development and execution of a long-range plan for deep space human exploration; invests in robust science, technology and aeronautics portfolios; and endorses the Agency’s successful efforts to nurture a new commercial market that will boost our economy and create more jobs.” During the signing ceremony for the bill, Trump said: “With this legislation, we support NASA’s scientists, engineers, astronauts and their pursuit of discovery. America’s space program has been a blessing to our people and to the entire world. Almost half a century ago, our brave astronauts first planted the American flag on the moon. That was a big moment in our history. Now this nation is ready to be the first in space once again. Today we’re taking the initial steps toward a bold and brave new future for American space flight.”

Day 60 (Mon., March 20)

- The Competitive Health Insurance Reform Act of 2017: The White House released a statement expressing the administration’s support for H.R. 372, the Competitive Health Insurance Reform Act of 2017. “H.R. 372 would amend the McCarran-Ferguson Act to ensure that Federal antitrust laws apply to the business of health insurance,” the White House said in its statement. “The bill supports the goal of giving American families and businesses more control over their own healthcare choices by promoting greater health insurance competition. The bill would specifically prohibit businesses from engaging in anti-competitive practices, including price fixing, bid rigging, and market allocation that could drive up healthcare costs.”
- FBI investigating Russian interference in the election: In his appearance today before the U.S.

Written by Charles Scaliger on May 22, 2017

House Intelligence Committee, FBI Director James Comey confirmed that the FBI “is investigating the Russian government’s efforts to interfere in the 2016 president election. And that includes investigating the nature of any links between individuals associated with the Trump campaign and the Russian government and whether there was any coordination between the campaign and Russia’s efforts.” Comey also said he has “no information” supporting President Trump’s tweets alleging that President Obama had wiretapped his phones in the Trump Tower during the campaign. NSA Director Admiral Michael Rogers also testified today. Both he and Comey were asked if they had any evidence that Russia had changed vote tallies in Michigan, Pennsylvania, Wisconsin, Florida, North Carolina, or Ohio. Both said no. Trump tweeted regarding those responses, “The NSA and FBI tell Congress that Russia did not influence electoral process,” and he included with his tweet a video clip of that segment of the hearing.

- Iraq-U.S. relations: President Trump welcomed Iraqi Prime Minister Haider al-Abadi to the Oval Office to, in the words of a White House statement, “reaffirm America’s support for Iraq and the Iraqi people in our shared fight against the terrorist group ISIS/Da’esh.” “Together with our partners in the 68-member Global Coalition against ISIS/Da’esh, the United States will continue training and support for Iraqi forces to bring about the terrorist group’s decisive and enduring defeat and further build the capabilities of Iraqi forces,” the White House stated. “This security partnership is a vital component of the national security of both the United States and Iraq.”

Days 58 & 59 (Sat., March 18 & Sun., March 19)

NATO: In a two-part tweet on Saturday, President Trump stated: “Despite what you have heard from the FAKE NEWS, I had a GREAT meeting with German Chancellor Angela Merkel. Nevertheless, Germany owes vast sums of money to NATO & the United States must be paid more for the powerful, and very expensive, defense it provides to Germany!”

Day 57 (Fri., March 17)

- NATO: At a joint press conference with German Chancellor Angela Merkel, President Trump said that he “reiterated” to the chancellor his “strong support for NATO, as well as the need for our NATO allies to pay their fair share for the cost of defense.” He added: “I thanked Chancellor Merkel for the German government’s commitment to increase defense spending and work toward contributing at least 2 percent of GDP.”

- Vocational training: During a roundtable discussion at the White House on vocational training with U.S. and German business leaders, Trump said that “the German apprenticeship model is one of the proven programs to developing a highly skilled workforce.” He continued: “Germany has been amazing at this, and I’m glad that the leaders of so many companies represented today have recently launched successful programs right here in the United States.... I believe that both countries will be stronger if we continue to deepen our bilateral cooperation on vocational training as we build off the best ideas, create the greatest opportunity for growth, and improve the lives of so many workers.” Among those present was German Chancellor Angela Merkel.

- U.S.-Irish relations: President Trump met with Taoiseach Enda Kenny of Ireland “to discuss United States-Ireland economic and cultural ties as part of the White House St. Patrick’s Day celebration,” the White House reported. “They agreed on the importance of Northern Ireland’s political parties finding a way forward on a shared regional government in order to sustain the peace process launched by the - Budget “blueprint” released: President Donald Trump’s Office of Management and Budget (OMB) unveiled “America First — A Budget Blueprint to Make America Great Again,” noting that the president’s actual budget for fiscal year 2018 will be released in May. In his message at the beginning of the document, Trump said his blueprint “provides for one of the largest increases in defense spending without increasing the debt”; “significantly increases the budget for immigration enforcement”; “includes additional resources for a wall on the Southern border with Mexico”; “increases funding to address violent crime”; and “puts America first by keeping more of America’s hard-earned tax dollars here at home.” His plan is to fund the $54 billion increase in defense spending through “targeted reductions elsewhere.” He didn’t mention in his message that “elsewhere” is severely limited to about one-sixth of the total budget, thanks to “mandatory” spending (Social Security, Medicare, Medicaid) and interest payments on the national debt. He did not suggest the size of the budget to be presented in May, nor did he refer to former President Obama’s last budget, which spent $4.15 trillion while collecting far less than that, resulting in a deficit approaching $600 billion. The blueprint does call for defunding a number of agencies including the Corporation for Public Broadcasting, the National Endowment for the Arts, and the National Endowment for the Humanities, but the savings would be minuscule compared to the total size of the federal budget.

Day 56 (Thurs., March 16)

- Travel ban: During his press briefing today, Press Secretary Sean Spicer stated that “we intend to appeal the flawed rulings” issued by a federal judge in Hawaii Wednesday and a federal judge in Maryland on Thursday blocking nationwide all or substantial provisions of President Trump’s March 6 executive order that banned foreign nationals from six countries identified as being state sponsors of terrorism or havens for terrorists. The executive order was scheduled to go into effect today. Spicer noted that “the Court didn’t even bother to quote the relevant statute in its opinion, which could have plainly shown that the President clearly has this authority.” He then quoted the relevant part of the statute (8 U.S. Code 1182), which states: “Whenever the President finds that the entry of any aliens or of any class of aliens into the United States would be detrimental to the interests of the United States, he may by proclamation, and for such period as he shall deem necessary, suspend the entry of all aliens or any class of aliens as immigrants or nonimmigrants, or impose on the entry of aliens any restrictions he may deem to be appropriate.”

- Military and DHS spending request: President Trump sent a letter to Speaker of the House Paul Ryan asking Congress to consider appropriating additional spending for the current fiscal year (fiscal year 2017) ending September 30. Specifically, he requested “an additional $30 billion for the Department of Defense (DOD) to rebuild the U.S. Armed Forces and accelerate the campaign to defeat the Islamic State of Iraq and Syria (ISIS), and an additional $3 billion for the Department of Homeland Security (DHS) for urgent border protection activities.” In his letter, he also stated, “In conjunction with this request, I recommend that the Congress enact non-defense discretionary reductions of $18 billion in FY 2017, which would fully offset the amounts proposed for DHS and would offset half of the amounts proposed for DOD.”

- CAFE standards: During a speech to automobile company executives and workers in Ypsilanti, Michigan, President Trump promised to restore the federal government’s mid-term review of the federal fuel efficiency standards that former President Obama cancelled just before leaving office. “I’m sure you’ve all heard the big news that we’re going to work on the CAFE standards, so you can make cars in America again. We’re going to help the companies, and they’re going to help you,” Trump said. CAFE stands for Corporate Average Fuel Economy. CAFE standards are regulations first enacted by the U.S. Congress in 1975 after the 1973-74 Arab Oil Embargo that required improved average fuel economy of cars and light trucks produced for sale in the United States. The standards have been increased over time.

- Snoop Dogg: Responding to a new music video in which Snoop Dogg mock-assassinates clown “Ronald Klump,” who is obviously intended to represent Donald Trump, the president responded: “Can you imagine what the outcry would be if @SnoopDogg, failing career and all, had aimed and fired the gun at President Obama? Jail time!”
- Tax returns leak: Regarding yesterday’s release of two pages of his tax returns for 2005, President Trump tweeted: “Does anybody really believe that a reporter, who nobody ever heard of, ‘went to his mailbox’ and found my tax returns? @NBCNews FAKE NEWS!”

