Manhattan DA Alvin Bragg is at it again. This time he's suing Representative Jim Jordan for leading the charge to investigate the motives behind the Trump indictment. Also, the Tennessee state legislators ousted for disrupting a legislative session are being reinstated on an interim basis while the Volunteer State's governor seems to be caving in to pressure calling for gun control; recently obtained documents suggest the White House played a role in the FBI raid on Trump's Mar-a-Lago home last year; the FBI adds "red-pilled" to a new list of trigger words for domestic "terrorists"; and multiple car manufacturers are ditching AM radio, prompting suspicions that the real motive is to censor conservative talk radio.

Plus, Alex Newman interviews an expert on human trafficking, and Constitution Corner host Robert Owens discusses why America must return to a noninterventionist foreign policy.
