

Written by Veronika Kyrylenko on November 29, 2023

Ontario Court Rules in Favor of Teacher Silenced for Protesting LGBT Books

In a recent legal development, an Ontario court has sided with retired teacher Carolyn Burjoski, who faced suppression for expressing concerns about transgender-themed books in elementary school libraries. The Ontario Superior Court, led by Justice James Ramsay, rejected a request from the Waterloo Regional District School Board (WRDSB) to dismiss Burjoski's defamation case, emphasizing the importance of free expression in Canadian society.

According to the Canadian outlet National Post, Ramsay asserted, "The Human Rights Code does not prohibit public discussion of issues related to transgenderism or minors and transgenderism. It does not prohibit public discussion of anything."

As a result of the ruling, Burjoski's case against the school board and its former chair Scott Piatkowski can proceed, with the court ordering the board to cover $30,000 of Burjoski's legal fees. Burjoski has also taken action against the board, appealing its decision to halt her presentation and claiming a violation of her freedom of expression.

The legal battle stems from a January 2022 incident in which Burjoski was removed from a Board of Trustees meeting after exposing the dangers of LGBT books. Those included the books Rick by Alex Gino, and The Other Boy by MC Hennesy, featuring "asexual" and transgender child characters. Burjoski explained her motivation to speak out on her website:

I decided to ask the Board to explain the philosophy by which they decided, for example, that [Dr. Seuss] was now considered inappropriate and these new diverse books for young children with sexual content were appropriate. I was granted a delegation at the Board of Trustees meeting on January 17, 2022 and allotted 10 minutes to speak. I read excerpts from two of these children's books, criticizing the age-appropriateness of the sexual content. Then, less than 4 minutes into my presentation, the Board Chair cut me off and ejected me from the meeting, claiming that my comments violated the Human Rights Code.

Following the meeting, Burjoski, a teacher with 20 years of experience, was expelled from the classroom, and the board initiated an investigation. Piatkowski labeled her comments as "transphobic," leading to a media controversy. Burjoski, who suffered a breakdown and is still in recovery, accused Piatkowski of attributing remarks to her that she did not make and characterizing them as hateful, as she sued him.

Burjoski took to Twitter to celebrate the recent ruling. She recapped the case and thanked all her

BrianAJackson/iStock/Getty Images Plus

Written by Veronika Kyrylenko on November 29, 2023

---

supporters.

Undoubtedly, the court's decision marks a significant development in the ongoing debate over freedom of expression and presence of LGBT perversions in educational settings.

Subscribe to the New American

Get exclusive digital access to the most informative, non-partisan truthful news source for patriotic Americans!

Discover a refreshing blend of time-honored values, principles and insightful perspectives within the pages of "The New American" magazine. Delve into a world where tradition is the foundation, and exploration knows no bounds.

From politics and finance to foreign affairs, environment, culture, and technology, we bring you an unparalleled array of topics that matter most.

What's Included?

- 24 Issues Per Year
- Optional Print Edition
- Digital Edition Access
- Exclusive Subscriber Content
- Audio provided for all articles
- Unlimited access to past issues
- Coming Soon! Ad FREE
- 60-Day money back guarantee!
- Cancel anytime.

Subscribe