Day 54 (Tues., March 14)

- Tax returns leak: MSNBC released two pages of President Trump’s tax returns for 2005, with host Rachel Maddow saying that they were obtained from journalist David Cay Johnston, who said he received them in his mail box. Shortly before the Rachel Maddow Show aired, the White House responded preemptively. “You know you are desperate for ratings when you are willing to violate the law to push a story about two pages of tax returns from over a decade ago,” a White House official stated. “That being said, Mr. Trump paid $38 million dollars even after taking into account large scale depreciation for construction, on an income of more than $150 million dollars, as well as paying tens of millions of dollars in other taxes such as sales and excise taxes and employment taxes and this illegally published return proves just that.” The official continued: “Despite this substantial income figure and tax paid, it is totally illegal to steal and publish tax returns.”

- Reorganizing the executive branch: President Trump signed an executive order entitled “Comprehensive Plan for Reorganizing the Executive Branch.” “This order is intended to improve the efficiency, effectiveness, and accountability of the executive branch by directing the Director of the Office of Management and Budget (Director) to propose a plan to reorganize governmental functions and eliminate unnecessary agencies ..., components of agencies, and agency programs,” the document says. It specifies that “within 180 days ..., the head of each agency shall submit to the Director a proposed plan to reorganize the agency, if appropriate, in order to improve the efficiency, effectiveness, and accountability of that agency.”
- First Cabinet meeting: President Trump held his first Cabinet meeting today. “Unfortunately, not all of our Cabinet members could join us,” Trump said. “We have four empty seats — which is a terrible thing — because the Senate Democrats are continuing to obstruct the confirmation of our nominees for the Department of Labor, the Department of Agriculture, the Director of National Intelligence, and the United States Trade Representative, somebody I want very badly.”

Days 51 & 52 (Sat., March 11 & Sun., March 12)

- ObamaCare: Vice President Mike Pence spoke in Louisville, Kentucky, Sunday on the subject of ObamaCare. “For us to seize this opportunity to repeal and replace ObamaCare once and for all, we need every Republican in Congress — and we’re counting on Kentucky,” Pence said. Interestingly, although he positively referenced Senator Mitch McConnell (and other Kentucky lawmakers who support the president’s repeal-and-replace plan) during his speech, he did not mention the state’s other U.S. senator, Rand Paul, who has called the Trump-backed House Republican ObamaCare replacement bill, the American Health Care Act, “ObamaCare Lite” and has offered his own plan. Regarding McConnell, Pence said: “And I got to tell you it’s great to be in the home state of the Senate Majority Leader, Mitch McConnell. He’s a true friend to me, to our President, and to the people of America.”

Day 50 (Fri., March 10)

- “Three-Pronged Approach to Repeal and Replace Obamacare”: The administration posted a summary of its three-prong approach on the White House website today. The first prong is enactment of the American Health Care Act, the Republican plan that was introduced in the House this week. The other prongs include “2. Provide Essential Regulatory Relief” and “3. Reform Healthcare Through Additional Legislation.” The latter prong includes “allow[ing] health insurance to be sold across state lines,” and “streamlin[ing] processes at the FDA, removing the red tape that slows down approvals of generic competitors to high-price drugs in order to lower the cost of medicine.”

Day 49 (Thurs., March 9)

- U.S. military intervention in Syria: During the daily press briefing, Press Secretary Sean Spicer was asked twice about U.S. boots being put on the ground in Syria. The deployment, first reported by the Washington Post Wednesday, was done without either public knowledge or congressional debate or authorization. “During the campaign President Trump was not shy about his desire to get the United States out of these Middle Eastern wars, yet ... we just sent 250 Marines into Syria,” one reporter noted. He then asked: “Is President Trump committed to going to Congress to receiving authorization for an AUMF [Authorization for Use of Military Force] or a declaration of war if we continue to deploy United States troops overseas?” Spicer responded: “I think there’s a big difference between an authorization of war than sending a few hundred advisors.... I think that’s a big difference between a hostile action and going in to address some certain concerns.” But “a few hundred advisors” does not adequately describe the nature of the deployment, which includes artillery batteries and heavily armed armored vehicles.

Day 48 (Wed., March 8)

- Job growth: President Trump tweeted regarding the growth in jobs reported today by the monthly LinkedIn Workforce Report: “LinkedIn Workforce Report: January and February were the strongest consecutive months for hiring since August and September 2015.” The same day this report was released, the ADP/Moody’s jobs report was also released, showing job growth 50-percent ahead of Wall Street’s expectations: 298,000 jobs were created in February versus expectations of less than 200,000 by economists polled by the Wall Street Journal. The job growth was all across the spectrum, with construction and manufacturing sectors adding 106,000 new jobs.

- International Women’s Day: The White House released a “Statement from the Press Secretary in Honor of International Women’s Day.” “International Women’s Day gives us the opportunity to celebrate and reflect upon the meaningful progress women have made throughout society,” the statement said, “while also acknowledging that there is still much work that remains to be done to ensure the complete and consequential participation of women in all spheres of economic, political, and public life.” In an early morning tweet, President Trump stated: “On International Women’s Day, join me in honoring the critical role of women here in America & around the world.”

Written by Charles Scaliger on May 22, 2017

- House Republicans’ ObamaCare replacement bill: President Trump tweeted, regarding the House Republican proposal unveiled Monday to replace and repeal the Affordable Care Act (ObamaCare): “Our wonderful new Healthcare Bill is now out for review and negotiation. ObamaCare is a complete and total disaster – is imploding fast!” The House Republican bill, the American Health Care Act (AHCA), would repeal the individual and employer mandates, along with many of ObamaCare’s taxes. However, it would also impose its own mandates and leave some of ObamaCare’s worst features in place, including the regulations requiring insurers to charge the same rates regardless of pre-existing conditions and the provision allowing children to remain on their parents’ policies until age 26. Instead of staking out a bold position in favor of the Constitution and free markets, the GOP has chosen to offer up, in the words of Congressman Justin Amash (R-Mich.), “ObamaCare 2.0.”
- Senator Rand Paul: President Trump tweeted: “I feel sure that my friend @RandPaul will come along with the new and great health care program because he knows Obamacare is a disaster!” Senator Paul, who referred to the House Republican ObamaCare replacement bill as “ObamaCare Lite,” has offered his own plan to repeal ObamaCare and replace it with a system relying on the market for price controls and coverage guidelines.
- Defense Department appropriations: The White House released a statement saying that the administration supports House passage of H.R. 1301, the Department of Defense appropriations bill for the fiscal year ending September 30, 2017. The statement, posted on WhiteHouse.gov, said that “the bill funds critical national security needs.” The statement did not mention the amount of funding, which was summarized on the House floor by Appropriations Committee Chairman Rodney Frelinghuysen (R-N.J.) the following day: “In total, this bill provides $577.9 billion in funding for the Department of Defense — $516.1 billion in base discretionary funding, and $61.8 billion in Overseas Contingency Operations and Global War on Terrorism funding. When combined with the funding provided in the continuing resolution supplemental enacted in December, total Defense funding for FY17 equals $584 billion — consistent with the topline provided in the National Defense Authorization Act, and $10.9 billion more than fiscal year 2016 levels.” But military spending for fiscal 2017 will be increased further, if the Trump administration gets its way. The White House statement quoted above explains: “In the coming weeks, the Administration plans to request additional FY 2017 appropriations to improve the warfighting readiness of the military and provide the resources needed to accelerate the defeat of the Islamic State of Iraq and Syria (ISIS).”

- New Immigration executive order: President Trump signed an executive order “to protect the Nation from terrorist activities by foreign nationals admitted to the United States.” The new order differs from an earlier order restricting travel to the United States that Trump had signed on January 27, but was soon suspended by a temporary restraining order imposed by a federal court. The new executive order that Trump signed drops Iraq from the nations listed in the previous order — Iran, Iraq, Libya, Somalia, Sudan, Syria, and Yemen. In place of the ban, Iraq will “increase cooperation with the US government on the vetting of its citizens applying for a visa to travel to the United States,” said an administration fact sheet. In an effort to avoid some of the conflict that led to the court ruling that blocked the original order, the new executive order specifies that lawful permanent residents (those who hold green cards) are excluded from any travel ban, said White House advisor Kellyanne Conway speaking on Fox and Friends. Those with validly issued visas will also be exempt from the ban.

Day 45 (Sun., March 5)

• What Obama told the Russian president: Amid the controversy about allegations that Russia hacked last year’s presidential election and that then-Senator Jeff Sessions, who had endorsed Trump, had communications with the Russian ambassador, Trump tweeted: “Who was it that secretly said to Russian President, ‘Tell Vladimir that after the election I’ll have more flexibility?’ @foxandfriends.” Trump was referring to a private conversation between President Obama and Russian President Dmitry Medvedev that was caught on a hot mic on March 26, 2012 in Seoul, South Korea. As captured by the mic, Obama, apparently unaware that he was being recorded, told Medvedev: “This is my last election. After my election I have more flexibility.” To which Medvedev responded “I understand. I will transmit this information to Vladimir [Putin].”

