

Be Very Skeptical of COVID Narrative, Warns Dr. Kaufman

JEKYLL ISLAND — Prominent medical doctor Andrew Kaufman, MD, argued that people do not need to be afraid and paranoid of coronavirus, even saying that there is no scientific evidence showing that a novel virus called coronavirus 19 is infecting people. In this interview with The New American magazine's Alex Newman at the Red Pill Expo, Dr. Kaufman urged everyone to be skeptical of the vaccines and do their own research, saying evidence shows they are harmful — especially those that modify people's genetic code. He urged people not to believe him, but to search for answers themselves.
