European leaders and citizens are teaming up to force the European Union Commission to consider a plan to secure the borders, stop the mass migration, and send home many immigrants through “re-migration,” explained Polish conservative leader Mariusz Skrobała in this interview with The New American magazine’s Alex Newman.

Skrobała, one of the seven leaders who launched the Citizens’ Initiative for the EU, explained that Western civilization was in mortal danger due to the flood of immigration. By launching this program, the European Commission will be forced to at least acknowledge and consider the plan. However, Skrobała said EU officials are already working to quash it.

Other leaders involved in the push include Martin Sellner from Austria and Eva Vlaardingerbroek of Holland. The effort is now seeking to gather a million signatures from across the EU.