Day 44 (Sat. March 4)

• Did Obama wiretap Trump? President Trump unleashed a flurry of tweets today accusing President Obama of “wire tapping” his phones in the Trump Tower during his presidential bid. In the first tweet, Trump said: “Terrible! Just found out that Obama had my ‘wires tapped’ in Trump Tower just before the victory. Nothing found. This is McCarthyism!” In another tweet he said, “I’d bet a good lawyer could make a great case out of the fact that President Obama was tapping my phones in October, just prior to Election!” And in another, he said: “How low has President Obama gone to tap my phones during the very sacred election process. This is Nixon/Watergate. Bad (or sick) guy!”

• Who hasn’t met the Russian ambassador?! President Trump sent two tweets today related to the controversy about Attorney General Sessions meeting the Russian ambassador when he was a U.S. senator. In the first tweet, Trump said: “We should start an immediate investigation into @SenSchumer and his ties to Russia and Putin. A total hypocrite!” The tweet included a photo of Senator Chuck Shumer with Putin. In the second tweet, Trump added: “I hereby demand a second investigation, after Schumer, of Pelosi for her close ties to Russia, and lying about it.” The latter tweet included a photo, from Politico, of Democratic House leader Nancy Pelosi seated with Russian Ambassador Sergey Kislyak and others, as well as the Politico headline: “Photo contradicts Pelosi’s statement about not meeting Kislyak.”

• School choice: President Trump visited St. Andrew Catholic School in Orlando, Florida, where he remarked: “As I’ve often said in my address to Congress and just about anyplace else I can speak, education is the civil rights issue of our time. And it’s why I’ve asked Congress to support a school-choice bill.”

- “Jeff Sessions is an honest man”: Responding to allegations that Attorney General Jeff Sessions lied under oath about communications with the Russian ambassador, President Trump said in a series of tweets: “Jeff Sessions is an honest man. He did not say anything wrong. He could have stated his response more accurately, but it was clearly not intentional. This whole narrative is a way of saving face for Democrats losing an election that everyone thought they were supposed to win. The Democrats are overplaying their hand. They lost the election, and now they have lost their grip on reality. The real story is all of the illegal leaks of classified and other information. It is a total ‘witch hunt!’”

- Visiting the USS Gerald R. Ford: President Trump visited the soon-to-be commissioned aircraft carrier USS Gerald R. Ford in Newport, Virginia, where he told sailors: “We will give our military the tools you need to prevent war and, if required, to fight war and only do one thing — you know what that is? Win! Win!” He described the carrier fleet as “the centerpiece of American military might overseas” and said “we are standing today on 4.5 acres of combat power and sovereign U.S. territory, the likes of which there is nothing to compete.” He also said his plans for military buildup include a 12-carrier fleet.

Day 41 (Wed., March 1)

- Women’s History Month: President Trump proclaimed March 2017 “Women’s History Month,” stating in his proclamation: “America will continue to fight for women’s rights and equality across the country and around the world. Though poverty holds back many women, America cannot and will not allow this to persist. We will empower all women to pursue their American dreams, to live, work and thrive in safe communities that allow them to protect and provide for themselves and their families.”

Day 40 (Tues., Feb. 28)

- Speech to a joint session of Congress: “My job is not to represent the world. My job is to represent the United States of America,” President Trump told a joint session of Congress Tuesday night, reemphasizing his campaign theme of putting America First. And he pointedly told Congress and the watching American public that it is not the proper role of the United States to impose its will on other sovereign nations: “Free nations are the best vehicle for expressing the will of the people — and America respects the right of all nations to chart their own path. We know that America is better off, when there is less conflict — not more.” The speech covered many of the same themes the new president often spoke of during his rather unorthodox campaign, which ended in his upset victory last November: rewriting global trade rules, halting illegal immigration, repealing ObamaCare, reducing government regulation of private enterprise, defeating “radical Islamic terrorism,” rebuilding the American military, and supporting the police. “We’ve defended the borders of other nations, while leaving our own borders wide open, for anyone to cross,” Trump asserted. “By finally enforcing our immigration laws, we will raise wages, help the unemployed, save billions of dollars, and make our communities safer for everyone.” “For that reason,” Trump continued, “we will soon begin the construction of a great wall along our southern border.”

- First step toward eliminating “Waters of the United States” power grab: President Donald Trump signed an executive order directing the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency to review and reconsider the “Waters of the United States” (WOTUS) regulation, a radical decree issued by the Obama administration purporting to regulate virtually all water and much of the land across America. “The Clean Water Act says that the EPA can regulate ‘navigable waters’ — meaning waters that truly affect interstate commerce,” Trump explained before signing the order. “But a few years ago, the EPA decided that ‘navigable waters’ can mean nearly every puddle or every ditch on a farmer’s land.” Trump called this rule a “massive power grab,” adding: “The EPA’s regulators were putting people out of jobs by the hundreds of thousands, and regulations and permits started treating our wonderful small farmers and small businesses as if they were a major industrial polluter.” He cited as an example a Wyoming rancher who “was fined $37,000 a day by the EPA for digging a small watering hole for his cattle.” While stopping short of quashing the controversial rule altogether, analysts described Trump’s executive order as a first step in that process. “With today’s executive order, I’m directing the EPA to take action, paving the way for the elimination of this very destructive and horrible rule,” Trump said. The latest order comes amid media reports that Trump is readying another executive order to dismantle Obama’s “climate” regulations purporting to limit emissions of the “gas of life” carbon dioxide. For more information, click here.

- Protecting the Second Amendment: President Trump signed a bill (House Joint Resolution 40) nullifying a Social Security Administration rule that (as described by a White House statement dated February 1) “would prevent some Americans with disabilities from purchasing or possessing firearms based on their decision to seek Social Security benefits.”

- Meeting with National Governors Association: President Trump held a White House meeting with the nation’s governors, telling them that “many of you have shared past frustrations with waiting for permission from the federal government and agencies,” that this has been “catastrophic for some of your states,” and that “we’re going to speed it up.” Why? “Because that’s not how a partnership is supposed to work. The government should not stand in your way in delivering needed reforms and services — and it won’t.” He also promised the governors, “We’re also going to do whatever we can to restore the authority of the states when that is the appropriate thing to do. We’re going to give you back a lot of the powers that have been taken away from states and great people and great governors.” Under the U.S. Constitution, the powers delegated to the federal government are (in the words of James Madison) “few and defined,” while those retained by the states are “many and indefinite.” But over many years, during both Republican and Democrat administrations, the federal government has increasingly intruded in areas outside the proper (constitutional) scope of federal authority — from public education to housing. And since the person (or entity) who pays the piper calls the tune, the aid that the federal government has provided for state-administered programs has come with the proverbial strings attached. In his meeting with the governors, Trump also talked about the budget he would be proposing for the U.S. government, describing it as “a public safety and national security budget” that would include a “historic increase in defense spending.”

- Listening session with health insurance CEOs: President Trump held a “listening session” at the White House with CEOs of health insurance companies. He told them, “We must work together to save Americans from Obamacare — you people know that, and everyone knows that at this point — to create more competition and to bring down the prices substantially.”

Day 38 (Sun., Feb. 26)

- DNC race “rigged”: President Trump tweeted, regarding yesterday’s election of Thomas Perez over Keith Ellison for DNC chairman: “The race for DNC Chairman was, of course, totally ‘rigged.’ Bernie’s guy, like Bernie himself, never had a chance. Clinton demanded Perez!”

Day 37 (Sat., Feb. 25)

- White House Correspondents' Dinner: President Trump tweeted: "I will not be attending the White House Correspondents' Association Dinner this year. Please wish everyone well and have a great evening!" White House Correspondents' Association president Jeff Mason responded in a statement: "The WHCA takes note of President Donald Trump's announcement on Twitter that he does not plan to attend the dinner, which has been and will continue to be a celebration of the First Amendment and the important role played by an independent news media in a healthy republic." This year's annual dinner is scheduled for April 29.

- Reaction to race for new DNC chairman: After former secretary of Labor Thomas Perez edged out U.S. Representative Keith Ellison (Minn.) in two rounds of voting as the new chairman of the Democratic National Committee, President Trump tweeted: "Congratulations to Thomas Perez, who has just been named Chairman of the DNC. I could not be happier for him, or for the Republican Party!"

