In this interview with The New American, Rob Roos, the Member of the European Parliament (MEP) from the Netherlands, discusses the pandemic documents currently negotiated by the World Health Organization (WHO)—amendments to the International Health Regulations (IHR) and the Pandemic Agreement. The documents would be legally binding and provide the WHO with unlimited power to declare and end the pandemics and decide on the healthcare measures, be they quarantines, travel restrictions, masking, or vaccine mandates. They would obligate the governments to combat “misinformation” and “disinformation,” practically enabling censorship akin to that taking place during Covid, and sharing dangerous pathogens, which would prompt unethical gain-of-function research. The people need to urge their representatives to the WHO to oppose these documents that are slated for a vote on May 27.
