

Nurse Freedom Network Founder Exposes Hospital COVID Protocols

Kimberly Overton, the founder and CEO of Nurse Freedom Network, discusses how she left bedside nursing in the hospitals after witnessing firsthand how the hospital COVID protocols, specifically the use of remdesivir, often harmed and even killed patients, she tells The New American. Overton describes how she saw patients die because of the remdesivir, the toxicity of the drug, and how hospitals receive financial incentives for administering it to patients. In addition to exposing remdesivir, Nurse Freedom Network works to oppose vaccine mandates, help patients get lifesaving treatment, and to encourage other nurses to speak up.