- CPAC speech: President Trump spoke this morning at CPAC, the Conservative Political Action Conference, in Maryland, where he once again criticized the "dishonest media" for its "fake news" while drawing a distinction between "fake news" and the media. "A few days ago, I called the fake news the enemy of the people — and they are. They are the enemy of the people," Trump told the annual gathering. However, "In covering my comments, the dishonest media did not explain that I called the fake news the enemy of the people. The fake news. They dropped off the word 'fake.' And all of a sudden the story became, the media is the enemy." He added, "I'm not against the media, I'm not against the press," though the media narrative says otherwise. On February 17 Trump tweeted: "The FAKE NEWS media (failing @nytimes, @NBCNews, @ABC, @CBS, @CNN) is not my enemy, it is the enemy of the American People!" This tweet was widely portrayed by the media and others as saying that the media, as opposed to the "FAKE NEWS media," is "the enemy of the American people." In his CPAC speech, Trump also told the gathering: "We're all part of this very historic movement, a movement the likes of which, actually, the world has never seen before.... The core conviction of our movement is that we are a nation that put and will put its own citizens first." A statement released by the White House yesterday describes CPAC as "a gathering of conservative activists from all across the country who meet to learn from each other, receive training in activism and campaign management, and hear from prominent conservative leaders." This was Trump's fifth appearance at CPAC. According to the White House statement, "To date, three Presidents have addressed CPAC."

- Regulatory reform: President Trump signed an executive order, entitled "Enforcing the Regulatory Reform Agenda," that declared: "It is the policy of the United States to alleviate unnecessary regulatory burdens placed on the American people." Under the order, agency heads will "designate an agency official as its Regulatory Reform Officer," and "each RRO shall oversee the implementation of regulatory reform initiatives and policies to ensure that agencies effectively carry out regulatory reforms, consistent with applicable law." Also, each agency will establish a "Regulatory Reform Task Force," chaired by the PRO unless the agency head designates someone else.

- Meeting with manufacturing CEOs: President Trump met with 24 CEOs of large manufacturing firms in the White House. "As you know, the United States lost one-third of our manufacturing jobs since NAFTA,” Trump said to them. “That’s an unbelievable number and statistic. And 70,000 factories closed since China joined the WTO — 70,000 factories.” “So you say, what are we doing, Trump asked rhetorically. Continuing, he said: “My administration’s policies and regulatory reform, tax reform, trade policies will return significant manufacturing jobs to our country. Everything is going to be based on bringing our jobs back, the good jobs, the real jobs. They’ve left, and they’re coming back.”

Day 34 (Wed., Feb. 22)

- Rescinding transgender bathroom and Locker-room rules: The Trump administration’s Departments of Justice and Education announced that they are withdrawing and rescinding the federal guidelines put in place by the Obama administration specifying that public schools must allow transgender students to use the bathrooms and locker rooms of their chosen gender. The change in policy was outlined in a “Dear Colleague” letter the departments are in the process of sending to the nation’s public schools.
- Cleaning up the fiscal mess: In opening remarks at what he described as “somewhat of an informal” budget meeting, President Trump noted that “the budget we’re inheriting — essentially inheriting — is a mess” and that “the finances of our country are a mess.” “But,” he continued, “we’re going to clean them up.” To accomplish this, he promised: “We’ll be directing all of our departments and agencies to protect every last American and every last tax dollar. No more wasted money.” Yet the federal fiscal crisis is so immense — Trump pointed out in his remarks that the national debt doubled over the last eight years — that eliminating government waste, by itself, would not come close to solving the problem. To do that, unconstitutional government programs and agencies need to be phased out and eliminated. Trump did not recommend any such cutback in his remarks, except perhaps when he said “healthcare is moving along nicely.” Regarding that issue, Trump has called for repealing and replacing ObamaCare.
- “Buy American and hire American”: Speaking to employees at the Fabick Cat factory in Fenton, Missouri, Vice President Pence said that “businesses are already reacting to President Trump’s ‘buy American and hire American’ vision with optimism, investment, and a belief in our country again,” citing as examples GM, U.S. Steel, and IBM. “They’re already announcing their intention to keep jobs here, to create news ones, tens of thousands of them,” Pence said. “As Ford Motor Company’s chief executive put it, even before the President took his oath of office, their investments are a ‘vote of confidence in the agenda of President Donald Trump.’” Regarding that agenda, Pence said, “If you take nothing else from what I tell you today, know this: The nightmare of Obamacare is about to end.”

- Securing the border: In keeping with President Trump’s promises to secure the borders of the United States, the Department of Homeland Security released today two memoranda, dated Feb. 20, detailing how the Trump administration will enforce immigration laws both along the border and in the interior. The memos, from Homeland Security Secretary John Kelly, detail the ways in which the administration will prosecute illegal immigrants and criminal immigrants as well as allow local law enforcement to enforce federal immigration laws. Under Trump’s immigration policy, Border Patrol and Immigration and Customs Enforcement (ICE) agents will not be barred from pursuing illegal immigrants, as they were under Obama’s policy. As White House press secretary Sean Spicer said in a press conference, “For so long, [Border Patrol and ICE agents] had their hands cuffed behind them.... What we’ve done is to make sure that they have the ability and the guidance and the resources to do what their mission is. And that's it, plain and simple." The policy also puts the heat on the so-called sanctuary cities, where immigration laws have not been considered enforceable, and eliminates an office Obama had put in place to act as an advocate of illegal immigrants within DHS.

- African American museum: President Trump toured the National Museum of African American History and Culture in Washington, D.C. He described the museum as "a beautiful tribute to so many American heroes — heroes like Sojourner Truth, Harriet Tubman, Frederick Douglass, Booker T. Washington, Rosa Parks, the Greensboro students, and the African American Medal of Honor recipients," and said that he's "deeply proud that we now have a museum that honors the millions of African American men and women who built our national heritage, especially when it comes to faith, culture and the unbreakable American spirit." He also said that his tour "was a meaningful reminder of why we have to fight bigotry, intolerance and hatred in all of its very ugly forms," adding, "The anti-Semitic threats targeting our Jewish community and community centers are horrible and are painful, and a very sad reminder of the work that still must be done to root out hate and prejudice and evil."

- New national security advisor: President Trump announced from his Florida estate Mar-a-Lago that Lt. General H.R. McMaster will be his new national security advisor, replacing former Lt. General Michael Flynn, who resigned on February 13 in the midst of controversy regarding his phone conversations with the Russian ambassador last December, during the transition period. Press Secretary Sean Spicer said the day after Flynn resigned that the decision to ask him to do so was "not based on a legal issue, but based on a trust issue."

- What's happening in Sweden? In response to media reports claiming that there is no refugee crisis in Sweden, President Trump tweeted: "Give the public a break - The FAKE NEWS media is trying to say that large scale immigration in Sweden is working out just beautifully. NOT!" Is it working out "beautifully" or isn't it? What's really happening in Sweden?

- U.S.-EU "partnership": Speaking alongside European Council President Donald Tusk at a joint news conference in Brussels, where the European Union is headquartered, Vice President Pence said: "It's my privilege on behalf of President Trump to express the strong commitment of the United States to continued cooperation and partnership with the European Union." However, in a BBC interview in January, Trump's proposed ambassador to the EU, Ted Malloch, described Trump's position on the EU differently: "[He] doesn't like an organization that is supranational, that is unelected, where the bureaucrats run amok, and is not frankly a proper democracy." Earlier this month, in another BBC interview, Malloch said Trump wants to deal with the nation-states in the EU bilaterally.

Day 31 (Sun., Feb. 19)

- Sweden statement: Clarifying a statement he made Saturday in his Melbourne, Florida, speech (see below), President Trump tweeted: "My statement as to what's happening in Sweden was in reference to a story that was broadcast on @FoxNews concerning immigrants & Sweden."

Day 30 (Sat., Feb. 18)

- Defending his travel ban: Speaking at a rally in Melbourne, Florida, President Trump defended his executive order that suspended foreign nationals from seven countries from entering the United States. Trump read from the statute providing the legal basis for his executive order. He said that he disagreed “big league” with the court ruling blocking enforcement of his order, and that “we will do something next week. I think you’ll be impressed. Let’s see what happens.” He then added, “Here’s the bottom line. We’ve got to keep our country safe.... You look at what’s happening in Germany, you look at what’s happening last night in Sweden. Sweden, who would believe this. Sweden. They took in large numbers. They’re having problems like they never thought possible. You look at what’s happening in Brussels. You look at what’s happening all over the world. Take a look at Nice. Take a look at Paris. We’ve allowed thousands and thousands of people into our country and there was no way to vet those people. There was no documentation. There was no nothing.” The reference to “last night in Sweden” served as a lightning rod for criticism of Trump’s remarks since there were no reports of terrorism in Sweden Friday night. But although largely dismissed by the major media, Europe is in the throes of a refugee crisis that is going from bad to worse.

