For many decades, elements within the U.S. government have been involved in activities that most Americans don't even know about, and would disapprove of if they did. These include overthrowing a number of democratically elected leaders to funding research that led to Covid-19. And even when the American people do voice their disapproval, such as with the Ukraine-Russia war, the government does what it wants, not what the people want. Most serious of all is that the U.S. government is the main force behind the push for a totalitarian one-world government. Since these American elites are clearly the bad guys in many ways, do regular Americans citizens bear any responsibility for this?
