A new culture backed by the overlords of Big Tech is emerging in the Black Rock Desert of Nevada, and it has profound implications for what is left of Christian civilization.

The New American magazine and FreedomProject Media sent a team led by Behind The Deep State host Alex Newman to gather information and footage to show the world the real nature of Burning Man. This community and movement, supposedly a party and “art festival,” has largely flown under the radar of mainstream America. Until now. What the team found was shocking: an agenda to create a counterculture to replace what is left of the West (formerly known as Christendom) and re-paganize the world.

On this episode of Behind The Deep State, Newman is joined by the team he went with: Pastor Seth Tweeddale, videographer Kyle Coronado, and John Birch Society field coordinator Calvin Clark. They discuss what they experienced. From witchcraft and debauchery to Christian missions and creativity, the crew explains what this event means for the future of America politically, culturally, spiritually, and technologically.

Stay tuned in the weeks and months ahead, as multiple videos, documentaries, and articles will show you what really happens at Burning Man and what it means for the future.