Day 29 (Fri., Feb. 17)

- “Buy American and hire American”: President Trump attended the unveiling ceremony of the Boeing 787 “Dreamliner” aircraft in North Charleston, South Carolina. “We’re here today to celebrate American engineering and American manufacturing,” he said. “We’re also here today to celebrate jobs.... This plane, as you know, was built right here in the great state of South Carolina. Our goal as a nation must be to rely less on imports and more on products made right here in the U.S.A.” Trump continued: “This is our mantra: Buy American and Hire American.... Since November, jobs have already begun to surge. We’re seeing companies open up factories in America. We’re seeing them keep jobs at home. Ford, General Motors, Fiat-Chrysler — just to name a very, very few. So many more already. They are keeping and bringing thousands of jobs back in country because the business climate, they know, has already changed.”

- “Fake News”: In an extraordinary news conference, President Trump condemned the major media’s dissemination of “fake news,” using the phrase seven times in his answers to the White House press corp. The phrase was also used five times in the questions Trump fielded from reporters. The word “fake” was used in the context of news stories based on fabricated information at least another nine times. Trump was the first to interject the phrase “fake news” into the news conference, when he was asked if he had asked for Michael Flynn’s resignation as national security advisor. Trump began his response by saying: “Mike Flynn is a fine person, and I asked for his resignation. He respectfully gave it. He is a man who — there was a certain amount of information given to Vice President Pence, who is with us today. And I was not happy with the way that information was given.... What he did wasn’t wrong,” But taking the establishment media to the woodshed, Trump continued: What was wrong was the way that other people, including yourselves in this room, were given that information, because that was classified information that was given illegally. That’s the real problem. And you can talk all you want about Russia, which was all a fake news, fabricated deal to try and make up for the loss of the Democrats, and the press plays right into it..” Later in the news conference, Trump said that “over the course of time, I’ll make mistakes and you’ll write badly and I’m okay with that. But I’m not okay when it [the news] is fake.” Citing CNN specifically, he said, “It’s so much anger and hatred.... I don’t watch it anymore.”

- Travel ban redux: In the same press conference, President Trump addressed the ongoing legal battle over his suspension of the controversial refugee program, saying that while appealing the restraining order, he will be “issuing a new executive action next week that will comprehensively protect our country.” He promised that the new executive action “will be done some time next week, toward the beginning or middle at the latest part.”

- Claim: Intel being withheld from the president: The Wall Street Journal reported today that intelligence agencies have “withheld sensitive intelligence from President Donald Trump because they are concerned it could be leaked or compromised.” The information being withheld includes “the sources and methods that the intelligence agencies use to collect information” such as “the means that an agency uses to spy on a foreign government,” according to unnamed current and former officials.
- Coal mining: President Trump signed legislation (House Joint Resolution 38) nullifying the Stream Protection Rule finalized by the Interior Department on December 20, 2016, after Trump’s election to the presidency but prior to Obama’s departure. When he signed the legislation, Trump said that “compliance costs for this rule would be over $50 million a year for the coal industry alone, and it’s unnecessary.” A White House-released statement about the bill said, “Since January 2009, the coal mining industry has lost over 36,000 jobs without any relief in sight.”

- U.S.-South Africa relations: President Trump spoke with South African President Jacob Zuma about how to expand cooperation and trade between the two nations. “President Trump also suggested that the United States and South Africa do more to collaborate on shared security interests, including the fight against terrorism,” the White House reported. Ironically, the African National Congress (ANC) political party that Zuma leads was officially on the U.S. State Department’s list of terrorist organizations until 2008. The Soviet-backed, Communist Party controlled terrorist organization and political party was placed on this list in the 1980s by the Ronald Reagan administration — and for good reason. In its war against the South African government backed by communist forces from around the world, the ANC was ruthless, regularly bombing civilians. The party also frequently murdered dissidents, particularly black opponents of the ANC, using some of the most savage techniques imaginable, including a method touted by Nelson Mandela’s wife known as “necklacing” in which a gasoline-soaked tire would be set ablaze around the victim’s neck. More recently, Zuma went on national television and sang a genocidal song promising to massacre members of the embattled Afrikaner minority.
- U.S.- Israel relations: President Trump welcomed Israeli Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu to the White House, telling a joint press conference: “With this visit, the United States again reaffirms our unbreakable bond with our cherished ally, Israel. The partnership between our two countries built on our shared values has advanced the cause of human freedom, dignity and peace. These are the building blocks of democracy.” Trump used the occasion to say that he would “do more” to prevent Iran from developing nuclear weapons: “The security challenges faced by Israel are enormous, including the threat of Iran’s nuclear ambitions.... My administration has already imposed new sanctions on Iran, and I will do more to prevent Iran from ever developing — I mean ever — a nuclear weapon.” Regarding U.S. foreign aid to Israel, the president said: “Our security assistance to Israel is currently at an all-time high, ensuring that Israel has the ability to defend itself from threats of which there are unfortunately many.” And regarding the animus at the United Nations toward Israel, Trump said that he rejects the “unfair and one-sided actions against Israel at the United Nations — just treated Israel, in my opinion, very, very unfairly — or other international forums, as well as boycotts that target Israel.”

- Deregulation: President Trump held a “listening session” at the White House with the Retail Industry Leaders Association and CEOs of member companies. He told them that “overregulation costs our economy an estimated $2 trillion a year, which is incredible — $2 trillion — and it costs your businesses a lot of money, tremendous amounts of money and time.” He noted too that he’s “taken executive action to create a permanent structure of regulatory reduction” by knocking out two regulations for every new regulation.

- Deregulation: President Trump signed into law House Joint Resolution 41, which nullifies the “Disclosure of Payments by Resource Extraction Issuers” rule finalized by the Security and Exchange Commission in 2016. In its summary of the resolution, the Congressional Research Services says that the rule “requires resource extraction issuers to disclose payments made to governments for the commercial development of oil, natural gas, or minerals.” The White House released a statement the day Trump signed H. J. Res. 41 saying that “this legislation could save American businesses as much as $600 million annually in regulatory compliance costs and spare them 200,000 hours of paperwork,” and that “the regulation created an unfair advantage for foreign-owned extraction companies.”

- Flynn resignation: During his press briefing, Press Secretary Sean Spicer said that Michael Flynn was asked to tender his resignation as national security advisor “not based on a legal issue, but based on a trust issue, where a level of trust between the President and General Flynn had eroded to the point where he felt he had to make a change.” He continued: “The President was very concerned that General Flynn had misled the Vice President and others. He was also very concerned in light of sensitive subjects dealt with by that position of national security advisors — like China, North Korea and the Middle East — that the President must have complete and unwavering trust for the person in that position. The evolving and eroding level of trust as a result of this situation and a series of other questionable instances is what led the President to ask for General Flynn’s resignation.”

- School choice: At a “Parent-Teacher Conference Listening Session at the White House,” President Trump expressed his support for charter schools: “I want every single disadvantaged child in America, no matter what their background or where they live, to have a choice about where they go to school.... Charter schools, in particular, have demonstrated amazing gains and results. And you look at the results — we have cases in New York City that have been amazing in providing education to disadvantaged children and the success of so many different schools that I can name throughout the country that I got to see during the campaign. As described by Secretary of Education Betsy DeVos, the conference included “parents and educators representing traditional public schools, charter public schools, homeschools, private schools, a range of choices.”

- National Security Advisor Michael Flynn resigns: President Donald Trump’s national security advisor, Michael Flynn, resigned from his post in the midst of a controversy over a late-December conversation with Russian ambassador Sergey Kislyak during the transition period prior to Trump’s inauguration. Flynn is accused of having given Kislyak assurance, or at least the impression, that the incoming Trump administration would lift sanctions the Obama administration had imposed on Russia in retaliation for that country’s alleged interference in last year’s presidential election. The two men spoke by telephone on December 29, the same day the sanctions were announced. In his resignation letter, Flynn did not comment on whether he had discussed the sanctions with Kislyak. He did, however, confess to having “inadvertently briefed the Vice President Elect and others with incomplete information regarding” his conversations with Kislyak. “I have sincerely apologized to the president and the Vice President, and they have accepted my apology,” he wrote. For more information, click here. Following Flynn’s resignation, Trump named Lt. General Joseph Keith Kellogg, Jr. (Ret.) as acting national security advisor.

