John Zadrozny: FDA Hiding Data on Puberty Blockers, Sex Hormones for Children

The federal government fully endorses the off-label use of puberty blockers and cross-sex hormones for children with gender dysphoria, yet refuses to release records supporting such a policy.

In this interview with The New American, John Zadrozny, the Deputy Director of Investigations at America First Legal, discusses the existing concerns with the irreversible, life-altering damage that puberty blockers and other federally endorsed drugs have on children. One of the most commonly used of them, Lupron, is utilized for chemical castration of sex criminals; many are potent chemotherapy drugs that kill cells and may lead to sterilization, among other adverse effects. AFL is currently suing the FDA for refusing to release relevant materials. Mr. Zadrozny believes that there must be severe legal consequences for federal officials who are implicated in ruining children's lives.
