Conservatives and Liberals are both criticizing the Trump indictment as weak; Taiwan's president visited U.S. leaders to gather support in the face of aggression from Communist China; the CEO of the powerful financial institution JPMorgan Chase is suggesting that government use eminent domain to turn the American landscape into a sea of wind turbines and solar panels; America is officially a majority Constitutional Carry country; and Robert F. Kennedy Jr., the nephew of President John F. Kennedy, is running for president.

Also, FreedomProject Academy Director Dr. Duke Pesta discusses why schools are inviting drag queens to talk to small children, and Veronika Kyrylenko interviews a man who's been dubbed "America's Most Dangerous Dad" for exposing the corrupt sexual and race-based curricula in school.