- Roundtable with women entrepreneurs: President Trump welcomed Canadian Prime Minister Justin Trudeau to the White House, where the two leaders participated in a roundtable discussion about women in the workforce as part of their first official meeting. In his remarks at the roundtable, Trump said: “We need to make it easier for women to manage the demands of having both a job and a family, and we also need to make it easier for women entrepreneurs to get access to capital.” A joint statement from Trump and Trudeau about a number of topics including women entrepreneurs said: “It is a priority of both countries to ensure equal opportunities for women in the workforce. We are committed to removing barriers to women’s participation in the business community and supporting women as they advance through it. As part of this effort, we are creating a United States-Canada Council for Advancement of Women Entrepreneurs and Business Leaders.”

Day 24 (Sun., Feb. 12)

- Travel ban: President Trump tweeted regarding the seven countries targeted by his travel ban: “72% of refugees admitted into U.S. (2/3 -2/11) during COURT BREAKDOWN are from 7 countries: SYRIA, IRAQ, SOMALIA, IRAN, SUDAN, LIBYA & YEMEN.”

Day 23 (Sat., Feb. 11)

- Hosting the Japanese prime minister: President Donald Trump and First Lady Melania hosted Japanese Prime Minister Shinzo and his wife at Mar-a-Lago in Palm Beach, Florida. The previous day, the White House issued a joint statement from Trump and Abe about the U.S.-Japan alliance.

Day 22 (Fri., Feb. 10)

- U.S.-Iraq alliance: President Trump spoke by phone with Iraqi Prime Minister Haider al-Abadi. According to the “readout” of the call released by the White House, the president “underscore[ed] the support of the United States for the Iraqi people in our shared fight against the terrorist group the Islamic State of Iraq and Syria (ISIS) and “emphasized the buildup of the United States military.” Also, Trump and al-Abadi “spoke to the threat Iran presents across the entire region” and “reaffirmed their commitment to the long-term partnership between the United States and Iraq grounded in the U.S.-Iraq Strategic Framework Agreement.”

- U.S.-Japan alliance: Welcoming Japanese Prime Minister Shinzo Abe to the White House, President Trump said at a joint press conference: “The U.S.-Japan alliance is the cornerstone of peace and stability in the Pacific region. It is important that both Japan and the United States continue to invest very heavily in the alliance to build up our defense and our defensive capabilities.” The White House released a joint statement from the two leaders that expressed the United States’ military commitment to Japan’s security: “The U.S.-Japan Alliance is fully capable of ensuring the security of Japan. The United States is fully committed to defending its homeland, forces, and allies, through the full range of U.S. military capabilities.” The joint statement also said that the United States and Japan are “committed to rigorous implementation of the U.N. Security Council resolutions on North Korea.”

- “SEE YOU IN COURT”: After the 9th Circuit Court of Appeals upheld a suspension of President Trump’s travel ban, which applies to citizens of seven countries and refugees, Trump fired back on Twitter, in all uppercase letters: “SEE YOU IN COURT, THE SECURITY OF OUR NATION IS AT STAKE!”
- “One China” policy: President Trump spoke by phone with Chinese President Xi Jinping. According to the “readout” of the call released by the White House, “President Trump agreed, at the request of President Xi, to honor our ‘one China’ policy.” Under this policy, the U.S. government does not recognize the Republic of China as a sovereign country. In 1979, the United States broke off diplomatic relations with the Republic of China and recognized instead the People’s Republic of China, the communist regime that subjugated the mainland.
- Tax cuts: In a meeting with airline executives at the White House, President Trump promised an announcement soon regarding tax cuts: “Lowering the overall tax burden on American businesses big league. That’s coming along very well. Way ahead of schedule, I believe. And we’re going to be announcing something, I would say, over the next two or three weeks that will be phenomenal in terms of tax, and developing our aviation infrastructure.”
- Executive orders on crime and law enforcement: After swearing in Attorney General Jeff Sessions, President Trump signed three executive orders that, he said in his remarks at the swearing in, were “designed to restore safety in America.” After signing the three orders, the White House released a statement summarizing them. “[The] first executive order will place the government firmly on the side of federal, state, tribal, and local law enforcement. This will ensure that funding supports officers on the street, and anyone who tries to do them harm will be aggressively prosecuted,” according to a statement. “The second Executive Order will instruct the Attorney General to form a task force to look at how crime can be reduced and public safety increased.” And the third “instructs the Attorney General to form a separate task force to focus on destroying transnational criminal organizations and drug cartels.”
- U.S.-Afghanistan strategic partnership: President Trump spoke by phone with Afghan President Ashraf Ghani. According to a “readout” of the call released by the White House, Trump “emphasized the ongoing importance of the U.S.-Afghanistan Strategic Partnership and his support for the National Unity Government.”

Day 20 (Wed., Feb. 8)

- What’s happening with ObamaCare repeal? During the press briefing by Press Secretary Sean Spicer, the Breitbart News reporter noted that “journalist Matt Drudge tweeted today that the Republican Party should be sued for fraud, basically upset about the lack of any legislation to repeal Obamacare or any tax cut legislation.” — and then asked: “So what’s your message to him and anyone else who’s worried about sort of the big push in the beginning and who might be concerned that that momentum is stalling?” Spicer responded: “I think it’s hardly stalling. I think it’s a mammoth thing to repeal and replace. I think there’s no question the President’s commitment to doing this. You’ve heard Speaker Ryan talk about how we should be able to have this wrapped up by the end of the year. It’s a big bill. It got jammed through, and it was very sweeping. We’re talking about one-fifth of our economy. We can either do it quickly, as the Democrats did, and end up with a monstrosity where premiums go up, access is limited, or we can do it right.”

- The Cabinet: President Trump formally announced his 24 Cabinet members, including those not yet confirmed. One of the names on the list, Senator Jeff Sessions, who is well known for his strong opposition to the TPP and illegal immigration, was confirmed by the Senate today as attorney general.

Day 19 (Tues., Feb. 7)

- School choice and Betsy DeVos: Vice President Pence cast the tie-breaking vote in the Senate confirming President Trump’s nomination of Besty DeVos for secretary of education. DeVos is known as an advocate of school choice. In a statement after the vote, Pence said of DeVos: “It doesn’t matter whether it’s a public school, a private school, a parochial school, a charter school, or any other kind of school — she will help ensure that every student has access to a good school.” Presumably this means that federal funds would be used to support both private and public schools including charter schools, raising the specter of federal control of education being expanded into private education through federal funding. Although “school choice” advocates opine that federal support for education should not be limited to traditional public schools, the federal government has no constitutional authority to interject itself into the education sector.

- Cabinet confirmations: President Trump lamented today on Twitter: “It is a disgrace that my full Cabinet is still not in place, the longest such delay in the history of our country. Obstruction by Democrats!”

- Asset forfeiture before conviction: When President Trump met with National Sheriffs’ Association members at the White House for a “roundtable” discussion, Rockwall County, Texas, Sheriff Harold Eavenson told the president: “On asset forfeiture, we got a state senator in Texas who was talking about introducing legislation to require conviction before we can receive their forfeiture.” After Trump interjected, “Can you believe that?,” Eavenson added: “And I told him that the cartel would build a monument to him in Mexico if he could get that legislation.” To which Trump responded, “Who is the state senator? Want to give his name? We’ll destroy his career.”

Day 18 (Mon., Feb. 6)

- “We strongly support NATO”: In his remarks at MacDill Air Force Base in Tampa, Florida, President Trump said: “We strongly support NATO. We only ask that all of the NATO members make their full and proper financial contributions to the NATO Alliance, which many of them have not been doing. Many of them have not been even close, and they have to do that.” Under the 1949 North Atlantic Treaty, member nations “agree that an armed attack against one or more of them ... shall be considered an attack against them all.” This agreement, requiring the United States to go to war if any member of NATO is attacked, undermines the provision in the U.S. Constitution that gives the U.S. Congress the power to declare war.

Day 17 (Sun., Feb. 5)

- NATO: President Trump spoke by phone with NATO Secretary-General Jens Stoltenberg “about the United States’ strong support for NATO,” according to a “readout” of the call released by the White House. Trump and Stoltenberg, who is Norwegian, also discussed “how to encourage all NATO allies to meet their defense spending commitments” and “the potential for a peaceful resolution of the conflict along the Ukrainian border.”

- The president on Putin: In a pre-taped Fox News interview broadcast before the Super Bowl, Bill O'Reilly asked President Trump if he respected Putin. Trump said that "I do respect him" and that "I respect a lot of people but that doesn't mean I am going to get along with him. He's a leader of his country. I say it's better to get along with Russia than not. And if Russia helps us in the fight against ISIS ... that's a good thing. Will I get along with him? I have no idea." When Reilly pressed, "Putin's a killer," Trump said: "There are a lot of killers. Do you think our country is so innocent?"

