

Dr. Paul Alexander: COVID Response Is a Catastrophic Failure

Dr. Paul Alexander is former COVID pandemic evidence-synthesis advisor to the World Health Organization (2020) and former senior advisor to the White House at the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services.

At the onset of the pandemic, Dr. Alexander advocated for the targeted protection of the elderly while keeping the economy and schools open. He said that shutting down the county in a bid to stop the spread of the virus was a “catastrophic failure” that claimed more American lives than COVID itself.

As a medical professional, Dr. Alexander said that the vaccines do not work as expected and do not prevent infection. Moreover, since the shots are associated with numerous side effects and their manufacturers are shielded from any liability, children should not be vaccinated against COVID.
