The Biden DOJ is suing Texas for having the gall to secure its border. Last week, the U.S. Department of Justice told Texas to remove the floating barriers it put in the Rio Grande River to stop illegal aliens from crossing over into the U.S. Texas has refused to comply. Yesterday, in a letter to Biden, Texas Governor Greg Abbott said: “Texas will see you in court, Mr. President.”

In other stories: Just like they came for gas stoves, they’re coming for dish washers, hot water heaters, refrigerators, and even portable generators. And two months after the Covid emergency officially ended, the Biden administration launched a new office that is supposed to oversee federal efforts to counter large-scale health threats. The Office of Pandemic Preparedness and Response Policy will be “charged with leading, coordinating, and implementing actions related to preparedness for, and response to, known and unknown biological threats.”

In the second half of the show, Christian Gomez interviews Selwyn Duke about the decline of Christianity and the need to return to our religious roots, and Joe Wolverton and Christian Gomez discuss the Convention of States’ guidelines for proposing Amendments to the Constitution, noting that the guidelines provide no assurance that a modern-day Constitutional Convention would not propose bad amendments.
