Man Claims He Spotted Infamous Gangster Whitey Bulger, Who Allegedly Died in 2018

Nick Fiorillo, the founder of GotSpaceDataPartners.com, claims that he spotted Whitey Bulger, an infamous gangster who was allegedly murdered in 2018, and reported it to the FBI who begged him not to go public.

Fiorillo told Alex Newman, a senior editor for The New American, that he had been cooperating with the FBI since the fall of 2021, and while speaking to an agent named Michael Doyle on the phone at a hotel, he spotted Bulger, who used to be on the FBI's top 10 most wanted list, sunbathing in a pool chair. Subsequently, Fiorillo narrated what he was seeing to agent Doyle on the phone, while taking photographs of the suspect.

After six hours, Fiorillo told Newman that agent Doyle called him back intoxicated, pleading with him not to release any photographs or evidence of Bulger's existence, exclaiming that Bulger being alive is "the biggest stain on the history of the FBI."

Ultimately, Fiorillo explained to Newman that if Whitey Bulger is alive and the FBI claims he is dead, what else are they lying to us about?