Day 16 (Sat., Feb. 4)

- Response to restraining order against travel ban: President Trump unleashed a flurry of tweets protesting the temporary restraining order a federal judge had issued the day before against his travel ban pertaining to nationals of seven countries and refugees. Trump said in one of his tweets: "The opinion of this so-called judge, which essentially takes law-enforcement away from our country, is ridiculous and will be overturned!" In another tweet he stated: "Because the ban was lifted by a judge, many very bad and dangerous people may be pouring into our country. A terrible decision." By the end of the day, the Trump administration appealed the decision and asked that the temporary restraining order be stayed, allowing the travel ban to be reinstated.

Day 15 (Fri., Feb. 3)

- Rolling back Dodd-Frank: President Trump signed an executive order directing the secretary of the treasury to review financial regulations. The order is intended to be a first step toward rolling back the Obama-era Dodd-Frank Wall Street Reform and Consumer Protection Act. In a morning meeting with business leaders, Trump said, "We expect to be cutting a lot out of Dodd-Frank."

- The Fiduciary Duty Rule: Trump signed an executive memorandum ordering a review the Department of Labor's Fiduciary Duty Rule, due to take effect in April, that would raise the standards of all financial professionals who work with retirement plans or provide retirement planning advice to the level of a fiduciary, a much higher level of accountability than previously required of financial salespersons, such as brokers, planners and insurance agents. The memorandum sets the stage for repealing or revising the Fiduciary Duty Rule. In his memorandum, Trump states, "One of the priorities of my Administration is to empower Americans to make their own financial decisions, to facilitate their ability to save for retirement and build the individual wealth necessary to afford typical lifetime expenses, such as buying a home and paying for college, and to withstand unexpected financial emergencies."

- Iran: National Security Advisor Michael T. Flynn said in a statement: "Today, the United States sanctioned twenty-five individuals and entities that provide support to Iran's ballistic missile program and to the Islamic Revolutionary Guard Corps' Quds Force." Flynn charged: "Iran's senior leadership continues to threaten the United States and our allies. Since the Obama Administration agreed to the Joint Comprehensive Plan of Action with Iran in 2015, Iran's belligerent and lawless behavior has only increased.... Just this week, Iran tested a ballistic missile, and one of its proxy terrorist groups attacked a Saudi vessel in the Red Sea." The statement concluded: "The days of turning a blind eye to Iran's hostile and belligerent actions toward the United States and the world community are over."

- The Johnson Amendment: In his remarks at the National Prayer Breakfast, President Trump acknowledged that "our Republic was formed on the basis that freedom is not a gift from government, but that freedom is a gift from God,” and that “among those freedoms is the right to worship according to our own beliefs.” He continued: “That is why I will get rid of, and totally destroy, the Johnson Amendment and allow our representatives of faith to speak freely and without fear of retribution.” The Johnson Amendment is a provision in the U.S. tax code that prohibits tax-exempt organizations including churches from endorsing or opposing political candidates. For more information, click here.

Written by Charles Scaliger on May 22, 2017

- Policy statement on legislation to nullify regulations: The White House released a “Statement of Administration Policy” in support of five House joint resolutions, including legislation to begin nullifying “unnecessary” and “burdensome” regulations imposed by the executive branch on American businesses. The legislation includes H.J. Res. 38, which would nullify a recently promulgated rule that “would establish onerous requirements for coal mining operations”; and H.J. Res. 41, which would nullify a rule that would “require oil and gas producers to reduce natural gas waste and emissions, regardless of whether or not it is economically viable to do so.” The recommended legislation also includes H.J. Res. 40, which would nullify a rule that “would prevent some Americans with disabilities from purchasing or possessing firearms based on their decision to seek Social Security benefits.” The statement concludes: “If these bills were presented to the President in their current form, his advisors would recommend that he sign them into law.”

- Iran: National Security Advisor Michael T. Flynn said in a statement today: “Recent Iranian actions, including a provocative ballistic missile launch and an attack against a Saudi naval vessel conducted by Iran-supported Houthi militants, underscore what should have been clear to the international community all along about Iran’s destabilizing behavior across the Middle East.” He added: “As of today, we are officially putting Iran on notice.”

Day 12 (Tues., Jan. 31)

- Nominating Judge Gorsuch for the Supreme Court: Calling 10th Circuit Court of Appeals Judge Neil Gorsuch a man whose “qualifications are beyond dispute” with “an extraordinary résumé as good as it gets,” President Donald Trump announced Gorsuch his pick Tuesday night to replace the late Justice Antonin Scalia on the U.S. Supreme Court. Gorsuch promised that, if confirmed, he would be a “faithful servant of the Constitution and laws of this great country.” Calling the U.S. Constitution the “greatest charter of human liberties” ever conceived on Earth, he told a prime time national television audience that he saw the judge’s role to apply that Constitution to cases that come before him.

Day 11 (Mon., Jan. 30)

- President Trump to the acting attorney general: You’re fired! President Trump fired Acting Attorney General Sally Yates tonight, after she had earlier in the day ordered Justice Department lawyers not to defend challenges to the president’s executive order temporarily banning foreign nationals from seven countries from entering the United States and suspending the refugee program.

- Reducing regulation: President Trump signed an executive order on “Reducing Regulation and Controlling Regulatory Costs,” which states that “it is the policy of the executive branch to be prudent and financially responsible in the expenditure of funds, from both public and private sources,” and that “for every one new regulation issued, at least two prior regulations be identified for elimination.” The order also states that for fiscal year 2017, “the total incremental cost of all new regulations, including repealed regulations, to be finalized this year shall be no greater than zero, unless otherwise required by law or consistent with advice provided in writing by the Director of the Office of Management and Budget.”

Day 10 (Sun., Jan. 29)

- U.S. soldier killed in Yemen: The White House released a statement by President Trump on a U.S. service member killed in Yemen. “The sacrifices made by the men and women of our armed forces, and the families they leave behind, are the backbone of the liberty we hold so dear as Americans, united in our pursuit of a safer nation and a freer world. My deepest thoughts and humblest prayers are with the family of this fallen service member,” Trump said in his statement. “I also pray for a quick and complete recovery for the brave service members who sustained injuries.” But the tragic death of a U.S. soldier in Yemen raises important questions: Should the U.S. military have boots on the ground there? Should we be engaged in a war in Yemen without the constitutionally required declaration of war — and without even a congressional debate? Should a single person decide when to plunge the nation into the crucible of war, regardless if he is President Obama or President Trump? Does our military interventionism in Yemen (and elsewhere in the Middle East) reduce the terrorist threat and make America safer, or does it have the opposite effects? And is the interventionism worth the sacrifice — including the ultimate sacrifice — of our soldiers?

Day 9 (Sat., Jan. 28)

- Defeating ISIS: President Trump signed a memorandum stating that “it is the policy of the United States that ISIS be defeated.” To achieve this end, the memorandum orders the secretary of defense to develop a comprehensive plan in collaboration with other administration officials, and to submit a preliminary draft of the plan to the president within 30 days. The memorandum warns that “ISIS has engaged in a systematic campaign of persecution and extermination in those territories it enters or controls,” and that, if “left in power, the threat that it poses will only grow.” The memorandum does not comment, however, on how ISIS became a threat to begin with.

- Lobbying ban on political appointees: President Trump signed an executive order banning the administration’s appointees in “every executive agency” from being able to “engage in lobbying activities with respect to that agency” for five years after the termination of employment.

Day 8 (Fri., Jan. 27)

- Suspending refugee program and entry of nationals from seven countries: President Trump signed an executive order to suspend for at least 90 days the entry of foreign nationals into the United States from seven “countries of particular concern”: Iran, Iraq, Libya, Somalia, Sudan, Syria, and Yemen. (In the case of Syria, the suspension is indefinite.) The order also suspends the U.S. Refugee Admissions Program (USRAP) for 120 days. In the “Purpose” section of his order, Trump explained: “Numerous foreign-born individuals have been convicted or implicated in terrorism-related crimes since September 11, 2001, including foreign nationals who entered the United States after receiving visitor, student, or employment visas, or who entered through the United States refugee resettlement program. Deteriorating conditions in certain countries due to war, strife, disaster, and civil unrest increase the likelihood that terrorists will use any means possible to enter the United States.” He also stated: “In order to protect Americans, the United States must ensure that those admitted to this country do not bear hostile attitudes toward it and its founding principles. The United States cannot, and should not, admit those who do not support the Constitution, or those who would place violent ideologies over

American law.”

- March for Life: On the day of the March for Life in Washington, D.C., President Trump tweeted: “The #MarchForLife is so important. To all of you marching — you have my full support!” Vice President Pence appeared at the pro-life event on behalf of the Trump administration. “More than two-hundred and forty years ago, our Founders wrote words that have echoed through the ages,” Pence told the massive crowd. “They declared ‘these truths to be self-evident.’ That we are, all of us, ‘endowed by our Creator with certain unalienable rights,’ and ‘that among these are life, liberty, and the pursuit of Happiness.’” He continued: “Forty-four years ago, our Supreme Court turned away from the first of these timeless ideals,” in reference to the January 22, 1973 Roe v. Wade decision.
- U.S.-Mexico relations: President Trump and Mexican President Enrique Peña Nieto spoke by phone “for an hour” this morning and had “a productive and constructive call,” according to a “Joint Statement on U.S.-Mexico Relations” posted at WhiteHouse.gov. “With respect to payment for the border wall,” the statement said, “both presidents recognize their clear and very public differences of positions on this issue but have agreed to work these differences out as part of a comprehensive discussion on all aspects of the bilateral relationship.” The previous day, Nieto had cancelled a face-to-face meeting he was to have with Trump, but after the hour-long phone conversation — originally scheduled for just 10 minutes — the White House said it would reschedule a face-to-face meeting “in the near future.”
- U.S. British relations: President Trump hosted his first foreign head of state at the White House, British Prime Minister Theresa May. “Together, America and the United Kingdom are a beacon for prosperity and the rule of law,” Trump said in his opening remarks. “That is why the United States respects the sovereignty of the British people and their right of self-determination.”

Day 7 (Thurs., Jan. 26)

- National School Choice Week: The White House website announced today that President Trump had released a proclamation the day before declaring “January 22 through January 28, 2017, as National School Choice Week.” In the proclamation, he states: “ I encourage parents to evaluate the educational opportunities available for their children. I also encourage State lawmakers and Federal lawmakers to expand school choice for millions of additional students,” by which he presumably means allocating more taxpayer dollars to private, religious, and charter schools.
- Bradley Manning: President Trump called Bradley Manning (who now goes by the name “Chelsea”) a “traitor” in a tweet today: “Ungrateful TRAITOR Chelsea Manning, who should never have been released from prison, is now calling President Obama a weak leader. Terrible!”

Day 6 (Wed., Jan. 25)

- Building the border wall and ending “catch and release”: President Trump signed an executive order to “immediately plan, design, and construct a physical wall along the southern border” of the United States. Building this barrier was one of Trump’s signature campaign promises, and today White House Press Secretary Sean Spicer said that it is “more than just a campaign promise, it’s common sense, the first step to really securing our porous border.” The order also directed the termination of the “catch and release” policy practiced by the Obama administration. Under that policy, illegal border crossers were released instead of being detained, and ordered to appear before an immigration court at a future date. But many failed to show up for the hearings.
- Sanctuary cities: Trump signed an executive order (separate from the one described above) to strip federal grants from “sanctuary” cities and states that do not enforce federal immigration laws. “We’re going to strip federal grant money from the sanctuary states and cities that harbor illegal immigrants,” White House Press Secretary Sean Spicer said.

Day 5 (Tues., Jan. 24)

- Reviving the Keystone XL and Dakota Access pipeline projects: President Trump signed three executive actions reviving action on the Keystone XL and Dakota Access oil pipeline construction projects aborted by former President Obama. Trump said he wants to seek a “better deal” on the Keystone XL Pipeline and asked TransCanada Corporation to resubmit its application for permission to complete the project. He added, “If we’re going to build pipelines in the United States, the pipes should be made in the United States.” Approvals of both projects are “subject to terms and conditions to be negotiated by us.”
- High-priority infrastructure projects: Trump signed an executive order stating that “it is the policy of the executive branch to streamline and expedite, in a manner consistent with law, environmental reviews and approvals for all infrastructure projects, especially projects that are a high priority for the Nation, such as improving the U.S. electric grid and telecommunications systems and repairing and upgrading critical port facilities, airports, pipelines, bridges, and highways.”
- Domestic manufacturing: Trump signed a memorandum directing federal agencies “to support the expansion of manufacturing in the United States through expedited reviews of and approvals for proposals to construct or expand manufacturing facilities and through reductions in regulatory burdens affecting domestic manufacturing.” The memorandum is to be “implemented consistent with applicable laws.”

Day 4 (Mon., Jan. 23)

- Withdrawing from the TPP: In a major victory for American national sovereignty, President Trump fulfilled his campaign pledge to withdraw the U.S. government from the “free trade” regime known as the Trans-Pacific Partnership. Despite strong support from Obama, most congressional Republicans, and the establishment wing of both parties, the secretly negotiated “trade” scheme was unconstitutional, dangerous, and extraordinarily unpopular across the political spectrum. The TPP would have stripped Americans of their right to self-government across a wide array of policy areas. From policies on immigration and trade to regulation and labor, the TPP and related schemes would purport to give foreign powers the ability to make rules for Americans. But with a simple executive order by the new president, the globalist establishment’s cherished dream for what lawmakers described as a “Pacific Union”-style super-government went up in smoke.
- Reinstating the Mexico City policy: Trump signed an executive order reinstating the Mexico City policy, which bars federal money from going to foreign non-governmental organizations (NGOs) that perform or promote abortion.
- Federal hiring freeze: Trump signed a memorandum ordering “a freeze on the hiring of Federal civilian employees to be applied across the board in the executive branch.” The order excludes the military and also exempts positions deemed “necessary to meet national security or public safety responsibilities.”
- Meeting with corporate leaders: Trump outlined some of his proposals for boosting U.S. manufacturing in a meeting with corporate leaders. “What we want to do is bring manufacturing back to our country,” Trump told the chief executives, which also included the leaders of companies such as Ford, Dow Chemical, Lockheed Martin, and U.S. Steel. To accomplish that, Trump proposed slashing corporate tax rates from 35 percent “down to anywhere from 15 to 20 per cent,” helping to bring U.S. tax rates — the highest in the developed world — back in line with those of other industrialized countries. He also vowed to seek a “very major border tax” on companies that shut down their U.S. factories and then try to sell goods back into the United States. And regarding the regulatory burden, he told the CEOs, “We think we can cut regulations by 75 percent, maybe more.”

Day 3 (Sun., Jan. 22)

- Renegotiating NAFTA: “Anybody ever hear of NAFTA?” Politico quoted Trump as joking at a swearing-in ceremony for top White House advisors. “I ran a campaign somewhat based on NAFTA. But we’re going to start re-negotiating on NAFTA.”

Day 2 (Sat., Jan. 21)

- Visiting the CIA: Visiting the headquarters of the Central Intelligence Agency on his first full day as president, Trump said, “There is nobody that feels stronger about the intelligence community and the CIA than Donald Trump.” He also told the crowd: “So I can only say that I am with you 1,000%. And the reason you’re my first stop is that, as you know, I have a running war with the media. They are among the most dishonest human beings on Earth.... And they sort of made it sound like I had a feud with the intelligence community. And I just want to let you know, the reason you’re the number one stop is exactly the opposite.” His remarks at CIA headquarters notwithstanding, Trump has been critical of the intelligence community and its treatment of him, saying in a January 11 press conference that leaking “information that turned out to be so false and fake” was “something that Nazi Germany would have done.” His remarks were in reference to an unsubstantiated “dossier” added to the intelligence community’s report of alleged Russian interference in the recent U.S. presidential election.

- Inaugural speech: At his inauguration as the 45th President of the United States, President Donald Trump put the globalist establishment that has been selling out America for so long on notice: The American people are back in charge. Quoting the Bible and acknowledging God the Creator as the true source of America’s protection, Trump did not mince words when he described the betrayal of America by the self-appointed establishment. But starting today, Trump said the “historic movement” that propelled his campaign to victory against the entire establishment apparatus was ready to ensure that America will come first. “From this day forward, a new vision will govern our land,” Trump said. “From this moment on, it’s going to be America First.” No doubt globalists and establishment types — in both parties — were left squirming in their seats at the thought of it all.

- Executive order on ObamaCare: After his inauguration, President Trump signed an executive order for “minimizing the economic burden” of ObamaCare. “It is the policy of my Administration to seek the prompt repeal of the Patient Protection and Affordable Care Act [ObamaCare],” the order states. “In the meantime, pending such repeal, it is imperative for the executive branch ... take all actions consistent with law to minimize the unwarranted economic and regulatory burdens of the Act, and prepare to afford the States more flexibility and control to create a more free and open healthcare market.”

- Other first-day executive actions: President Trump signed a law passed by Congress to grant retired General James Mattis a waiver to legally serve as Trump's secretary of defense, required by law because the Marine was still in military service less than seven years ago. He signed documents making his cabinet picks official.
